ON either side of the Santa Fe express, in which this is written, the corn fields and farm houses of Kansas fly past. It is a country unlike that through which the writer drove a few weeks ago in France on the way from Paris to see Clemenceau, in his little cottage on the Atlantic at Lejard, not far from Bordeaux.

The trip through France made in a Lincoln automobile was as rapid as this trip by train. In France you drive your automobile as fast as you like, but TAKE CARE YOU HURT NOBODY.

FRENCH roads are wide and straight. The Lincoln car used by this writer came from Nice to Paris, 900 kilometers, 540 miles, in one day and did easily the 400 miles from Paris to Lejard between breakfast and dinner.

French drivers go rapidly, but carefully; if they hit anybody the law hits them. A member of the Chamber of Deputies went to jail for a year; all the influence of his friends could not save him. He struck a child. B. Forman of Rochester, N. Y., can tell you of a French chauffeur accused of intoxication, sent to jail for 10 years. He killed a child. Mr. Forman saw the thing happen.

HERE in Kansas you see great tractors providing power, machinery cutting and binding corn, great engines binding, threshing wheat, and tying the grain in sacks, all in one operation.

In France occasionally you would see a peasant and his wife cutting their grain with sickles in small fields of irregular shape. Fields were harvested with scythes and here and there teams of horses drew mowing machines. Power driven agricultural machinery was not seen between Paris and Lejard.

WHERE mowers had passed you might see an old grandmother and her little grandchild bending over picking up wisps of grain with the right hand, putting them in aprons held by the left hand.

A hundred such gleaners were seen in a day's drive. They were less fortunate than Ruth. Their gleanings meager. There was no Boaz to command his young men, saying, "Let her glean even among the sheaves and reproach her not; and let fall also some of the handfuls of purpose for her and leave them that she may glean them, but rebuke her not."

WITH hand rakes the old grandmother and the little girl could have gathered all the gleanings in a short time, but that evidently was not allowed. Gleaning must be done by hand, the old body must stoop, and stoop all day long to pick up stray straws. When the grain had gone from the field an old shepherd would bring his little band of sheep. These would walk through the stubble, eating the over-ripe grain that had fallen from the ears. Other bands of sheep led by an old man or woman with dogs to help, ate the grass along the highway edges. No sheep ever strayed onto the road before the automobiles. Dogs prevented that, and the sheep seemed trained. Beautiful animals, admirably kept. They waste nothing in France.

HERE in rich America you ride miles through unending fields of corn or grain, pass great herds of heavy steers, deep in grass and tens of thousands of acres not used.

In France they use every foot of ground, waste nothing, not food or human labor. Men and women work long hours, work hard with patience.

THE peasants' houses are beautiful and old, their animals well cared for. Along the Coast of Brittany and the Vendee, men and women and children work side by side. Men repair, at low tide, their fish nets colored light blue. The fishermen say "fish like color." On the flat lands you see little mounds of salt taken from the ocean by imprisoning waters in shallow pools for evaporation.

ONCE "La Gabelle," a heavy tax on salt, dressed the mistresses of French kings and made life easy for these lucky classes, royalty, clergy and nobility. It was death to the peasant to escape "La Gabelle" by taking his salt from the ocean.

CONDITIONS are better now. The kings are sleeping in St. Denis, the few whose bones were not scattered during the revolu-

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 30.—Holding a becoming realization of the fact that they can clinch the pennant with a victory this afternoon, the Pirates wore a confident demeanor as they looked forward to the first game of the series with the Reds. If the Bushwhackers can win just one more game it will be impossible for either the Cardinals or the Giants to overtake them in the last two days of the chase.

The Pirate squad was a part of the smallest crowd of the season at Redland Field yesterday as the Hendricks entry scored a 3 to 2 victory over the World Champions in the final meeting of the season between the two clubs.

The fighting Redbirds were so anxious to battle and the home management was so eager to get the game off the books that special preparations were made to combat the rains that fell during a part of the day. The infield was almost completely covered with sawdust for the

Gang Takes Another 'For Ride'

Another Hill district Italian has been "taken for a ride," which always ends in death, in the bootleg gang feud. This time it was Joseph Talamo, 27, proprietor of the former "Red Spot" cabaret, at 805 Wylie avenue. He was spirited away from his home yesterday and fell a victim to gang guns.

His body with three bullets through the back of the head was found on a lonely road near Canonsburg this morning. Matt O'Reilly, barbecue stand proprietor, saw the killers ride out with Talamo between them in

STRICKEN CITY UNDER GUARD

By JAMES R. CONNOR, JR.,
International News Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 30.—With 77 known dead in St. Louis and six reported dead in nearby towns, at least 700 injured in hospitals and at private homes, and a property damage estimated at from fifty to one hundred millions, St. Louis today swung into rehabilitating the damage done by the tornado and rainstorm which yesterday afternoon ripped through scattered sections of the west side, creating general havoc over the entire city.

After a night of relief work supervised by the Red Cross, with rescue and patrol duties being taken care of by police and National Guardsmen, appeal for funds to help in relief work was issued by Mayor Victor J. Miller.

Fully six square miles of buildings and streets were devastated by the tornado.

While rescue workers were being reinforced today, National Guard units were being posted about to prevent looting and riots.

The tornado traveled at the rate of about 60 miles an hour. Accompanied by a terrific rainstorm, it tore through residences and factory buildings, uprooted trees, tore out telephone wires and toppled over street lamps.

The death list mounted to 83 this morning as additional bodies were found and injured victims died. Of these all but two were identified.

All night the bodies of the dead and injured were being taken to various hospitals and morgues.

As body after body was being recovered from the debris of buildings, workers predicted that the total of deaths might reach or exceed 100.

A veritable wilderness of crumpled up buildings, factories, dwelling places and apartment houses confronted relief workers as they ploughed through heap after heap of debris in search of bodies.

Many St. Louis insurance men today estimated the damage at $100,000,000 or more. One prominent underwriter said the damage by rain would be greater than the wind damage.

The contents of buildings were

FEDERAL WRIT ENJOINS MINERS IN HOUSING ROW

A temporary injunction restraining the United Mine Workers of America from further activities aimed at retaining company houses of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company for striking miners, except through the prosecution of appeals now listed in state courts, was orderd in an opinion handed down by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court today.

damaged to the extent of $65,000,000, he asserted, by the torrential rain which followed the storm.

Other insurance men estimated the damage to be between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000.

A more conservative estimate was given by Charles M. Talbert, vice president of the Standard Underwriters' Agency here, who said $50,000,000 would cover the loss.

Police ran about shouting warnings all night to weeping women and children who were running about the streets seeking relatives, and to men digging frantically through the piled up wreckage in search of lost ones.

Confusion reigned throughout, with authorities working madly to clear the streets.

School children were returning from their noon hour recess when the tornado broke relentlessly upon the city.

Workmen were returning to labor. Young and old alike dashed wildly here and there seeking places of safety, as the tornado, aided by torrents of rain, went on with its work of destruction. Walls of buildings seemed to burst apart, bricks and glass and automobiles were tossed about like wisps.

There were many patients in the Mullanphy Hospital at the time the storm broke. The wind sideswiped the building, ripped the entire west wing to shreds and sent the roof and upper floor crashing to the ground.

None was in that section at the time, but below were a score and more of expectant mothers or mothers with babes in arms—the maternity section.

"It was terrible," said Charles William, a chauffeur. "Before the wind died down I heard men screaming for help. I tried to get to them but another wall collapsed and I ran for my life. I didn't know where I was going, but I was getting away from there."

By Associated Press.

The area of greatest destruction lay roughly southwest to northeast bounded by Forrest Park boulevard, Sarah street, Pendenton avenue and Hebert street.

The black, swirling funnel seemed to have appeared without warning in the vicinity of Forest Park, to have pursued a zig-zag course for six miles to leap the Mississippi River and dissipate its fury with a last twist at the Illinois tri-cities, Venice, Granite City and Madison, in which six persons were killed and 20 injured.

Every St. Louis policeman and fireman was called out on special duty, but their numbers were inadequate to patrol the stricken area and a regiment of state militiamen was ordered on duty. Orders to shoot looters were issued. Only two reports of looting were made last night, but neither was verified.

RELIEF BEGUN

A citizens' relief committee of 38, with Mayor Victor Miller as chairman, hurriedly was organized to direct relief work. The Red Cross placed a relief station in the center of the stricken area and 100 automobiles were impressed for use as ambulances. Mayor Miller issued an appeal for funds.

KILLED IN SCHOOL

Throughout the wilderness of crumpled houses, fallen trees, wrecked factories and business buildings and twisted wires, men dug frantically in the darkness all night. Shortly before 4 o'clock this morning explorers seeking the bodies of five missing children in the recently remodeled Central High School found the bodies of two little girls. Seven school buildings, housing 6,500 children, were in the tornado-swept area, but only at Central High was there a report of a fatality. Eighteen other pupils in that school were injured when a huge tower was sent crashing down on the auditorium.

TORNADO SOON OVER

The tornado played no favorites. Homes of classic design, the humbler structures, stores, school, apartment buildings, police stations, all were racked and torn equally.

For an hour before the twister struck, the air was heavy and portentous with storm. The continuous low rumbling of thunder was punctuated with lightning. The oppressiveness was dispelled by a rising wind and suddenly the telltale black clouds appeared in the sky.

In a twinkling the crashing of glass and the singing of the wind in the trees announced the coming of the tornado. Chimneys crashed, houses heaved and fell, while the air was dark with dust and flying missiles. Witnesses telling their stories later spoke of sheets of flame, their origin a mystery, that swept past and dissipated themselves by striking a building or a tree.

Automobiles moved crazily about, overturning and wrecking themselves like playthings of children. Everywhere the thud of falling walls, and chimneys and the tearing sound of piazzas being wrenched from their foundations, filled the air.

Swift in its coming, the tornado was as quick in leaving. From the ruined homes and stores the frightened wet occupants appeared in a stream. They found a wilderness of fallen trees to block their way. Hysterical women supported by men picked their way out of the debris.

As the danger from fallen power wires became great, self-apointed guards stationed themselves until police arrived to take charge.

REAL ESTATE PARTNER BROUGHT BACK IN THEFT

John C. Bach, 40, partner in a Pittsburgh firm, returned from Los Angeles today, escorted by city detectives, after having been indicted here by the grand jury on a charge of larceny of $1,500 from his firm.

Cards' Flag Pole Crashes; Symbol Of Lost Hopes

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Cardinal fans today grievingly remarked upon the ironical coincidence yesterday when the tornado blew down the flag pole at Sportsman's Park just as the world's champions took a defeat at the hands of Cincinnati and thereby virtually lost their chance of hanging a new pennant from the tall pole.

The roof of the new pavilion at the park and many iron girders were torn loose and hurled to the diamond where thousands of loyal Cardinal fans had hoped to see another world series.

"Even nature is against us," one ardent fan said plaintively.

Vote Fraud Net Closes On 25 More

Evidence, which it is said will lead to criminal informations against 25 other elections officials in at least five more districts of the city, was presented to District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner today as a score of county detectives went forth to serve 30 primary fraud warrants sworn to by Gardner yesterday.

And the end, according to Thomas W. MacDonald, investigator of the Pennsylvania Elections' Association, was not in sight as the barrage of a dozen investigations continued to sweep the ranks of primary fraud perpetrators in an ever-widening range, driving politicians, alarmed and amazed, to cover while they sought some means of stilling the fire.

The officials of the Eighteenth district, Third Ward, where MacDonald charged the discrepancies were "most flagrant," were Sam Neaman, judge; Jack McKenzie and David Fineberg, inspectors, and Harry Fineberg and Jake Rosenberg, clerks. In this district, by the recount in the judgeship fight, Moore lost 58 votes; Cohen, 57; Ford, 50; Chalfant 49, and Dithrich, 47.

The other officials were:

Sixteenth district, Third Ward—George Mack, judge; Frank Savena, William Donnelly, inspectors; Clark Jackson, Ida Butler, clerks.

Fifth district, Fourth Ward—Edward Muldowney, judge; Henry Schack, Felix McKnight, inspectors; Howard S. Smith, Edward Keenan, clerks.

Twenty-third district, Fourth Ward—Abe C. Lando, Patrick Foley, Cohn Lando, H. J. McNally, Mrs. H. J. McNally.

MacDonald said the latest officials whom Gardner had promised to prosecute on conspiracy charges were the election managers of the Sixteenth and Eighteenth districts, Third Ward, and the Fifth and Twenty-third districts, Fourth Ward. These additions would bring the total number of election managers facing charges to 55.

Those named in the warrants served today, according to District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, are:

Second District, Fourth Ward, William Moff, judge; Matthew Reinhart and Albert R. Sarner, inspectors; Stella Griffith and Joseph Matthews, clerks.

Third District, Fourth Ward, Jerry Sullivan, judge; Thomas McGrail and Martin Hanlon, inspectors; Charles Rodgers and Calvin Darnell, clerks.

Twenty-second District, Fourth Ward, James F. Murphy, judge; S. D. Ferguson and Charlotte Hogan, inspectors; W. J. Baumgard and Ed McClay, clerks.

Ninth District, Third Ward, James H. Bates, judge; George Moore and J. C. Soephy, inspectors; Vann R. Withers and Robert T. Holmes, clerks.

Seventeenth District, Third Ward, Whitney Roush, judge; Joe Sprout and John Brussaer, inspectors; John Harnett and Melvin Brooks, clerks.

Fifteenth District, Third Ward, Abel Goldstein, judge; George R. Askin and Paul Blue, inspectors; Jessie Jackson and David Ross, clerks.

SIX OUT ON BAIL

In addition to those hit by the major probe, six were at liberty under bail today on charges of irregularities in the Thirteenth District, Third Ward. Informations in this case were made by Grant Taylor, candidate for constable. Those named were Meyer Talefield, William Long, Viola Turner, Morris Feinberg, Samuel Brown and E. W. Bailey.

There was another angle to the major investigation today which promised sensational developments. This was a move of the Pennsylvania and Allegheny County Elections' Associations to determine just how many city and county employes served as election officials. There was an indication that this line of attack might result in the throwing out of the entire vote in some districts.

Order Army Into Tornado-Torn St. Louis

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—One thousand regular army troops from Jefferson barracks, Mo., were ordered by the War Department today to co-operate in the emergency created by th St. Louis tornado.

Maj. Gen. William Lasseter, commanding the sixth corps area, will leave Chicago today to take charge of the regular army activities in St. Louis.

Maj. Gen. Harry Smith, commanding the seventh corps area, at Omaha, Neb., was ordered by the department to hold himself in readiness to co-operate in every necessary way with Lasseter at St. Louis.

HUNT CARRICK WOMAN IN LOTTERY

Police today were searching for Mrs. Irene Bennett, of 2604 Brownsville road, Carrick. A warrant was issued for her this morning in South Side Police Court after it was testified that police found a package containing 20,000 lottery tickets in her home.

The tickets were found, police say, after a fight had occurred in front of Mrs. Bennett's home. Joseph Kearns, 26, of 217 Penn avenue, Mt. Oliver, was arrested by police summoned to stop the fight and his coat, containing a bundle of tickets, was found in the Bennett home, police say. Kearns said he delivered tickets for Mrs. Bennett. He was held over at the hearing.

Judge Shot By Woman In Court

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 30.—Federal Judge Tilman D. Johnson was shot twice in the leg as he opened his court here today, and Mrs. Eliza Simmons, who recently lost a $10,000 damage suit in the court, was arrested and charged with the assault.

Mrs. Simmons, a widow, was seated in the front row of the courtroom with other spectators when Judge Johnson entered and took the bench. She, with other spectators, rose. Then, witnesses said, she stepped forward, revolver in hand, and fired four times.

Headwaiter Quits Job To Get Biggest Tip

R. J. Kennedy, a headwaiter, quit his job at the William Penn Hotel last night to pocket his biggest tip—$500,000, left him in the will of his uncle, James Kennedy, a ranchman, of West Maitland, New South Wales, Australia, who died September 10.

Bidding farewell to stewards, chefs, pastry cooks, waiters, bus boys and kitchen maids among his scores of friends at the hotel, Kennedy went to Washington to join his wife in a trip to Australia to collect the legacy.

Brandon Accepts Attorney's Apology

Public apology by Attorney Samuel Rosenberg was accepted by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today as assuaging the wounded dignity of the court, and a disorderly conduct charge against Rosenberg for uncomplimentary remaks was dismissed.

Magistrate Brandon caused the attorney's arrest two weeks ago when the latter, defending a woman arrested in a Hill district raid, assailed the court.

"All right, you're discharged, but don't do it again or I cannot permit you to practice in this court," the magistrate said today.

M'CASKEY WILL FIGHT AIRED

Exceptions to Orphans' Court Judge H. Walton Mitchell's decision sustaining the will of John G. McCaskey, oil operator, who left an estate of $2,000,000 in trust for his children, were heard before the full bench of Orphans' Court today.

Owen J. Roberts, Philadelphia, and George H. Calvert, Pittsburgh, presented the side of the heirs, while George E. Alter appeared for the executors. The children are opposing the will on the ground that it constitutes a trust in perpetuity.

The court will take briefs in the case and render a decision later.

SHOT DAUGHTER; GETS 3 YEARS

After being paroled from Mayview, where he had been committed a year ago for inebriecy, Charles Knowlan, of Bedford avenue, father of seven children, returned with a revolver to the house of his estranged family, 3376 Webster avenue, on July 13, and shot his daughter, Margaret, in the left arm by firing through the glass of a rear door as she, the sole occupant at the time, attempted to escape after calling the police. Knowlan admitted the shooting in Criminal Court today, blamed it on drink and was sentenced by Judge Harry H. Rowand to a term of one to three years in the county jail.

tion. There are more schools than chateaux, more public libraries than gallows. The peasant is no longer forbidden to kill animals that ate his crops because lords and ladies wanted the pleasure of riding over those crops to kill the animals themselves.

BUT in every French family there is mourning. Each earnest hard-faced French woman tells you how many sons, or brothers she had "left."

THIS train is passing now through a field of standing corn so big you cannot see the end of it. At the edge of the track half a dozen Mexican laborers sit eating their noonday meal, waving and laughing as the express goes by. They make five dollars a day. Those a little "whiter" make more.

When you go through the Pittsburgh iron region on the Pennsylvania's "Broadway Limited" you see the works of one steel concern that makes more steel than all of the steel works of France combined.

You leave billion dollar banks in New York and Chicago and find the Bank of Italy with its billion on the edge of the Pacific. Life is easy for us, hard for France.

WAR was an exciting episode for us. It was almost death for France. Many Americans would rather pay a few more dollars in taxes than see France's recovery checked by too hard pressure for payment.

The French of the Eighteenth century educated Jefferson, Franklin and other useful Americans. That was worth something.

Talamo is at least the tenth who has been murdered in the Hill district feud.

The position of Talamo's body indicated he had been shot from behind as he stood in the roadway after stepping from the machine. His money, $73, was found intact by state police and Washington county detectives, conclusive evidence that robbery was not the motive of the killing.

He told his wife, Helen Talamo, he would be back soon. He wore no coat.

Nothing more was heard of him until a description of the man murdered in Washington county was telephoned to his brother, Ross Talamo, who had become worried on learning of the visit of the unidentified Italian. Neither the brother nor Mrs. Talamo were able to give any theory as to why Talamo should be the latest man marked for killing.

Talamo's body was found by Mr. and Mrs. William Schultz, of R. F. D. No. 3, Bridgeville. It was on a lonely, unfrequented and unimproved road in Harrison township between Hendersonville and Cecil.

Ross Talamo formally identified his brother's body at a Canonsburg undertaking establishment where Dr. D. Major Bell conducted an autopsy and arranged for an inquest.

KILLS MATE HERE

Bove died early today in Pittsburgh Hospital. Neighbors found him at the door of his home and took him there. They told police of frequent quarrels between the two which culminated as the slain man started into his home last night.

Mrs. Bove met him at the door, a revolver concealed beneath her dress.

"Are we going to the movies tonight?" she asked him.

"No."

"Are you going out with someone else?"

"Yes."

She opened fire.

Bove fell across the doorway while his wife ran into the street screaming that "someone has shot my husband." Later, in the matron's ward at Central Station, she declared that she took the revolver from a bureau drawer after they had argued for an hour. Today she changed her story and told them she met him at the door with the revolver beneath her dress.

With their two small children clinging to her dress, Mrs. Bove followed the neighbor's car which bore her dying husband to the hospital. There physicians found the bullet had struck him beneath the heart and that loss of blood had made their efforts useless. Police arrested the wife outside the operating room shortly before his death. The children were placed in care of relatives.

BOY KILLED, FATHER HURT AS AUTO FALLS OVER HILL

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—John R. Kennedy, 20, Garards Fort, Mapletown High School senior, was killed yesterday when the machine which he was driving careened over an embankment on the Greensboro road near Mapletown.

His father, John Kennedy, who was in the machine, suffered two broken ribs and other injuries.

UNION HIT BY COURT RULING

The ruling is only half a victory for the corporation, however, inasmuch as it contains no clause which would prevent continuation of general union activities at the company's mines. It was this blanket injunction order which the company sought and which Mine Workers' attorneys fought bitterly as a blow at the very foundations of mine unionism throughout the country. Only the final decision will consider the additional points of the petition.

Another clause of the opinion enjoined the National Surety Company from going on additional bonds at the behest of the United Mine Workers.

This, Attorney Oliver K. Eaton, counsel for the United Mine Workers, said might have a serious effect on the miners' cause. Surety companies have been furnishing the bonds aggregating fabulous sums which the United Mine Workers are posting in the cases and henceforth difficulty may be encountered in obtaining such bonds, Attorney Eaton stated.

The opinion is the first practical victory which the corporation has won in its long fight to oust striking miners from company houses and resume full operations of its mines on an open-shop basis, begun when officials failed to ratify the Jacksonville wage agreement at Miami in April.

Counsel for the miners questioned the right of a Federal court to interfere and asked dismissal of the petitions on grounds of lack of jurisdiction.

In the opinion, Judge Schoonmaker makes lengthy citations to prove jurisdiction in dismissing the defense plea.

"Without expressing at this time, any opinion on the merits of the case, either in fact or in law, that shall be developed on final hearing when testimony can be taken in open court, we find that the plaintiff does need injunctive relief," Judge Schoonmaker ruled.

Attorney Shoots Self

Attorney Robert D. Ellwood, Jr., 55, fired two revolver bullets into his head at his office, 524 Fourth avenue, this morning. His condition was reported as extremely serious at the Allegheny General Hospital.

"I was tired," was the only explanation he gave to his close friend and neighbor, Judge Harry H. Rowand, who was summoned and talked with him while preparations were being made to remove him to the hospital.

Attorney Ellwood's associates all expressed surprise at the shooting. They said he was known as an attorney with a large practice, apparently well fixed financially, living with his wife and three children in their pleasant home at Oakmont.

Attorney Charles D. Gillespie, associate of Attorney Elwood, referred all inquiries concerning the shooting to Judge Rowand.

Attorney Ellwood was born in Verona and was a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh Law School. He was admitted to the Allegheny county bar about 30 years ago.

He was a director of the First National Bank of Verona.

Attorney Ellwood's wife, Mrs. Cornelia McJunkin Ellwood, and his children, Mary, 17; Narcissus, 14, and Hugh McJunkin, 11, visited him in the hospital at noon today. Mrs. Ellwood remained at the hospital pending the outcome of an operation to remove one of the bullets.

PHANTOM STABBER KNIFES GIRL, 14

TERRORIZER OF WOMEN DETECTED

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—"The phantom stabber," for two and a half years the terror of girls and young women walking through the streets of Bridgeport in late afternoon or at night, has brought the total number of his victims to 24, and continued today to elude the police.

His latest attack came early last night when Ruth Stillings, 14-year-old high school tennis star, on her way home with a friend, was stabbed in the chest. Fifteen minutes after the stabbing police began a search of the district, but the assailant had escaped, as he had after the 23 other stabbings.

The stabber in many of the attacks has been a flitting shadow, which melted away in the darkness, defying description by the victim, but Miss Stillings said her assailant was a dark-complexioned young man, about five feet four inches in height, wearing dark gray trousers, a gray cap and a blue sweater with dark stripes. He appeared to be about 21 years old.

The stabber's method in the latest attack was similar to the others. He brushed against the girl as he ran past her. When he disappeared the girl noted she had been wounded.

The phantom has slashed in churches and public buildings as well as on street corners and in the day as well as at night. Most of his victims have been between the ages of 12 and 28. Police have held scores of suspects, but have been unable to place the responsibility, as a fresh attack would occur while the latest suspect was in custody.

The last outrage before last night's was on August 27.

BAGDAD, Irak., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Lieut. Otto Koennecke's biplane Germania, in which he was attempting a flight from Cologne to America by the eastern route, crashed here today as he was taking off in continuance of his journey.

The plane was damaged but Lieut. Koennecke and his companions were not injured.

Lieut. Koennecke left Cologne September 20, accompanied in the Germania by Count George Cedric Solms-Laubach, his financial backer, and Johannes Hermann, radio expert of the Junkers firm. Their first hop, to Angora, the Turkish capital, was most successful, the plane covering the 1,875 miles at an average speed in excess of 100 miles an hour.

There, however, their good fortune seemed to end. After putting the machine in condition for continuance of the flight, they hopped off last Saturday morning.

It had been announced that they would attempt to make Basra, at the head of the Persian gulf, a distance of 1,050 miles, and their non-arrival there for four days caused considerable uneasiness in German and other continental aerial circles.

On Wednesday, however, they turned up at Bagdad and it developed that they had abandoned the nonstop flight to Basra because of the inadequate space at Angora for a take-off with sufficient gasoline for the trip, and for the reason that a heavily loaded plane would have difficulty in getting over the Taurus mountains.

CITY GARDENER 30 YEARS, DIES

William George Doel, 66, for 30 years landscape gardener for the city, and more recently instructor in nature study and school gardening work of the public schools, died yesterday at his home, Dietrich road, Mt. Royal.

Born in England, he received his early training on the estate of the Earl of Sefton, Liverpool, and with his parents came to this country about 40 years ago. His father for a time conducted a nursery in Geneva, O. In 1892, Doel became connected with the Bureau of Parks under Supt. William Falconer, retiring in 1922, since which time he had devoted his attention to the work around his home, and addressing classes in nature study in Pittsburgh schools.

Doel laid out much of the work in the city parks and in the residential sections of the city. Recently he maintained a nursery at Shakespeare schools to supply material for the landscape work by the Board of Public Education.

He was a member of Hailman Lodge, No. 321, F. & A. M., Odd Fellows, Royal Horticultural Society and American Rose Society.

He leaves his widow, Delia Conley Doel; four daughters, Mrs. Edward L. Riefer, Mrs. Richard Ray, of Mt. Royal, Mrs. William B. Ellis, Carnegie, and Mrs. Albert E. Fisher, New York, and two sons, John Locke Doel and William George Doel, Jr., of Mt. Royal.

WOMAN IS VICTIM OF THUG

Pittsburgh's elusive Negro slugger, whose fist has left a half dozen women victims unconscious on sidewalks in various sections of the city, struck twice in the Oakland section last night and escaped.

He first appeared last night at Bellefield and Fifth avenue where he stopped Miss Betty Park, 22, of 2115, Bigelow boulevard. With the gun pressed against her side, she handed over her purse and dropped her wrist-watch into the slugger's hand.

The home of Miss Alice Harter, 4201 Bryn Mawr road, next attracted the Negro. He gained entrance by jimmying the front door and threatened Miss Harter with the revolver, while she was at a telephone, taking her purse containing $25. The presence of other persons in the house is believed to have prevented any attempt to attack the girl.

ARSON JURORS DISCHARGED IN CO-ED TRIAL

GEORGETOWN, Tex., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Failing to reach a verdict, the jury which tried Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, of Austin, 22, former university student, charged with arson, was discharged in District Court here today.

The case went to the jury about 3 p. m. Thursday. After the jury's discharge it was said to have stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

The state charged Mrs. Rogers had burned a vacant house in Round Rock as part of a plan to lure officers and employes from the Round Rock bank. The defense pleaded not guilty and attempted to prove Mrs. Rogers was mentally unbalanced.

Mrs. Rogers also is under a charge of having robbed with firearms the bank at Buda, Tex., not far from Round Rock, the day after the vacant house was burned. Her trial on that charge is to be held in San Marcos, Tex.

PURSESNATCHER CAUSES RIOT

A race riot between 50 whites and Negroes followed an alleged attempt of a Negro to steal a woman's purse at Bedford avenue and Logan street in the Hill this afternoon.

The fighting was broken up before city detectives arrived with riot guns. James Johnson, Negro, 22, of 1323 Wylie avenue, was arrested after witnesses had told police that he snatched the purse of Mrs. James Ayah, 40, of 1316 Webster avenue, and, when she resisted, struck her in the face.

How the "Golden Girl," with $1,000,000 in jewels, traveled through Europe is another interesting article in the Magazine Section, Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

WILKINSBURG BOY HELD

Alexander Hall, 18, of Wilkinsburg, is under arrest in Columbus, O., according to word received here. He is charged with forging a check for $30. A canvass of Wilkinsburg residents by that name failed to identify the young man as a resident of the borough.

Another petition seeking exclusive use of the title "Independent Party" was filed today by five residents of the Fourteenth Ward. The signers are John A. Cost, Aaron H. Penenbaum, Max Walters, Garnet Bretsnider and Charles C. Buttonfield.

The petition was filed by Ralph H. Frank, attorney for County Controller Charles C. McGovern.

Boy Backs Up Story of Slain Doctor's Wife

HAMMONTON, N. J., Sept. 30—(AP.)—A youth who says he witnessed the slaying of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl and to have corroborated the story of the killing as related by Mrs. Lilliendahl was in custody today.

Arrested yesterday in Hoboken and taken to Atlantic City, where he was committed to jail without bail, Albert Langben, an 18-year-old mill hand of Egg Harbor, was reported by the police to have said that he had seen two Negroes hold up the Lilliendahl automobile on the lonely Atsion road, shoot the doctor and rob his wife.

His story is the same as that told by Mrs. Lilliendahl when she was found by two truckmen, her clothing torn and her hair disheveled, as she crawled from the underbrush near the scene of the shooting. She is out on $25,000 bail as a material witness.

The authorities said Langben had told them he was walking through the woods with a girl when he saw two Negroes rush from the underbrush as the Lilliendahl car appeared, leap on the running board and force Mrs. Lilliendahl, who was driving, to pull into the thicket. A few minutes later he heard three shots. A desire to shield his girl friend from undue publicity was given by Langben as his reason for withholding the information two weeks. Dr. Lilliendahl was shot September 15.

Edison Hedges, Atlantic City, counsel for Willis Beach, wanted for complicity in the slaying of Dr. Lilliendahl, was today held in $2,000 bail on two charges of obstructing justice.

STILL RAIDED IN WEBSTER AVE.

Federal prohibition agents late yesterday raided a house at 2221 Webster avenue, where they arrested Harry Frank, 38, and seized a 100-gallon still, 140 gallons of moonshine whisky, 50 barrels of mash and other contraband. The liquor and distilling paraphernalia were found in the attic. Frank was released under $2,000 bond pending a hearing before the United States commissioner.

COMMISSIONER NAMED FOR CHARTER HEARING

DESCRIBE TORNADO BEDLAM

Eye-Witnesses Depict Scenes of Terror

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Personal experiences were recounted today by many who saw the freakish performances of the twister of yesterday.

Edward Steinhauer was collecting bills on Sarah street when the tornado broke.

"Things suddenly grew dark," said Steinhauer, "and I could hardly see where I was going, but I had to go somewhere and mighty quick to keep from being crushed by falling walls or hit by flying bricks or timbers.

"I saw a big automobile parked at the curb and I made a dive for it. I threw myself down on my stomach and crawled under the car where I thought I'd be fairly safe. But in a few seconds a 2x4 scantling came whizzing in under the car and struck me square across the face.

"I was dazed for a little while, but not very badly damaged. When the storm passed over I got up and helped to carry three bodies from ruins of houses."

William H. Buren, a railway postal clerk, was in his room in Lindell boulevard when the tornado came.

"First came a dash of rain that looked white like snow. Then came the furious blast of wind," he said. "I saw things flying through the air outside and backed myself up against the east wall of the room. The west wall of the house next door was blown down and a brick hurtled through my window, but missed me. The west wall of our house was blown down.

"A girl rooming above me had a piano which was turned upside down, but she was unhurt. Last April I missed the Poplar Bluff tornado by just four minutes, but I sure didn't miss this one."

Miss Ariel Cargo, superintendent of the Shriners' Crippled Children's Hospital on Kings highway, said:

"I saw a funnel-shaped cloud coming over Forest Park and knew that it was going to hit us. The roof was torn off the boys' ward on the north wing of the building, but none of the children was injured. The larger ones were frightened when they realized the severity of the storm, but the younger ones were very quiet. All the children were very well behaved during the storm."

THIS store's fashion leadership is again emphasized in Coat preparations for fall. The Coat as the basis of the wardrobe, the time when it has the widest appeal, the style and quality elements rightfully and naturally expected of Joseph Horne Co.---these have been the guiding factors in assembling the new collections.

Two outstanding price groups for women and misses have been concentrated upon, to give the best possible values obtainable. Varied selections, fine fur trimmings, superior fabrics, excellent tailoring to minutest details, characterize these coats.

The new flat-surfaced fabrics, in black and fashionable colors, have been used for the coats at both prices. Also in the misses' coats there are chic models of velveteen, some with tiny muffs to match the trimming furs. Twenty styles for women, in sizes 34 to 46; fifteen styles for misses, sizes 14 to 20.

$129.50

Furs have been employed to give luxurious effects—large shawl collars, Tuxedo collars, crush collars, Queen Elizabeth collars, and cuffs of varying depth. Beaver, caracul (Mongolian lamb), dyed squirrel, kit fox, black fox, Jap fox, fitch, wolf, skunk, lapin, and cat lynx, are furs included.

FREE NURSE IN GIRL'S DEATH

"LOVE MURDER" CHARGES FLOP

ENID, Okla., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Mary Atkinson, 26-year-old trained nurse, today was released from charges of poisoning Mary Jane Bailey, 15-year-old daughter of an Episcopal minister with whom she was infatuated.

David Popejoing, justice of peace, who presided over the nurse's preliminary hearing Wednesday and yesterday, ruled that evidence was insufficient to hold the nurse for trial in District Court.

After two days in which letters from Miss Atkinson to the gray-haired pastor had been introduced, along with testimony of two of the Bailey children to show her love for the minister, the preliminary hearing ended with a revised pathological report. It showed there was not enough poison in the viscera of Mary Jane Bailey, the dead girl, to cause death.

Admission that the viscera tests did not show poison came from Dr. W. H. Bailey, pathologist employed by the state, who testified that his preliminary findings indicated poison. A final exacting analysis, however, did not show sufficient poison to cause death, he said.

Harry O. Glasser, of counsel for Miss Atkinson, then issued a statement declaring "the state hasn't a leg to stand on."

"Turn her loose," was the cry through the crowded courtroom as the hearing ended.

BURGLARS LOOT HOME OF EAST END UNDERTAKER

Burglars ransacked the home of A. E. Harper, undertaker, 6315 Broad street, and stole a woman's fur coat and other apparel valued in all at $300, according to a report to city detectives. The family was away at the time.

STINSON GRANTED USE OF SELFRIDGE FIELD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The War Department has given Jack Stinson, Detroit, permission to use Selfridge Field, Michigan, in an effort to break the world airplane endurance flight now held by Clarence D. Chamberlin and Bert Acosta.

BROWNSVILLE BOY TRIES TO KILL SELF

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Recovering from a bullet wound in his left shoulder, self-inflicted in an attempt at suicide, Thomas Garney, Jr., 18, said today at a hospital here it was a mistake for anyone to attempt to take his life. Despondency arising from failure to find work prompted his act, Garney said.

A graduate of the Brownsville (Pa.) High School in 1925, the youth tried to get work in his home town, he said, and came to Detroit three months ago. He worked for two months in a restaurant and then lost his job. Unable to get another, he decided to end his life.

The youth said his father was a conductor for the Monongahela Railroad. His mother, Mrs. Katherine Garney, and a sister, Margaret, will arrive in Detroit Saturday to take him to Brownsville.

RAID VENANGO COUNTY ROADHOUSE; 6 ARRESTED

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 30.—Six were arrested in a surprise raid yesterday on the Robert Nugent House, Northern Venango county, by county authorities. Nugent was charged with possession of intoxicating liquor and was held for a further hearing. Three of the others paid $10 fines and two were sentenced to 30 days each in county jail.

PINT OF GIN SENDS MAN TO PRISON FOR LIFE

Possession of Liquor Construed as Felony

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 30.—Because he had a pint of gin in his home, Fred Palm, 29, today started to spend the rest of his life at hard labor in the state prison at Jackson.

He was the first man in whose case violation of the liquor law was construed as a felony for the purposes of Michigan's new criminal code which went into effect 25 days ago.

The code, modeled on the New York Baumes' laws, makes a life sentence mandatory after a fourth conviction of felony.

NOT DESPERATE CRIMINAL

Though Palm had given the police plenty of trouble, he never was regarded as a deperate criminal. Most of his offenses were against the prohibition act. He is a married man.

His last two offenses were linked. Arrested in July for the transportation of liquor, he skipped his $5,000 bond after arraignment. Police received word last week that he had returned home and it was while raiding his house to arrest him that the officers found the pint of gin.

He pleaded guilty to the transportation charge and was sentenced by Judge Leland W. Carr to a term of from six months to two years. He was arraigned immediately on the charge of possessing a pint of gin and again pleaded guilty.

Judge Carr questioned Palm as to his previous offenses, evidence of which was submitted by the prosecutor. Palm admitted them all, though the judge warned him that he faced a life sentence.

Palm had been convicted five times of felonies in the Ingham county courts. He also served a term in Leavenworth penitentiary for counterfeiting and a short term for a misdemeanor.

"Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced?" the judge asked.

Palm shook his head.

"The sentence of this court is that you be confined in the state prison at Jackson at hard labor for life," the judge said.

URGES SURVEY TO CONSERVE OIL SUPPLY

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—An appropriation to enable the Geological Survey and Bureau of Mines to make a comprehensive investigation of the oil conservation problem, will be demanded at the forthcoming session of Congress by Senator Tasker L. Oddie (Rep.) of Nevada, he announced.

"The problem of conserving the nation's oil supply for national defense and to keep the wheels of industry moving is one of the greatest issues facing the country today," said Senator Oddie, adding:

"Mining experts say that within 50 years there will be an acute shortage of oil. Without an oil supply under control of the United States our Navy would be impotent in war. Should a disaster occur our industries would be hard hit if they had to depend upon foreign sources of supply.

"The question is so broad and involves so many points of technical knowledge that I believe the first avenue of approach to a solution would be for the Geological Survey and Bureau of Mines to be given sufficient funds to obtain all the technical and economic data on the problem.

"A great amount of data was obtained by the United States Coal Commission for the information of Congress. Such a survey might well be made of the oil situation by competent persons."

Oddie is chairman of the Senate Committee on Mines and Mining.

HARRISON WOULD PAIR WITH WATSON

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Faced with reports that Senator Watson, Republican, of Indiana, undertreatment at the Mayo Institute, at Rochester, Minn., may not be able to attend the opening of the Senate, Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, has wired him that he would be pleased to pair with him in the vote on organization of the Senate.

Senator Harrison sent the message as he left Washington for his home in Mississippi.

His action was accepted as indication that the Democrats would not make a fight for control of the Senate committees and organization.

At Senator Watson's office here it was believed that Senator Watson will be fully restored to health by the time Congress reconvenes.

Drill Saves Pupils As Tornado Strikes

By Universal Service.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—How 700 pupils of the Columbia school escaped death when the building was wrecked by a tornado was told by G. H. Green, principal of the school. He said:

"I sounded a warning such as we use in case of fire and the children all walked out quickly to the corridors and marched out of the building in perfect order.

"Just as the last one stepped to safety the roof caved in and the third floor class rooms were buried beneath tons of debris."

$800,000 Institution to Aid Crippled Children

A new children's hospital to cost between $500,000 and $800,000 will be built in Pittsburgh within the next year and a half by the Ancient Arabic Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, it was announced today by H. E. Lunsford of Kansas City, general imperial auditor of the Shrine, who is attending the convention of the American Society of Certified Public Accountants.

The institution will be erected by the Imperial Council in recognition of the work of members of Syria Mosque and W. S. Brown, imperial treasurer for 35 years, Mr. Lunsford said.

The hospital will be erected on the old McClements property on Stanton Heights. The site has been purchased, but no definite plans have been made for starting work. The institution will adjoin the Stanton Heights Golf Club.

Children under 15 of all races and religion will be admitted to the hospital which will specialize in bone deforming diseases. The design will be similar to the 15 other institutions founded by the Shrine in cities throughout the country. The hospital will have a capacity of 50 beds.

"The Shrine," declared Mr. Lunsford, "is no longer the playground it was in the early days. It has become a serious philanthropic business organization whose chief mission is to bring aid and comfort to crippled children, and the Pittsburgh project is just another link in the movement to provide for these unfortunates all over the country."

Woman, 77, Says Film Kisses Too Long

By Universal Service.

WINNIMUCCA, Nev., Sept. 30.—Movie kisses are too frequent and too long drawn out, is the criticism of a maid of long ago, Mrs. Martha Jane Ransen, 77, who has just seen her first movie here.

Maybe "too long," but the osculations stirred Mrs. Ransen so that she couldn't sleep, according to friends, who declared the ranch woman was excited by the marvelous spectacle of people walking on the silver screen.

HUSBAND DEAD, ASKS DIVORCE BE SET ASIDE

By Universal Service.

DETROIT, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Amildred A. Olson petitioned the Circuit Court to set aside a divorce granted in 1925 to her husband, Raymond Olson, who is dead.

Olson died in 1925 and at his funeral Mrs. Olson met his second wife. It was then the first Mrs. Olson learned of the divorce.

Try Magnesia For Indigestion

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder of tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment, and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without fear of indigestion.

KLINE ORDERS VOTE GUNMEN RUN DOWN

"Neither the gunmen nor their associates can be shown any quarter," said Mayor Charles H. Kline today in announcing that he had instructed the police to redouble their efforts to bring to justice those responsible for the gun-play at the recent primary election.

"While they," the Mayor continued, "have been persistently at work in the matter, I have just emphasized to police that every force of the administration must be employed to apprehend and bring to justice all those concerned in the shooting, either directly or indirectly.

"The reputation of Pittsburgh and the lives of our citizens are at stake. This city cannot afford to show the slightest encouragement to such outlaw practices. The probe must be sunk deep. There must be no letup. The police must follow relentlessly every clue that will disclose evidence of complicity on the part of anyone."

The Mayor added that, while the occurrences were disgraceful, "some future good might be attained if they led us to set ourselves resolutely to the task of serving notice that Pittsburgh is an unhealthy place for hired killers." He said that in the investigation the administration would take "whatever decisive and drastic action is necessary."

CHURCH HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

Open house will be observed at the Recreation Hall in Mifflin avenue Methodist Episcopal Church of Wilkinsburg tonight. Residents of the community, whether members of the church or not, will be welcomed and a program of entertainment has been arranged for the occasion.

James C. Mace, religious secretary of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., will speak, and Dr. D. Willard Flint, chairman of the recreational committee, will turn over the keys to H. M. Springer, recently appointed supervisor of the hall.

Mr. Springer will be assisted in class work by Ruth Buckwalter, a student at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

FIFTH DUVALL AID INDICTED

By International News Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—Indictment of Virgil Vandagriff, president of the Indianapolis Board of Public Works, was returned today by the Marion county grand jury on a charge of violation of the state security law through sale of stock in an electric oil well rejuvenator company.

Vandagriff is the fifth official of the administration of Mayor John L. Duvall to face charges, filed either by the jury or prosecuting attorneys.

FREE METHODISTS ASSIGN NEW DISTRICT ORDERS

OIL CITY, Pa., Sept. 30.—District orders were asigned last night at the convention of the Oil City Free Methodist Conference being held here. F. W. McClelland was assigned to the Tyrone and Dubois district; W. J. Barkos to Bradford; A. J. Beatty to Erie and A. J. Sill to Oil City. The Rev. T. S. Simpson of Pittsburgh had charge of last night's song service, Bishop Sellew of Jamestown, senior bishop of the church will preach the sermon tonight.

GROVE CITY OIL MAN WINS RUM TERM STAY

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 30.—M. E. Eakin, Grove City oil operator, escaped starting his seven-months' sentence in the Allegheny county workhouse for violating the liquor laws when a petition for a writ of supersedeas was served by his attorneys. The Superior Court will re-

SMOKE GIVES ALARM OF ALTOONA ROBBERS

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 30.—Smoke, pouring from the I. Marcus jewelry store early today, brought police hurrying to the scene and scared away bandits, who had fired open the safe, no richer but wiser.

Pa. Judges To Get Special Auto Tags

HARRISBURG, Sept. 30.—Judges and legislators each will have a special class of automobile license tag, it was announced today by the State Highway Department.

The letter "J" will precede the license number for judges, "L" will be used to disgnate members of the Legislature.

GARY SCHOOL STRIKE ENDS

GARY, Ind., Sept. 30.—(INS.)—Gary's school strike ended today when 1,500 students voted to return to classes following promises of the City Council that 24 Negro students would be housed in temporary quarters in a portable school within 30 days.

The action of the board was seen as a complete victory of the students who marched, cheered and yelled their approval. Segregation of the Negro students in classes will be sought immediately, it was announced.

The students officially accepted the new terms at a mass meeting in the school auditorium today.

Police guard of the Negro sections of Gary to prevent disorder was withdrawn and the Steel City settled to normalcy.

The City Council agreed at its next meeting to pass an ordinance appropriating $15,000 for equipment and teachers for the temporary school and also agreed upon a campaign to appropriate $2,000,000 for a Negro school to be constructed within two years, to house all colored students in the city of Gary.

DRIVER HELD AS AUTO KILLS BOY

James Duffy, 515 Maple street, East Pittsburgh, is being held for the coroner as the result of the death in Braddock General Hospital of Samuel Tarranova, 3, of 1409 Bell avenue, North Braddock, one hour after he is said to have been struck yesterday by an automobile driven by Duffy. The driver stated that the child ran in front of the machine in Bell avenue.

Russell Hunter, 2, of 434 Seventh avenue, West Homestead, was treated at Homestead Hospital for lacerations of the scalp suffered when he was struck near his home by an automobile driven by Leo Lardor, 263 Glass Run road, Hays.

Firemen, summoned to Hamilton and North Dallas avenues to extinguish a burning automobile and a truck after they had crashed, arrested Franklin Woodson, 21, Negro, as the driver of the automobile which, they say, was stolen from Paul Goldstrom, 532 Dewey street, Etna. Two other Negroes escaped. The truck was owned by G. R. Sythers, Jackson street.

Police are holding Frank Jones, 20, of 3472 McClure avenue and Frank Cuda, 23, of 20 Overbrook street pending investigation of the alleged attempt by Jones to start an automobile parked in Third avenue and owned by William Madden, 1708 Oakgrove street, Swissvale.

Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh has ordered all trucks standing in the street overnight towed to a city garage. The trucks, whether they show lights or not, are a menace to traffic, the superintendent said, and if they are towed in the owners will not be allowed to claim them until they appear in Traffic Court.

TRUCK AND AUTO CRASH; 3 HURT

Three men were injured, one seriously, in a collision of a Schwartz Baking Company truck and an automobile at Northumberland street and Squirrel Hill avenue this morning. Nathan Lerose, 36, 1841 Bedford avenue, helper on the truck, is in the Homeopathic Hospital suffering from a probable skull fracture and lacerations. Benjamin Rice, 25, 232 Dinwiddie street, driver of the truck, and Raymond Bowman, 25, 5325 Northumberland street, whose car was hit by the truck, were cut by glass and bruised. Rice and Bowman were arrested, charged with reckless driving.

WINS $25,000 AFTER DEATH

A posthumous award of $25,000 was made by a jury in Common Pleas Court this morning to E. E. Evans of Oakmont against the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Evans, who suffered injuries resulting in the loss of a leg while he was attempting to board a train at Barking, died since he instituted his damage suit.

The accident occurred December 19, 1924, when, it is alleged, the train started before Evans had mounted the rear platform. Evans leaves a daughter, Mrs. Ethel I. Phillips.

HUNT MOTHER, DAUGHTER

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 30.—Police are investigating the disappearance of Mrs. Anna Evans, 32, and her daughter, Margaret, 9, who have been missing from home since Tuesday. The husband, George Evans, says that his wife had $2,500 in cash at the time.

Relatives of the woman advanced an abduction theory, but this is ridiculed by the husband. Police believe domestic trouble was responsible for her leaving home.

HUSBAND LIKES LIQUOR ONLY, WIFE SAYS, SUING

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Sept. 30.—Charging that her husband, John S. Kalt, Midvale, finds his only source of enjoyment in drinking, that he is a nagger and crabbed, Mrs. Sarah E. Kalt has sued him for divorce.

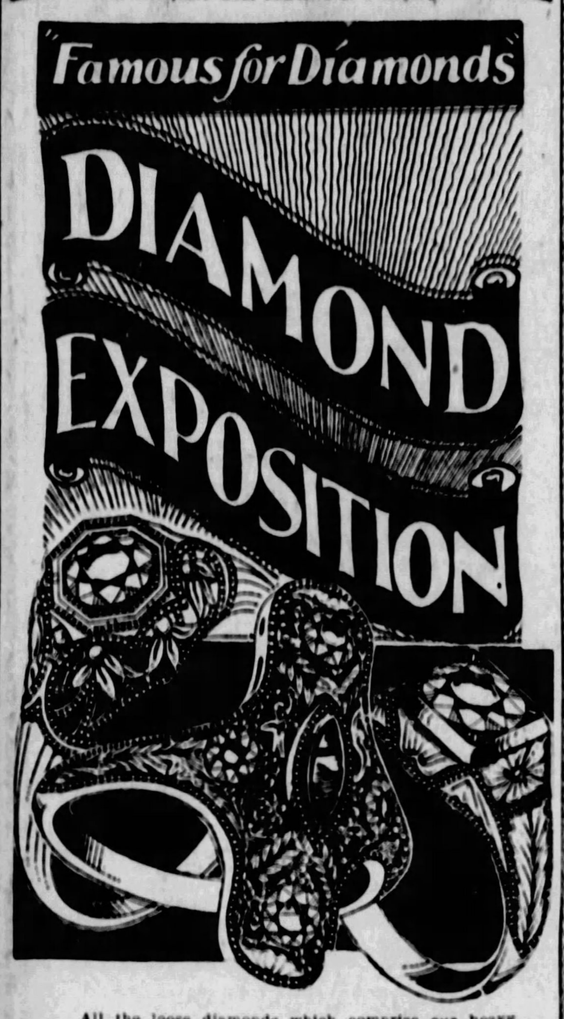
DIAMOND EXPOSITION



All the loose diamonds which comprise our heavy direct importations from the foreign markets this season have been mounted and divided equally between our two stores—602 LIBERTY AVENUE and 408 SMITHFIELD STREET.

They are now on display awaiting your inspection. These diamonds were selected for their color, perfection and brilliancy. We have tried to use only perfect gems. As a result we are in position to guarantee very great values to our customers. Also to give you credit which will make it easier for you to purchase a larger stone. You know we are not like other credit jewelers. We charge nothing for the credit-privilege here.

Hits Beauties

MRS. TERESA MOLAMPHY

The president of the Pittsburgh Chapter, National Council of Catholic Women, was among those who denounced beauty contests and semi-nude bathing pageants, at the Washington, D. C., convention of the council's Girls' Welfare section.

2 THIEVES GIVEN PENITENTIARY SENTENCES

Sentence of three to six years in the Western Penitentiary was imposed by Judge Harry H. Rowand yesterday in Criminal Court upon Nathanial Hall, Negro, of 720 Agnes street, Swissvale, who pleaded guilty to burglary in breaking into the house of Mrs. Rathel Hoffman, 2115 Monongahela avenue, Swissvale, July 14, and carrying away valuables. Roosefelt Carey, Negro, of the same address, was convicted by a jury of receiving part of the stolen goods, and was given three to six months in the county jail.

Joseph Narr, of 123 West Ohio street, North Side, was sentenced to two to four years in the Western Penitentiary by Judge James R. Macfarlane after pleading guilty to breaking into the drug store of Charles W. Davis, 405 Federal street, August 5, and taking $14 in cash and razor blades. He had been paroled by Mayor Charles H. Kline, then a judge, on another charge, with a penitentiary sentence fixed for a violation of parole.

SUES FOR FIGHT FILMS RETURN

By Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—A move has been launched by attorneys for the Capitol Theater for the recovery of the Dempsey-Tunney prize fight films seized by Federal agents when the motion picture house was raided and eight members of its staff arrested.

Their plea is based on the contention that the law prohibiting interstate transportation and showing of fight pictures covered only the original negatives, and not copies.

"We had nothing to do with the transportation of the films," said Joseph E. Connolly, attorney for the theater. "Our reels were shipped to us from Los Angeles, and were perhaps tenth or twelfth copies of the original negatives taken at Chicago. We have requested the United States attorney to accord us the same treatment here as theaters at Los Angeles and elsewhere have received, namely, to permit us to go on with the exhibition pending determination of the issue."

FLIER KILLED AT NEW CASTLE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—One man was killed and two injured when an airplane, used for exhibition flights, went into a tail spin and crashed near here late yesterday.

Kenneth Smith, 55, of New Castle, a passenger, was killed; Clarence Martin, 22, also of New Castle, and William Cassell, of Youngstown, O., pilot of the plane were injured.

With Martin and Smith as his passengers, Cassell took off for an exhibition flight. The plane reached a height of about 500 feet, witnesses said, when the engine began to miss. Cassell tried to bring the plane back to the landing field but it went into a tail spin.

FLAMES MENACE PARK AT DERRY

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Ridgeview Park, summer resort near Derry, was threatened with destruction when fire destroyed the home of Supt. E. D. Peck with $8,000 loss.

Believing his wife and child trapped in the building, Peck dashed into the house and was rescued with difficulty. The family had been away. Firemen saved Grandview Hotel and other cottages.

TOMORROW is the day when the Jonasson coat selection will be at its height. All this week new models have been arriving to bring this about.

Luxuriously furred styles displaying deep collars, cuffs and borders of Fitch-dyed Skunk, Fox, Squirrel, Beaver, Wolf and other furs. The new Paquin collar that rolls away from the face—the jabot front—the side flare—uneven applications of fur on the hemline, that throws the balance to one side—all are exploited in this comprehensive showing of new fashions.

Newtan and Black are the foremost of the colors—Pineneedle, and Muscova Greens and Oporto Wine are also very popular. The fabrics are Malina, Malta, Velveteen and Dovebloom. Sizes 14 to 48.

CHICAGO SCHOOL HEAD GOES ON TRIAL

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—A white-haired old man is on trial here because he is alleged to have taught the children of Chicago things un-American and pro-British. He is William H. McAndrew, superintendent of schools, whom Mayor William Hale Thompson swore to oust during his recent campaign for mayor.

The trial was opened before the school board, when attorneys presented 16 additional charges against him, half of them telling of his pro-British tactics. The others were based on insubordination.

The additional charges included those that McAndrew had removed from school walls a picture of the painting "The Spirit of '76," insisted on using Muzzey's History of the United States, which teaches that the Continental Congress was a gathering of pettifogging attorneys and mechanics.

The remainder of the charges were based on insubordination to the school board in his conduct of the school office. The original charges, on which he now stands suspended as head of the school system also were based on insubordination to the school board.

McAndrew lost his plea to speed the trial and the trial was postponed for a week after a four-hour session.

Chicago is trying to cure its criminals. Police are experimenting with strange results. Read about it in the Magazine Section, Sunday Sun-Tele.

In for Big Things, He Carts Away House

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—When a Tampa property holder investigated a report that thieves were stealing rich muck soil from one of his home sites he discovered the loss of a big, two-story frame structure on the land.

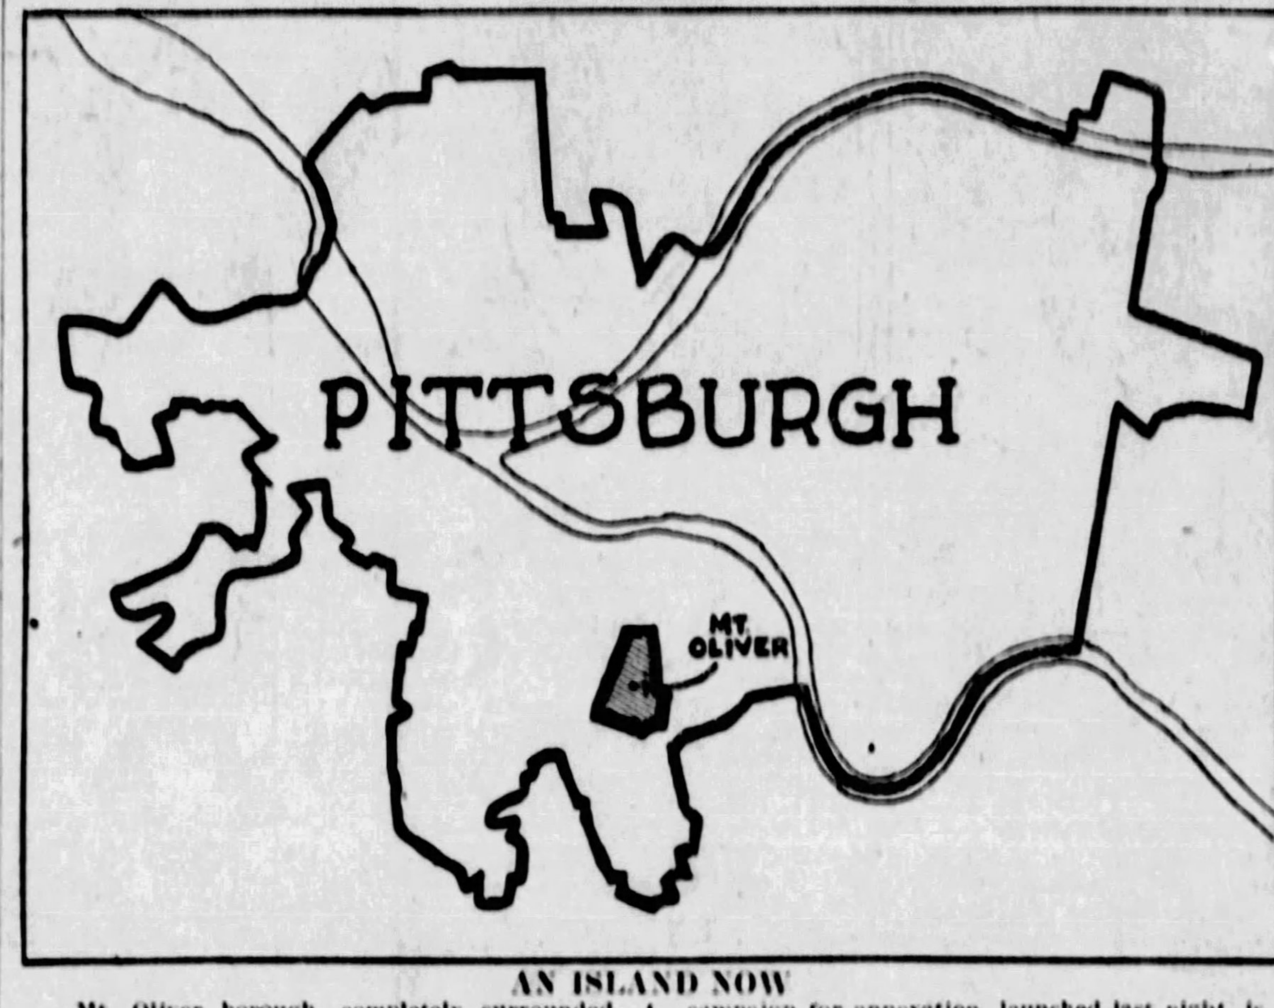
The house was found by deputy sheriffs yesterday about 10 blocks from its original foundation. It was newly painted and beautified by fancy pillars, with flowers in the front yard.

P. G. Waldron, the property owner, identified the house and started action with Solicitor Chancey to effect its removal to its former location.

The family occupying the dwelling gave Waldron the name of the man to whom the rent was paid. This individual in turn admitted that the house was given to him a year ago by another man, now in Europe.

"When it was given to me I moved it with the help of a Negro at night, because I have a regular job in the day," the man declared. "We just rolled it along and set it up."

NEXT TO BE ANNEXED?



AN ISLAND NOW

Mt. Oliver borough, completely surrounded by city wards as a result of the recent annexation of Knoxville and Carrick may become the city's Thirty-first Ward. A secretly planned campaign for annexation, launched last night, is said to have revealed a strong sentiment in favor of uniting with the city.

The Standard Charger for "A" batteries is Balkite

The accepted radio "A" power supply is an "A" storage battery and charger. The standard charger is Balkite. 750,000 are today in use.

This overwhelming popularity is based on performance. The Balkite Charger has no tubes, nothing to burn out or replace. It is a permanent piece of equipment.

The Balkite Charger is noiseless in operation. In most cases it can be used during reception. This makes possible continuous or trickle charging. With a Balkite Charger on trickle charge your "A" battery is always at full power. And the evaporation of liquid acts as an automatic cut-off, shutting off the charger and protecting your battery from overcharging—a feature exclusive with Balkite. Ask your dealer.

INSTANT CLEANSING LATHER leaps from this soap
......even in cold water

COLD WATER deadens the lather of most soaps. But that's not true of Octagon Toilet Soap. This glistening white soap leaps to lather instantly, even when the water is cold. There's proof for you that Octagon is the freest-lathering—quickest-cleansing soap you can buy for use in the warm water you use daily. Octagon's rich cocoanut oil content makes this soap lather fast. It cleans fast, too, in any water. It removes every trace of soil—yet it is kind to tender skins. The long-lasting, large-size Octagon cake costs only ten cents. You'll like to use it for its lather-cleansing qualities—its fresh whiteness—its delicate scent. And you'll like the premiums you can get with Octagon coupons. You'll find a coupon on the wrapper of each cake of Octagon Toilet Soap.

REPORT 'KIP' TO SEEK RENO DIVORCE

By CLEM WHITAKER.
International News Service Special Correspondent.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 30.—Like stars that shoot across the sky, lending an added touch of brilliance to the heavens, the great and the near great pass through Reno's divorce mill, each having his brief spot "in the sun" in this haven of the disillusioned.

Today the divorce colony's "first citizen," socially speaking, is Cornelius Vanderbilt, scion of one of America's wealthiest families and erstwhile publisher of tabloid newspapers in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Miami.

Yesterday it was the famous Mrs. Walter S. Ward, of New York.

Tomorrow, says Dame Rumor, it will be Kip Rhinelander, coming with his mood color line to add a bit of radiance to the divorce settlement. Kip, who lost the judge's decision in the "colorful" battle of White Plains, N. Y., is reputed to have booked lodgings at one of Reno's "dude ranches" in the back country.

VANDERBILT THERE TOO

Young Vanderbilt, whose newspaper slogan was "The Public Be Served," has modified his motto somewhat. With only 30 days to go, he's preparing to serve his wife with divorce papers.

Vanderbilt is not found at Reno's gambling tables or its night clubs. On the other hand, he makes hay while the divorce germinates, writing a series of articles on Reno for a magazine.

Unlike many of the fashionable divorce hunters who make their headquarters in Reno apartments or at the new Riverside Hotel, Vanderbilt is located at the Hi-West "dude ranch" near Pyramid Lake.

When he goes to Reno for a visit, the greater part of his time is spent at one of the newspaper offices.

"Taking the cure," as getting divorced is characterized in Reno, is not confined to the rich, nor any class. Some 40 per cent of the group seeking severance of the marital knot might be classed as moderately wealthy, according to those who cater to the divorce hunters. The balance fall into that class designated as average American citizens, persons dependent on their earnings.

The industrious, ambitious youth who "works his way through college" has his counterpart here in the disillusioned wife or husband "working his way through the mill," as the initiated term it.

BOTANICAL SOCIETY TO TAKE BLOOM HUNT TRIP

Leaving Pittsburgh shortly before 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the Botanical Society of Western Pennsylvania will journey to Groveton for a field trip in search of rare and beautiful autumn blooms. The trip to Groveton will be made on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, leaving Pittsburgh at 12:50 o'clock and returning at 6:30. C. E. Jennings will lead the expedition.

CAPT. EBENEZER KLINE, VETERAN RIVERMAN, DIES

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 30.—Capt. Ebenezer Kline, 77, well known among steamboatmen on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, is dead at his home here. He had been master of the Betsy Ann, Senator Cordill, General Wood and other steamers operating out of Pittsburgh.

PARROT, 37, DIES; COULD CALL FAMILY BY NAMES

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 30.—"Bob," a green parrot, owned by Mrs. J. W. Norris, died yesterday at the age of 37. The parrot was an unusually good talker. He could call the members of the family and their friends by name.

SMITH'S PRESIDENTIAL BOOM KEPT IN STORAGE

New York Democrats Also Silent on Booze

By CHARLES S. HAND,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

ALBANY, Sept. 30.—Although originally intent on acclaiming Gov. Smith the next President, more than 1,000 delegates to the Democratic state convention here yesterday studiously refrained from even cheering him as the next White House occupant.

They had been advised the Governor's political handlers deemed it in the best interests of his national aspirations to confine the convention's business purely to matters and issues which concern the state.

Smith's presidential prospects were not referred to by a single speaker. The Governor himself, although he talked for 52 minutes and was cheered repeatedly, never referred, even in a veiled way, to what the future, more particularly 1928, holds for him politically. Not a delegate asked for a cheer for "the next President."

Moreover, the convention nominated Judge John F. O'Brien for associate judge of the Court of Appeals and went through the time-honored routine without adopting a platform or even receiving a resolution from the floor pledging liberalization of the Volstead Act or repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The overzealous wets were admonished to discard their plan to force consideration of a wet resolution. They obeyed. No mention was made of the public's craving for light wines and beers, as has invariably been the case at Democratic state gatherings during the last nine years.

It was Smith's desire and that of the Democratic leaders who took stock of his presidential outlook at the Executive Mansion before the convention that this course be followed. And the delegates, bending to the appeals of Tammany Leader Olvany, McCoey, of Brooklyn, Flynn, of the Bronx, and other Democratic sachems, squelched their impulse to foreshadow Smith's nomination for the presidency in speech and demonstration.

The Governor, in his address, drew many laughs by repeatedly challenging Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who makes the Republican keynote speech at Rochester today.

Tammany Stigma on Smith, Says T. R., Jr.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Recognizing that Gov. Alfred E. Smith may be a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the presidency next year, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, as temporary chairman of the Republican state convention here today, warned his party that it must exert every effort to "dispel the shadow of Tammany Hall that lies athwart the White House."

"The eyes of the country are turned to New York at this time," he said. "If we fail in our mission of increasing our Republican majority in the Legislature the country will say, 'New York is Tammanyfied. She wishes to see in the White House Gov. Smith, with the shadow of Fourteenth street resting across him.' We must not permit such an assumption.

"Suppose a Smith fiscal policy had been carried on by the Republicans at Washington during the last seven years? How long would our prosperity have endured?

"It would have crumbled in a year and bread lines would be standing where automobiles are now parked."

Col. Roosevelt criticised the Governor's advocacy of bond issues for the financing of public improvement, as against the payment of expenses from current revenues as desired by the Republicans.

The colonel referred to the South and Negroes as follows:

"At this moment the leader of the Democratic party in this state aspires to be the nominee of that party for the presidency. He has professed that he is the friend of the Negroes in this state. If there is sincerity in this profession he should at once publicly demand of his national party justice for the Negroes in the South. He will not do this, because he does not wish to offend the southern delegates whose votes at the convention he wants."

MILLION TOURISTS VISIT TOMB OF HARDINGS

MARION, O., Sept. 29.—In the past three years a million tourists have visited the tomb of President and Mrs. Warren Harding here, according to a check made by guardsmen at the tomb.

Lot on Dividing Lines Causes Zone Mixup

May a building, to be located on a corner lot of a block in a commercial district, within a fourth area zoning district, be built out to the front line of each intersecting street, where the entire frontage of the streets on which such building is located is not a commercial district?

That is a question which the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania had before it yesterday when the appeal of Bernard Alpern from the decision of the Board of Appeals of the Zoning Commission of the City of Pittsburgh, was heard by the court. The property in question is situated in Baum boulevard and extends along South Atlantic avenue for a distance of 129 feet with a frontage of 40 feet in the former thoroughfare.

When the case was before the Board of Appeals the board ruled that it would be an unnecessary hardship upon the applicants, Page & Lawler, to compel them to build a salesroom to conform to the 20-foot setback from South Atlantic avenue as required by the zoning ordinance, as this would leave a lot of only 10 feet in width to be built upon.

Simon T. Patterson and J. B. Alpern are the attorneys for the appellants and F. C. McGirr for the intervening applies and the decision of the court, it is stated, will have far-reaching effect on districts such as this case involves.

Odd Hobby of a Frenchman

A FRENCHMAN from Rouen is said to follow the peculiar hobby of embroidering egg shells. From 600 to 2,000 holes are made in each shell. One egg shell will sometimes take one and a half years to complete and costs $1,000.

HOW TO KEEP WELL
by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

IT was said by one of old: "The beauty of a young man is his youth, of an old man his gray hair." The trouble is we are living in such a young world that nobody wants to be old. Certainly nobody wants to have gray hair.

DR. COPELAND

When I have seen a friend turn from the folly of dyeing the hair and have observed the softened features and the increased beauty, I have wondered how anybody could resort to dyes and stains. They fool nobody but the poor soul who seeks to deceive.

Hair and teeth and finger nails have the same physical origin. I have long observed that persons with soft white teeth are likely to have premature grayness of the hair. There may be no scientific foundation for this suggestion, but it is not unreasonable.

We have a number of glands, about which little is known. They are called the "ductless glands," and their mission is vitally important. That much is believed. It may well be that their failure to function properly has something to do with early grayness of the hair.

Not long ago I told you something about the blood. This fluid carries nourishment to every cell of the body. Likewise, it carries away the waste of these cells. But, in addition, the blood is a sort of messenger boy, running errands between this part of the body and that.

Among such duties, it is probable the blood carries the products of one ductless gland to all the others. It may well be that they do not do their best work without getting regular supplies from each other. Delayed action on the part of one may lower the activity of all.

The highest welfare of the body demands that all the ductless glands shall operate on full time. When they don't we have early signs of what we call "old age." These may not be serious, but at least they give warning of the wearing out process. That is why we get gray hair, I suppose.

I wish I could discover a medicine that would prevent worrying. My, wouldn't it sell!

But we have will-power, common sense and the knowledge of how to live. Why not apply these? Almost always worry is founded on indigestion or some other disturbance with the digestive organs. The first step in getting rid of worry is to be physically fit. Then there will be no excuse for permitting the mind to roam off into unpleasant fields.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, October 1

Men are sometimes masters of their fate.—SHAKESPEARE.

AN INFLUENCE tending to frustrate and postpone may be noticeable on this day owing to the active position of Saturn, manifesting in business as well as personal interests. It may be difficult to make much headway, and also there may be menaces from deceit or treachery.

Sign papers with care and do not be rash with money outlay. Safeguard domestic and affectional ties. Likewise, protect the health of self and family.

Those whose birthday it is may find the year beset with delays and obstructions difficult to surmount in business and personal matters. Beware duplicity, protect the health and safeguard affectional ties.

A child born on this day may incline to serious things or church affairs. It may require a training to fit it to overcome stubborn obstacles in life.

What's the Answer?

1. Who is Frederick A. Sterling?
2. What do the Dutch plan to do to the Zuyder Zee?
3. What is the best harbor in the United States?
4. What is the "seventh continent"?
5. Which trees are more often struck by lightning, those with smooth bark, or those with rough bark?
6. What is the world's highest dam?
7. What is ammonia?
8. What is the meaning of the name of the island of Porto Rico?
9. What is a tortilla?
10. What is the meaning of the word "laity"?

The answers to these questions may be found in Monday's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions.

1. Helen Wills is called "Little Miss Poker Face."
2. Dr. Chaim Weizmann of London is president of the Zionist movement.
3. The sulphur-bottom, or blue back whale, is supposed to be the largest animal which has ever lived on earth.
4. Brontides are muffled detonations, resembling the sound of distant cannon or peals of thunder, heard chiefly in warm, clear weather. They are probably caused by slight movements of rocks, or sounds of thunder, cannonading, blasting, etc., heard at abnormal distances because of the refraction of sound waves by the atmosphere.
5. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia recently made the statement that we have no geniuses today.
6. An oryx is an African antelope.
7. Devil's Island is one of the three Iles du Salut, near French Guiana. It is used by the French as a place of exile for political offenders.
8. The border between Canada and the United States is 3,900 miles long.
9. "Aerodyne" is a word recently coined by the British air ministry to replace the words "heavier than air" in describing any flying craft which derives its support dynamically from the reaction on surfaces in motion.
10. The four basic tastes are "sweet," "sour," "salt," "peppery."

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN
by HELEN ROWLAND

THE "NERVES" YOU HEAR ABOUT

IF IT weren't for a woman's "nerves," where would a man find his alibis?

Woman's nerves! There is nothing else in the world with which a man is so tenderly sympathetic.

"Oh, the Wiff had a touch of nerves, this morning," he will confide to you, with an expression of solemn concern.

* * *

Meaning, probably, that after she had called him seven times, and made fresh toast, and warmed over the chops, and reheated the coffee, and waited, and waited and waited—and waited—for him to get up, she had a fit of hysteria.

HELEN ROWLAND

It's woman's "nerves" that make her too "impatient" to endure having the newspaper retailed aloud to her in scraps and snatches, every morning.

* * *

It's her "nerves" that drive her to unreasonable desperation when she is all dressed for dinner, and the guests are arriving, and the soup is getting cold, and her husband is still in the shower bath.

* * *

It's her "nerves" that make her protest against going to a jazzy-razzy restaurant, where they serve whistles and cowbells instead of food.

* * *

It's her "nerves" that send her into a weeping fit, when she has been sitting in a corner all evening watching her husband make calves' eyes at another woman.

* * *

It's her "nerves" that make her angry when she can't have a new hat, because you lost the money at poker or backed the wrong horse.

* * *

It's her "nerves" that plunge a girl into melancholia or drive her to cynicism when she has been waiting five years for a man to ask her to marry him.

A woman never has any moods, opinions, reasons, feelings—she is never disappointed, or angry, or weary, or blue, or discouraged, or indignant. Not justifiably so, anyway.

She is never anything except "nervous!"

And a man's patience with a woman's nerves is positively sublime!

Make Your Kuppenheimer Choice Saturday
Suits and Topcoats
$40 $50 $60

Style-informed men choose Kuppenheimer clothing as a matter of habit—their appreciation is based on the correct, sure styling that is a foremost attribute of this fine make. And men who are keen on quality make the same choice because quality is stitched in every seam of Kuppenheimer clothing.

Harmonizing Shades for the New Fall Ensembles

Suits and topcoats for the present season may match, may nearly match or may contrast—but the smarter men prefer the blending shades. Topcoats are in angular box styles and in flowing raglan lines—suits are more free in drape and divide favor with both two and three-button models. The best shades are those browns, tans and greys in close alliance with Fall's own hues.

IN THE PREP SHOP

New "Sampeck" Suits
(Two-Trouser Models)
$35 $40 $45

A department selling young men's clothes exclusively—our Prep Shop—presents new, well-varied displays of suits that high school and college students choose for their own. Every fabric, every pattern is carefully chosen to meet a collegian's preferences.

The Most Popular Models and Shades—Sizes 31 to 38

"SAMPECK" suits are styled for young men of particular tastes—the coat and trouser lines are a bit more swanky, a bit less restricted than ordinary suits. And the shades, the patternings are smartly suited to their purpose.

There's practical economy in choosing a two-trouser suit, too, particularly if it's a "SAMPECK."
(Prep Shop—Second Floor)

The "Style Bourne"—a New Fall Collegiate Hat

So smart, so distinctive in its styling that you'd hesitate to hazard at its price being only $5. A curl brim type with three shades of grey and four shades of brown to answer your need of variety. There are also other styles quite as pleasing in their graceful shapes and new lines—the whole "Collegiate" variety being the largest, the finest we have ever yet displayed. Collegiate hats are sold at Kaufmann's exclusively in Pittsburgh.

The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson

Wilson Rises To Leadership In College

Personal Power of Wilson Recognized by His College Mates — His Leadership and Humanness.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER.

The life of Wilson at Princeton, described in yesterday's installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" in the Sun-Telegraph, was preparatory to the engrossing revelation of the development of his leadership that is made today.

Interest in Politics

IT WAS not merely from books that stimulation came to the young student. He had before his very eyes one of the great dramas of American political life. In November, 1876—the year he was a sophomore—came the Hayes-Tilden election with its indeterminate result made spectacular by the staging of the struggle in the halls of Congress and the whole vast dust of discussion of constitutional machinery which arose out of it. We know that the issues were hotly discussed among the students, and that to many an ardent young Democrat the seating of Hayes in preference to Tilden seemed a deliberate flouting of the will of the people.

To Wilson the complications and uncertainties of the American system, the rigidity of our constitutional division of authority, added new fuel to his interest in the older British parliamentary method of responsible leadership. More than one thoughtful student of public affairs in those times, viewing the demoralization of Grant's administration and the breakdown of our electoral system in the Hayes-Tilden contest that followed so close upon it, wondered, as young Wilson was beginning to wonder, whether the system should not be radically changed. Moreover there seemed an appalling decline in American leadership. The giants of other days were gone—Webster, Calhoun, Clay—to say nothing of the mighty fathers who made the nation. It was a time when little men were bickering about great things: whereas England had her Gladstone and Disraeli, and Germany her Bismarck. There are many evidences that Wilson, the sophomore, thought deeply upon this contrast, tried to find a reason for it. During a long walk in the country he propounded this question to a classmate, Hiram Woods:

"Have you ever thought of the reason for the decline of American oratory?"

Found Oratory Waning

He went on with a kind of passion of interest to inquire why America no longer produced Patrick Henrys, Websters, Clays, Calhouns; and then developed the idea which was later to become a keynote of his political writing, that it was due to the deadening mechanism of committee government in Congress. In England great leadership, great oratory, could survive because issues were fought out on the floor of the Commons and governments rose or fell by virtue of the force of its leaders as orators and debaters, but in America everything was cut and dried beforehand by decisions formed behind the closed doors of committee rooms. This germinal idea was to develop during the next two years and issue, while he was a senior, in an article of extraordinary maturity and power called "Cabinet Government in the United States" which was published August, 1879, in what was then perhaps the foremost American journal, "The International Review."

It is interesting in this connection, that the junior editor of "The International Review," to whom Wilson submitted his article, was Henry Cabot Lodge. It was also to form the basis of his first and most original book, "Congressional Government;" and when he became President of the United States it was to prompt him to break the tradition of generations and appear in person to deliver his messages to Congress.

The results of Wilson's intellectual awakening—his new "coming to himself"—were as definite and immediate as in his previous religious awakening. It was not enough to read of orators and oratory, not enough to enjoy the sentimental thrill of other men's triumphs: he must himself become an orator.

One must not be content merely to read about debating and writing; one must actually debate and write. We find young Wilson, therefore, active in the Whig Society—never to win the prizes, but to secure the discipline. March 23, 1877: "T. Wilson spoke on 'The Enchantment of Ideas.'" October 17, 1877: "T. Wilson supports the affirmative in a debate on the subject 'That a liberal education is to be preferred to an exclusively practical one.' The affirmative wins." December 6, 1877: "T. W. Wilson, North Carolina, spoke on 'Bismarck.'" February 1, 1878: "T. W. Wilson was elected speaker of the Whig Society"—its highest honor. May 24, 1878: "Wilson supports the affirmative in a debate, 'That a protective tariff is now no longer necessary for the protection of our home industries.' The affirmative wins." All along he makes a strong impression of power upon his fellow students. One of them remembers that "he steadily grew in the estimation of his fellow members until he was recognized as the best debater in it—always with full and ready knowledge of the question and with unequaled facility in clear expression. He was especially effective in extemporaneous debate."

Organized Debating Club

But even this training was not sufficient. He wanted more debating, and moreover, since he had become profoundly interested in the British parliamentary system, he wanted to make a laboratory test of it. We find him, therefore, organizing a Liberal Debating Club among a group of his class-mates. The constitution, written out, indeed entirely composed, by young Wilson himself, is still in existence. "This society shall be known as the Liberal Debating Club and shall be founded upon the fundamental principles of Justice, Morality and Friendship. . . . The members of this club shall form a brotherhood and shall be expected to assist and encourage each other in every possible way." The officers were Charles Talcott, of New York, president, and Thomas W. Wilson, of North Carolina, secretary of state. The secretary of state was prime minister, with far more powers and responsibilities than the president. Bills were to be presented and debated, and the secretary of state and his "government" could be "sustained" or "turned out" exactly as in the British Parliament. The club had a vigorous life, and even collected quite a library, including, somewhat paradoxically, Shakespeare's plays, which were sometimes read aloud and discussed.

It was not only as an orator and debater that he sought to prepare himself; the speaker must also "know the world of men and affairs." We find him, therefore, following ardently the political events in his own country and in Europe. He read persistently the best newspapers and most thoughtful magazines—"The New York Evening Post," "The Nation" and the best English journals. His essays of the time have often a topical reference that shows how fresh and clear his knowledge was of "the world of men and affairs."

His interest is never merely in the news, nor yet in the personalities of the leaders, though leadership was one of his supreme concerns, but in trying to hammer out the meaning of these men and their policies in terms of statesmanship and in the development of government. We find this youth of 20 forging a definition of the statesman: "Men of independent conviction, full of self-trust, and themselves the spirit of their country's institutions." And he defines statesmanship "as being that resolute and vigorous advance toward the realization of high, definite and consistent aims which issues from the unreserved devotion of a strong intellect to the service of the state and to the solution of all the multiform problems of public policy."

Student of Statesmanship

He must also know the backgrounds of political institutions. In October, 1877, in his junior year, he discovers Green's "Short History of the English People" and devours it with delight. He writes in "The Princetonian" of its "overmastering charm" and recommends it eagerly to all of his friends. The actual volume he read from, now faded and worn, remains still in his library. It bears his signature and the date, October, 1877, and it is minutely underscored and annotated. What he got out of it was an idea that influenced him powerfully throughout his career that American history was only a further development of English history—a passing on of the great principles of democratic government.

All this added powerfully to his interest in the British system and in the great tradition of the English race. His commencement address the following year, indeed, was on the subject "Our Kinship With England."

Another notable result followed upon these studies. He formed the grand idea of writing some time a similar history of the American people, which later he was to realize. He was fired with an intense desire to begin at once and took long walks about the Princeton countryside, which is unusually rich in historical associations connected with the Revolutionary War campaigns of George Washington. Passages in his "Life of George Washington" and other writings read as though they came fresh minted from personal contact with the very localities.

So the young man "came to himself," "took his education into his own hands." As he said of Bismarck, "the singleness of his aim . . . concentrated his powers," and he felt with Pitt "the concentrating power of strong conviction." He went through his courses creditably, he passed, but he sought no honors, no scholarships, no prizes. His supreme interest was elsewhere. A prize, large for those days, was offered for an essay for which he would have had to make a study of certain plays of Shakespeare and Ben Jonson. He was strongly urged by his club fellows, confident that he could win it, to enter, but it would have meant a diversion from his own passionate interests, and he would not turn aside.

"Yet in his own field he won both honors and prizes without seeking them. He was speaker of the Whig Society, managing editor of "The Princetonian," he won one of the sophomore oratorical prizes and the Nassau literary prize for his essay on Pitt; and in his senior year, though he was not an athlete, he was chosen president of the baseball association. He was the kind of man who was looked to by his fellows for leadership.

College Friendships

Wilson's high purpose, his devotion to his own absorbing interests, did not cut him off from generous and deep-seated friendships. There was something gay, ardent, enthusiastic about him, combined with an underlying earnestness that attracted men to him and held them. He had a kind of charm that to many of his associates was irresistible. He could talk brilliantly, he could sing a song, he could dance a hornpipe, he could tell a story with a delicious command of the Negro or Scotch or Irish dialect. And he was "kind and considerate" or "helpful" to younger or less able students, according to the men who were at college with him. He was most at home in rather small groups and preferably with men who had intellectual interests, but the friendships made were of the rarest kind and some of them lasted through storm and stress to the end of his life. Finer relationships between men, more devoted, could scarcely be imagined than those between Wilson, and certain of his classmates, like Robert Bridges, Charles Talcott, Hiram Woods and others.

"What people cannot see is the humanness of the man," says Robert Bridges in a letter to the author. "He was my warm friend for 50 years."

Cherished Associations

Early in his course Wilson moved to a room in the newly completed Witherspoon Hall and a year later went to board with a congenial club of men who called themselves "The Alligators." His room was on the second story at the end of the hall—No. 7. It had a sizeable study and a closet of a bedroom and it looked out upon the somewhat distant main street of Princeton village. Young Wilson soon became the central figure in a group known as the "Witherspoon gang." They got together often in the early evening in the room of one of them and there were grand discussions of every subject under the sun. Long afterward Woodrow Wilson said of such gatherings:

". . . the very best effects of university life are wrought between 8 and 9 o'clock in the evenings, when the professor has gone home, and minds meet minds, and a generating process takes place."

And after leaving Princeton he looked back with longing to the old associations, thinking of the "opportunities for moral growth and intellectual invigoration such as we used to gain in our intercourse with the dear boys who were accustomed to meet after prayer meeting in No. 5 East Witherspoon."

It was his own experience of the value of such associations, in part, which led him years later to stand so strongly for a reorganization of the university which would encourage and stimulate them.

"We soon found out," writes Robert Bridges, "that he had an eager mind. That is a rare quality among youngsters of 18. But there was not a touch of the pedant or dig about him. He was as keen for the life of the college as any one of us; but we soon discovered that what he called 'the play of the mind' was as exhilarating to him as the play of the body to the athlete. He took great pleasure in the writers who used language with precision and with imagination. To him this was not a scholastic pursuit. It was full of the stuff of existence. He would trial a word or a phrase with that eagerness that R. L. S. so exalted. They would pop out in his conversation at the club table as a part of a jest or a noisy dispute. There was a twinkle in his eye, but he knew, and you knew, that he had scored.

"It was as natural for him as an undergraduate to talk about Burke, Brougham or Bagehot as for the rest of us to allude to Cooper or Mayne Reid. . . .

"This comradeship of his which began on the campus had a strong hold on him always. It included all kinds of men on the campus and diverse interests. He never lost the joy of it—and I know it often lightened his burdens."

Letters to Wilson's college friends, with many of whom he kept up a steady correspondence through his life, will be the subject of tomorrow's chapter; also the aspirations which he had, even in his early Princeton days, to enter political affairs.

HE SERVES AS SECRETARY OF STATE

As the young Thomas Woodrow Wilson delved more and more eagerly into his study of government, he sought to put into practice the theories and ideals he was beginning to find. The Liberal Debating Club which he organized at Princeton supplies an insight into the student's mind. It was Wilson who drew up the constitution, the first page of which is shown here, and in the light of history it is not surprising to find in this constitution such phrases as "fundamental principles of justice, morality and friendship" and "brotherhood to assist and encourage."

At the left is Robert Bridges, chum of Wilson at Princeton and now editor of Scribner's Magazine. Bridges writes of Wilson: "The 'play of the mind' was as exhilarating to him as the play of the body to the athlete." The middle photograph is one of the late Charles Talcott, who was president of the Liberal Debating Society. Wilson appears on its roster as "secretary of state," a position which was really "prime minister" and the most important office in the society.

GRIEF SHROUDS MURDER HOME

BULLETS FROM JEALOUS WIFE'S GUN BREAK UP NEW CASTLE FAMILY

NEW CASTLE, Sept. 30.—The two-story double frame dwelling at 434 County Line street, one side having been the home of William R. Whitlatch, 43, railroader slain Tuesday night by his wife, and the other side the home of a brother, John Whitlatch, is a grim reminder of the tragedy which has split the little family group sending two daughters out into the world with bitter memories while their brother mourns at his father's bier.

It is a picture of utter despair. The dead railroader is laid out in his coffin in the front room next door to his own home, now shunned by the entire neighborhood. As if trying to blot out the other half of the house, members of the Whitlatch family keep indoors as much as possible and only when there is a visitor are there any signs of occupancy. John Whitlatch, a small wiry man, and his wife, much like him in appearance, always have kept to themselves, but now they refuse even to enter the dead man's home. They will not talk about the fatal shooting.

GIRLS QUIT HOME

The railroader had three children, a son and two daughters. The son, William, 8, has chosen to make his home, for the time being at least, with his Uncle John, and he refuses to leave the house where his father lies dead. His sisters, however, Lillian, 14, and Dorothy, 12, although offered a home by the uncle, refused to stay. They left home Wednesday with a few of their personal belongings and have not been seen by the Whitlatch family since. They are believed to have gone to relatives of their mother or friends in this city.

Whitlatch's parents are broken up by their son's untimely death. They were visiting a daughter in Detroit when the shooting occurred and just arrived here in time Wednesday morning to be with their son a few minutes before he died. With them came the railroader's two sisters, Mrs. Katherine Kennedy and Mrs. Laura Williams. There is another sister, Mrs. Ernest Reese of New Castle, and two brothers, John and Harry Whitlatch, both of this city.

The railroader's life had been far from happy, relatives say. He and his wife quarreled almost constantly, it is said, and the trouble usually centered about Whitlach's fidelity. His wife accused him of "running around with other women" many times, it is said, and often she would spy on him at work, it is averred.

The wife collapsed yesterday when arraigned on a murder charge, but she was revived and returned to her cell in the county jail, where she will await trial. Attorney S. P. Emery, a former county judge, has been retained as her counsel.

5 BOYS HELD AS AUTO THIEVES

Five boys, alleged members of a gang of automobile thieves, responsible for the theft and stripping of 10 cars in the downtown and North Side districts recently, were held for court at a hearing in Morals Court this morning. They are Bernard Ramsey, 19, of 1312 Lake street; Lloyd Johnson, 17, of 1562 Gironda street; John Wolford, 16, 1414 Beaver avenue; Samuel Ingold, 17, of 1327 Rush street, and Henry Kumenchik, 15, of 1314 Lake street.

R. J. Ramsey, 4111 Evergreen road, an uncle of Bernard, also was held when it was testified he had purchased a battery taken from one of the stolen cars.

Police say the boys would steal a car, drive it until the gasoline was exhausted, and then strip it of accessories and parts and sell them.

THREE IN FAMILY HURT IN CRASH

Mrs. John Mallick, 28, Duss avenue, Ambridge, was seriously injured, and her husband, John Mallick, 32, and their two-year-old son, Richard, were cut and bruised, when the Mallick car crashed into another auto on the Lincoln Highway, between Baden and Ambridge, late yesterday.

Mrs. Mallick is in Sewickley Valley Hospital. According to the Ambridge police, the steering gear on the Mallick machine locked, and the car dashed across the road, colliding with a car going in the opposite direction.

BABE EXPECTED, GIRL PAROLED IN THEFT

Mary Elizabeth Hepple, 19, homeless and friendless, was paroled for six months by Judge James H. Macfarlane in Criminal Court yesterday after pleading to the theft of a lace dress, silk hose and a pair of gloves from Mrs. Ben Berger, 2338 West Liberty avenue, Dormont, by whom she was employed as a maid, on July 31. Arrangements were made to place her in the St. Ann's Home to await the arrival of a baby, expected in two months.

TORCHIA FREED ON BOND

John Torchia, an employe in the office of Justus Schroedel, superintendent of county buildings, was at liberty under $1,000 bond today pending a hearing on charges of aggravated assault and battery in connection with an attack on Controller Charles C. McGovern last Thursday, just before a session of the county audit hearing. Torchia waived preliminary hearing before Alderman A. M. Maloney yesterday.

BUSINESS SESSIONS END ACCOUNTANTS' MEETING

Business sessions in the Schenley Hotel today will bring the annual convention of the American Society of Certified Public Accountants to a close. The new officers, elected yesterday, will preside. They are: Paul W. Pinkerton, Chicago, president; A. C. Uplander, Waco, Tex., and Charles R. Coates, Hartford, Conn., vice presidents; D. W. Springer, Washington, secretary, and Frank A. Willison, Pittsburgh, treasurer.

Public To Lose Return Bout, Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 30.—I saw the fight pictures last night. I don't see why Dempsey shouldn't whip Tunney some time. He keeps getting nearer to it every year. Tunney seems to be getting older faster than Dempsey. When the knockdown comes you can go out of the theater and get a drink and come back before the counting starts. The entire audience gave Dempsey the decision.

WILL ROGERS

So it looks like the old act will go on again next year. Bigger and better than ever; same cast, same management, same books for an audience.

Yours,

WILL.

NORTH-SOUTH DIVIDED OVER SMITH

By FRASER EDWARDS,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Washington wags have discovered a new political tribe at the capital which they have dubbed the "Disconsolate Democrats."

The unhappy disciples of Jefferson hail exclusively from Dixie and Gov. Al Smith's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination is the cause of their melancholy frame of mind, for they feel that the winter of their discontent it at hand and their cheerless situation will grow worse instead of better as summer and convention time approach.

On the one hand, the "Disconsolate Democrats" are told by their northern party brethren that Al Smith is the "only Democrat who can win;" that the New York Governor is the "only man in the party who can carry New York; that "if Smith is not nominated the Northern wets and Catholics will march out of the party in a body never to return."

TRAIN HITS CAR, FIVE KILLED

By Universal Service.

REIDSVILLE, N. C., Sept. 30.—Charles Lucas, 50, farmer; Mrs. Charles Lucas, 38, and two children, Miss Alice, 16, and Roger, 13, and L. G. Johnston, 35, were instantly killed at Turner's Crossing, one mile south of Reidsville, when Johnston's touring car was struck by a southbound passenger train.

The Lucas family and Johnston were leaving the tobacco harvest fu[illegible] for their home near [illegible] as south of Reids[illegible]

EX-RAIDER GETS JAIL TERM

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Pius Capo, former "raiding constable" of Parnassus, was sentenced to four months in the Westmoreland county jail, subject to parole after 10 days, and to pay a $100 fine by Judge W. T. Dom. He was found guilty of taking a barrel of whisky for his own use while raiding an illicit distillery.

55 POLO PONIES DIE IN FIRE

By International News Service.

DAYTON, O., Sept. 30.—Fifty-five polo ponies and fine saddle horses were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the stables of the Dayton Country Club, near here, today.

Only 15 animals were saved, and the loss, including the buildings and equipment, is expected to reach $300,000. A short circuit in the electric wiring is thought to have caused the fire.

GREENSBURG GAS LINE BLOCKED BY INJUNCTION

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—A temporary injunction against the Peoples Natural Gas Company, Greensburg corporation, to restrain it from laying an eight-inch main across the property of W. F. Overly, Washington street, has been continued until a final hearing in Common Pleas Courts here. The company claims Overly does not hold title to the property.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Mary H. Zeilfelder.

Mrs. Mary H. Zeilfelder, 60, widow of George Zeilfelder, died Wednesday in her home at 313 Sample street, Millvale. Mrs. Zeilfelder was born in Germany. She leaves a daughter, Miss Margaret Zeilfelder, and four sons, William, Harry, Elmer and George Zeilfelder.

George M. Berger.

George M. Berger, 63, one of the oldest city firemen in point of service, died Wednesday in his home at 243 Forty-ninth street. Mr. Berger had been stationed at No. 25 engine house since its erection 27 years ago. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mary Flanagan Berger, and four daughters, Mrs. E. G. Thompson, Mrs. [illegible]tta Johnson, Mrs. L. E. [illegible] and Miss Edna Berger, all of Pittsburgh.

Quigley [illegible]neral.

Funeral ser[illegible] or William Quigley, former West View borough police chief, were held in St. Athanasius Catholic Church, Chalfant avenue, West View, this morning. Dr. D. A. Atkinson, burgess, with the borough councilmen, were honorary pallbearers. Interment was in the Most Holy Name Cemetery, Troy Hill road.

Mrs. Frank L. Shook.

Mrs. Anna Johnston Shook, 62, wife of Frank L. Shook, of 3277 West Liberty avenue, Dormont, died Thursday in South Side Hospital. Mrs. Shook was a member of the Brighton Road Presbyterian Church. Besides her husband she leaves her mother, Mrs. Caroline Baughman; a daughter, Mrs. C. R. Hinkley, and a brother, John N. Johnston.

Sister Mary Isabel.

Sister Mary Isabel, 67, of the Mercy order at St. Xavier Academy, Beatty, died after a three-week illness in Mercy Hospital last night. She was a daughter of the late Katherine Timmons Dunn. A requiem high mass will be sung for her in Mercy Hospital chapel tomorrow and interment will be in St. Xavier's Cemetery at Beatty.

Furs Imported from China

AN ENORMOUS amount of raw furs was declared at the American Consulate at Harbin, China, for export to the United States during 1925. Squirrel skins, alone, showed an increase of about 1,190,000 skins for 1925 over 1924.

Sally's Shoulders

ENGROSSING DIFFERENT LIVELY DRAMATIC

By BEATRICE BURTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who does not live with her mother. MRS. JEROME enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for Mr. Peevey afternoons. BEAU, her brother, and MILLIE, her sister, give so little toward the upkeep of the home that the whole load falls on Sally. In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Millie is his secretary, and he is blindly infatuated with her. Millie, however, prefers a bond salesman named Davidson. Davidson is in love with Sally, who detests him. Sally goes into the wayside inn business with her AUNT EMILY JEROME. Later the family moves on to the inn. John comes to her there after several weeks, and again offers her a position in his office. Again she refuses it, because she has decided to stick to Aunt Em until their business is thriving. Millie tells her that Nye only came to see her because he really wanted to see if Millie was with Davidson, and Sally believes her. Millie declares that Nye is frantically jealous of Davidson. In the spring Aunt Em hires a jazz band, and Sally does an exhibition "shimmy" dance every night, with the result that their business increases. One night Davidson tries to make love to Sally, and Millie accuses Sally of trying to "vamp" Davidson away from her. Mrs. Jerome leaves town hurriedly when word comes that Mr. Jerome is ill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"AND if I'm going to stay away long you can pack my trunk and send it on to me," she went on giving directions. "And I need some new stockings—outside ones. And I promised Millie you'd give her some money for a new hat next Saturday. So please do."

But Millie said nothing that day about a new hat. She said nothing about anything at all. She had stopped speaking to Sally, as she always did when the two of them had had words over anything. She was sulking.

CHAPTER XLIX.

ON Saturday Millie broke her stubborn and sulky silence. She got home from town at 1 o'clock and came straight through the house to the sunshiny kitchen where Sally was baking cherry pies.

"Yum, yum! What a good smell! It makes my mouth water," she drawveled, as cheerfully and casually as if she never had left off speaking to her for three or four days. Her eyes were watchful above her smiling mouth.

It had taken Sally years to learn that whenever Millie was particularly sweet she wanted something, and was sweet and good-tempered because of that something.

"This time I suppose she wants the money for that hat that Mother promised her," Sally thought, and then was ashamed of herself instantly, for harboring such a thought about her own sister.

But Millie said nothing at all about a hat.

She came into the hot, bright room, shut the door behind her, and sat down at one end of the long oilcloth-covered table.

"Could I have some crackers or a glass of milk or something light?" she asked, taking out her little black-enamel cigaret case and striking a light. Then she laid an envelope down upon the table before her.

Sally brought her a glass of milk from the ice-box and cut her a piece of yesterday's apple pie.

"Here's a special delivery letter that came for you just now, Sally," she said, shoving it across the oilcloth. "I met the boys on the porch and signed for it."

She giggled as she looked at it.

"It's from Mother," she went on. "Wouldn't you just know it? She's put the stamps on upside down and blotted the envelope. If there's any way of doing things all wrong, that's the way Mother always does them, isn't it?"

Without a word in reply, Sally tore open the envelope. It always hurt her to hear Millie or Mabel say unkind things about her mother. And they always said them in such a nasty, laughing way, as if poor Mrs. Jerome, with her instinct for always doing the wrong thing, was some kind of a joke.

"My dear Sally," she had written. "I found your Papa very sick, indeed, and have been too busy taking care of him to steal a moment to write until now.

"His landlady, Mrs. Gleason, says he complained of headaches for about a week before the day he was taken sick. What ails him I don't know, but the doctor thinks it is some kind of nervous breakdown and wants him to take a long rest. He has high blood pressure, too. I am worn out looking after his many wants, and wish you were here to help me.

"Of course, I shall bring him home as soon as possible. In the meantime, send me a hundred dollars, and be sure not to forget that I've promised Millie some money for a hat on Saturday. Ten dollars—please give it to her.

"And don't fail to send me the six pairs of lisle-thread silk stockings that you promised me. I need them very badly, and some handkerchiefs, too—marked with a "C" or an "M."

"My best love to Bean and Millie and yourself. Mother."

"What does Clara Margaretta have to say?" asked Millie, looking up from her slice of pie and her milk.

"She says she's going to bring father home pretty soon," murmured Sally. "That means that you and I will have to room together again, Millie, doesn't it? And she says I'm to give you $10 for a hat today."

Millie looked blank. She had a trick of wiping all expression from her face when she wanted to, leaving it as pink and white and innocent as the face of a wax doll.

"I don't know what she means," she fibbed so convincingly that she fooled Sally completely, as she usually did. "But I want to ask you a favor, on my own account, Angel."

She put her pretty head to one side, and her voice was as velvety smooth as the slow drip-drip of honey pouring from a spoon. "I want to ask Davy here tonight for supper. Only I don't want to call him up myself. I want you to do it for me. Will you?"

Sally shook her dark, glossy head with energy. "Not me!" said she, ungrammatically, but to the point. "If you want him here you ask him yourself, old kid!"

Millie carried her plate and her glass to the sink and rinsed them out with cold water—a thing she never had been known to do for herself before in her life.

Then she came back and put both of her arms arounds Sally's slender figure, in its checked gingham dress. "Please—pretty please with sugar on it," she pleaded, childishly. "Do call him up, Sally, just this once, and I'll never ask you to do another thing for me as long as I live. I've tried to get him on the phone, myelf, all week, but he won't talk to me. I know he's at home sometimes when he sends word to me that he isn't."

Sally held up a pie, and began to trim off the uncooked crust around the edges of the pan.

"I should think you'd have too much pride to run after a man, Millie," she said, her eyes on her work. "And anyway, if John Nye is jealous of him, why don't you drop him, now that you have such a good chance to do it?"

Millie dropped her hands from fling with Davy Davidson. That's Sally's shoulders and walked over to the screen door. Outside came the sound of water pattering on leaves, where Aunt Emily was sprinkling her vegetable garden.

"I don't want to drop him," she said after a minute or two. Not right now, anyway. I like him too much—and I can always get John Nye back on my staff when I want him. Only I don't want him back for a while. Not until I get tired of Davy."

Her voice was cool and hard, and Sally knew that she had thought this whole thing out and made up her mind just what to do.

"You mean," she said, "that when you get ready to settle down, you'll whistle John Nye back to you; but in the meantime you're going to have your what you mean, isn't it?"

Millie turned back from the door, and nodded her head so that a bright ripple ran across her shimmering hair.

"That's exactly it," she answered. "I'm wild about Davy now—but I know I won't be very much longer. I'm never in love with a man for a long time, you know. And when I'm all over my case on him, I'll be perfectly willing to settle down for life with John Nye. He has everything that I want in this world—all the things that Davy Davidson couldn't give a girl. He's all show-off—Davy is. I'll bet he hasn't a nickel laid away in the bank, and never will have."

Sally looked at her with a kind of admiring horror . . . It was hard to believe that behind those baby-blue eyes and under that halo of baby-gold hair, there was such a sharp little brain working like a piece of steel machinery.

"Millie," she said. "Weren't you ever in love with John Nye?"

It seemed impossible to her that Millie could have spent so many hours with him and not fallen hopelessly in love with him.

But Millie was shaking her head. "Nope!" said she. "I think he's the best-looking thing I ever saw, but I can't get any kick out of being with him. He's so polite and high-brow, you know. Good Lord, he'd die if I took a drink or smoked a cigaret in front of him. And he thinks I'm terrible because I don't give up every other man in the world, just because I happen to know him! He's hardly spoken to me since the last time Davy came up to the office. He's jealous, of course!" She giggled joyfully.

At five that night, when Sally went upstairs to dress, she was sitting before the dresser in her room, going through the drawer in which she kept her neatly-darned stockings.

"Lovey, I'm borrowing a pair of your socks. I hope you don't mind," she said airily. "I called Davy up myself, and he'll be out here at 9 o'clock. Can't he and I have supper with you and Ted after you're through dancing?"

It was Sally's custom to have a bite to eat with Ted Sloan along towards 10 o'clock every night when they finished dancing and turned the floor over to the guests who came to dine at The House by the Side of the Road.

"Why, yes, I guess so," she replied. "I'll set a table in the little dining room for the four of us."

Millie nodded, her gaze fixed on her own colorful reflection in the glass. "Now, don't you make eyes at Davy the way you did the other night," she warned, "or I'll go to it, and take your Theodore Sloan away from you so fast it'll make your head swim, Sally Jerome. And you'll be left high and dry without a dancing partner." She smiled cheerfully at Sally in the glass, but there was a threat in her smile, nevertheless.

Sally wondered if she really thought she could take Ted Sloan away from her. . . . Sally was not a vain person, and she never thought of herself as being half so attractive as Millie. But of one thing she was certain, and that one thing was Ted Sloan's lasting affection for her.

He had been in love with her for years—and the more indifferently she had treated him the more he had seemed to care for her.

Moreover, she knew that he disliked Millie just as he disliked Mabel—and for the same reason. They were both "lightweights" and "cooky-brains," as he often had remarked.

"Do you honestly think you could make Ted Sloan fall for you, Millie?" Sally asked, with a twinkle in her eye. "Because if you do, I wish you'd try."

Millie nodded, and ran a slender hand through the fluff of her hair.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.

"REALly, my dear, this ARab person SIMply SLAYS me, no less, because I mean you would HONestly have thought that after huMILIating me to the extent of making me DRIVE with him to this ewell HOUSE party effect in this POISonous RIG that looked like NOTHing HUman, instead of the Rolls ROYCE that he promised FAITHfully he would proDUCE, he would have been TERribly sort of CHAstened at this point and sort of efFACED himself from the SPOTlight. I mean, at LEAST you would have thought he would have had the DEcency to sort of keep MUM about the way we had arRIVED, but not at ALL, my dear. I SUDdenly disCOVered him the CENtre of an adMIring little GROUP where he was the SINecure of all EYES as he casually narRAted the manner of our ADvent—can you BEAR it, my dear? HONestly I was so MAD I could have GARgled BUTtermilk because all these GIRLS, my dear, were sort of PRESsing EAGerly ROUND him, HUNGering for the INTImate DETails and sort of proTENding they thought he was the WORLD'S CLEVerest and most beGUILing MAN, do you know what I mean? REALly, my dear, I could honestly have DIED the death of a rag DOLL at this point, because I mean I was PRACticably on the VERGE of collAPSE, no less!"

Madge Plans to Visit the Charming Young Foreign Girl

I ALWAYS have flattered myself that I am free from the vice of idle curiosity, but I could lay no such unction to my soul when Mrs. Ticer made another reference to her new employer, Miss Lincoln, with her odd, imperious ways and her unabashed interest in Noel Veritzen. Our encounter earlier in the day with the young woman's uncle, the lessee of The Larches, who had come for water and had been dubbed a Transyvanian by Katie, had stimulated my interest in the family because of their nationality, which had been much exploited in our newspapers when the royal family of the country had visited the United States but a few weeks before.

Mrs. Ticer's racy description of the odd family with which she, her husband and son had taken service for the summer, had increased my interest to such a pitch that I blushed for my answer to Mrs. Ticer, even though it signified only what I normally would have done in the case of any family taking The Larches, the nearest country place, not a tenant farmhouse, on the road to the village.

"She must be a very interesting young woman," I said. "Of course, we must call upon them—or do you think they would resent it—perhaps they do not care to make acquaintance in the neighborhood."

"Oh! I think they'd love it," Mrs. Ticer rejoined, obviously pleased. "I don't mean that they'd care to mix with everybody—they're awfully high-falutin', but I've told 'em all about you." (Her voice intimated that she had given us social kinship to the Prince of Wales.) "And Miss Lincoln seemed awfully interested, especially when I told her that you had something to do with writing for a theater or something like that. I s'pose she's like all the girls, crazy to be an actress. But do you know, she says to me, 'I wonder if they'll call?' Just like that she said it, kind of wishful like. Don't you suppose you could drive over tomorrow afternoon and just sort of welcome 'em to the neighborhood like? She's an awful stuck-up piece part of the time, but you can't help liking her just the same. And I don't believe it'll hurt Miss Mary one bit to let her see that somebody else has an eye on young Veritzen. She's leading that boy too much of a dance."

I felt ashamed of the eagerness with which I adopted her suggestion. Yet one of my old-time intuitions—premonitions—I do not know what to call them, but I never have found it safe to suppress them—told me that I had something else besides ordinary curiosity to satisfy, in making this call upon the strange household and finding out for myself just what sort of people our new neighbors were. It was only too evident that this imperious young woman meant to get acquainted with young Noel Veritzen at any cost, and while I had no desire to keep him sitting in Mary's pocket—I was keeping hands off that affair strictly—yet I had enough interest in the boy himself, to wish to see the young woman who wished to annex him.

But that was not my only reason for my desire to see the new family. I might be wrong; my imagination, as Dicky so often has told me, was probably working overtime, but I scented mystery, intrigue of some sort in the household so strangely and suddenly set down in our midst. The least I could do was to visit them and study them carefully.

"I'll see what Mr. Graham's plans are," I said, with a dutiful wifely air, which I hoped impressed Mrs. Ticer, "and if it is possible we will drive over. But don't expect us."

"Oh, no!" she protested, but there came a faraway look into her eyes which I recognized, and I knew that she was already planning some sort of refreshment which would do honor to her, The Larches and her new employers upon the occasion of our call. Then she gathered her coat around her.

"I must hurry," she said. "I've a million things to do. Don't come to the door. I'll just collect Jerry and drive on."

But I went with her as far as the kitchen door and, when she had gone, turned eagerly to Katie, who, with shining eyes, was watching me above the roses she had gathered when I had told her to listen to the guttural alien tongue of the two men with the savage dog, and see if she could identify the language.

Alice Joyce Is Cast Opposite Jean Hersholt in Universal's "Thirteen Washington Square"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.

A DIZZY dash across the continent for a few hours with her husband and babies is Alice Joyce's experience. Alice arrived in New York Saturday morning to find a telegram waiting for her inviting her to return to California and play the feminine lead in "Thirteen Washington Square," opposite Jean Hersholt.

The honor of an immediate answer was requested and, needless to say, Alice—being an actress who loves her work—sent her acceptance. "Thirteen Washington Square" is from the pen of Leroy Scott and it will star Jean Hersholt, who has certainly come into his own as a Universal favorite these last few months.

Zazu Pitts is the other principal in the cast. Sounds very interesting with these two feminine players. Melville Brown will direct.

By the by, speaking of Alice and her children—Tom Moore, who is Miss Joyce's divorced husband and who has the custody of their daughter, Mary Alice, half the time, took a flying trip East. Tom took Mary Alice to the station and decided to stay right on the train and see the Chicago fight. William Russell offered half his drawing room, so all was well. All, Tom said, except the absence of a tooth brush.

There is no place in the world where a wedding is of as much interest as in Hollywood. I return home to find all the movie conversation directed toward the Irving Thalberg and Norma Shearer nuptials, which will be held at the home of the bridegroom tonight. Marion Davies has been invited by Norma Shearer to be her maid of honor. This is the second time that Marion has officiated in this capacity at a wedding of well-known picture folks. The first was that of Eleanor Boardman and King Vidor. Louis B. Mayer will be Irving Thalberg's best man. The ceremony will be performed very quietly in the presence of the relatives and most intimate friends of the bridal pair.

After the wedding is over studio bells will ring for Marion Davies. Vacation days will be over next Monday when she begins work on "The Patsy," with King Vidor directing. Vacation, at that, wasn't very long for Marion, for she only finished "The Pair Co-Eds" a week or so ago. But she isn't complaining, because she has cherished a hope that she could play "The Patsy" for so long that the realization is pleasant work. That excellent and finished comedienne, Marie Dressler, has the role of "Ma" Harrington, Marion's mother. The rest of the cast, including the leading man, will be chosen this week.

"Bubbles" Wilson exits and Mary Nolan, blonde motion picture actress, enters the picture. "Bubbles," who occupied as much front page space as any Broadway chorine in captivity while she was having her trouble with Frank Tinney, wants the world to forget "Bubbles" and remember Mary Nolan in her place. Universal, after viewing Miss Nolan's work in "Sorrell and Son," is giving her this opportunity by casting her in "The Foreign Legion," opposite Norman Kerry. Moreover, if "Bubbles"—pardon me, Mary Nolan—makes good, you are apt to see a great deal of her in the future, for Universal has an option on her services and they tell me that the camera does right by her blonde beauty in every way.

Hollywood hasn't been particularly good to Lothar Mendes, who has been here for six months without directing a picture. But Hollywood occasionally does things like that and then repents. Her repentance in the case of Mr. Mendes is an assignment to direct Adolphe Menjou in "The Beauty Doctor," Ernest Vajda, who wrote the story, is a close friend of Mr. and Mrs. Mendes, so that it looks as if there will be peace and harmony in the making of the picture. Mr. Mendes, who came straight to this country from Germany where he was associated with the famous Ufa Company, is the husband of Dorothy Mackaill. He did good things in Germany and his friends believe he can do the same here.

Ken Maynard May Make Film of Circus Life

"The Caravan Trail," an original story of circus life by Forde Beebe, is to be Ken Maynard's next starring vehicle, according to present plans.

Maynard has long been desirous of making a picture dealing with the circus because for many years he was closely associated with the big tops, as the star stunt rider for Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers tent shows.

"The Caravan Trail" will deal with a small early-day circus traveling through the West. It has a romantic love story, a powerful theme and will include the sensational and daring stunt riding for which Maynard and his horse, Tarzan, have become famous. Many touches of circus life, with its trials, misfortunes, heartaches and also the romantic element are introduced into the screen drama.

POWELL, MOVIE HEAVY, PORTRAYS COMEDY ROLE

William Powell, the "heavy" who has been doing comedy in Bebe Daniels' new picture, "She's a Sheik," returns to his villainy in his next role. That appearance will be in "The Legion of the Condemned," written by John Monk Saunders and a sequel to that author's "Wings."

CHANEY PICTURE IN BILLS

Lon Chaney's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, "Mockery," the feature screen presentation in Loew's and United Artists' Penn next week, is a strange mystery drama of the Russian revolution, with Chaney as a weird hermit-like peasant who becomes enmeshed in the revolt, reaches a position of power of life and death over an aristocrat.

"Out of the Night," coming to the Nixon for a week, beginning Monday evening, is a mystery comedy by Harold Hutchinson and Margery Williams.

In the Alvin what is announced as the farewell engagement of "Blossom Time," opens next Monday night. This operetta, based on the love story of Franz Schubert, has numerous of his compositions as the musical background.

Next week's presentation by the George Sharp Production Stock Company in the Pitt will be "Just Married," which ran for two years in New York. This comedy, by Anne Nichols and Adelaide Matthews, will have Anne Forrest and all the members of the company in the cast.

Lew Hearn, appearing on the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week, is to present a comedy skit called "When Men Leave Home."

Jack Hunt, tramp comedian, has a comedy role in "High Life," which comes to the Academy next week. The principal singer is Mlle. Valeska.

Hubby's Poetry Held Grounds For Divorce

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—It took just four lines of her husband's poetry, recited in court, to win a divorce for Mrs. Grayce Blinks here.

The poetry which won the divorce was:

"As I took her off the snoways
"At the glorious new day break,
"My thoughts of hours here with you,
"Bring to my heart an ache."

"That's plenty," Judge Thomas J. Lynch said, "decree granted."

BANCROFT TO STAR IN "HONKY TONK"

"Honky Tonk" will be the title of George Bancroft's first starring vehicle for Paramount under a new contract signed recently when the company's executives decided that "Underworld" would make the "smiling heavy" one of its most popular players. Joseph von Sternberg, who directed the Ben Hecht story, will guide Bancroft through his first big picture.

VOTE HUNGARIAN HOME AT LIGONIER $100,000

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Expenditure of $100,000 for improving the Hungarian Reformed Orphans' Home, Ligonier, was approved by representatives of 90 Hungarian churches at a convention held in Ligonier this week. The convention is held every four years and includes delegates of the Hungarian American Reformed Federation. The Ligonier home, founded in 1922, has 105 inmates.

CHIEF WARNS AUTOISTS RACING FIRE ENGINES

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 30.—Fire Chief H. T. Plante has issued a warning that the law will be visited upon autoists trying to get to a fire ahead of the fire department, thereby obstructing hose trucks. A state law provides a fine of $25 for this offense.

The oldest man in the world still works at 145 years. He was born when George Washington was president. Read about him in the Magazine Section, Sunday Sun-Tele.

Basis of Comedy Legion's Paris Convention

Preliminary preparations have been started on "Legionnaries in Paris," a feature comedy to be produced by F B O with Al Cooke and Kit Guard in the featured roles. This comedy, which is to have as a background the recent American Legion convention in Paris, was written by Louis Sarecky, one of the supervisors at the F O B studios and Jeff Moffit of the Mack Sennett studios who has been loaned by that company to write the screen adaption. Arvid Gillstrom, who directed "Clancy's Kosher Wedding," has been selected to direct the opus.

CONKLIN AS TECHNICAL ADVISOR IN NEW FILM

Chester Conklin, in addition to being co-starred with W. C. Fields in the comedy, "The Side Show," is acting as technical director of the company. Conklin as a youth spent several years as a circus clown and can give the last word on show customs and practice.

Work In Flowers For Beauty, Says Star

Get out among the growing plants and flowers if you want to be beautiful. Take the hoe and trowel and loosen the earth around the gladiola roots. Let the sunshine warm your face while you take this natural exercise.

Such are the beauty rules of Florence Vidor, star of Paramount pictures, now engaged on a new play, "Honeymoon Hate."

"For eight years I have taken personal care of my flowers," said the star. "I work in the garden every day. It keeps me in the correct environment. Woman is synonymous with beauty, and such an atmosphere helps a great deal. It keeps the mind active and permits the body to relax. That is the time when exercise is most advantageous."

450 GALLONS OF SEIZED MOONSHINE DESTROYED

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Four hundred and fifty gallons of moonshine, taken in recent raids, were dumped into Ten Mile Creek by Sheriff Arno S. McClellan and County Detective T. C. O'Conner.

Long Title Chosen For Fairbanks' New Picture

The world's record for long titles goes to Douglas Fairbanks, judging by the title just announced for his new picture, which was produced under the name of "The Gaucho."

The new title for this feature, according to an announcement just issued from the Fairbanks company, is "Douglas Fairbanks as the Gaucho in Over the Andes."

The reason for changing the name of the picture is to avoid confusing it with a film produced some time ago under the title "El Gaucho." In order to reap full benefit from publicity obtained for the picture under its working title, Doug authorized including "The Gaucho" as part of the final title. In time this will be dropped, but not until it serves to acquaint the public with the fact that "Over the Andes" is the Fairbanks picture formerly known as "The Gaucho."

Producer Departs For Ceremony In East

Arthur Hammerstein, theatrical producer, who has been in Pittsburgh since Sunday in direction of his latest musical success, "Golden Dawn," current in the Alvin, left last night for New York, to be present today at exercises attendant upon the laying of the corner stone of Hammerstein's, a new theater, Fifty-third street and Broadway.

Hammerstein's will be opened next month with "Golden Dawn," in which the producer is presenting Louise Hunter. The new theater was built by Mr. Hammerstein in memory of his father, the late Oscar Hammerstein.

MAN, WIFE SHOT; BOARDER IS ARRESTED

Alphonso Di Lucente, 49, and his wife, Philomena Di Lucente, 50, were shot and seriously wounded in their home at 290 Fleet street, Rankin today by a boarded who objected to being awakened to go to work, members of the family told police.

The Di Lucentes were at breakfast, members of the family said, when the boarder, Angelo Donatella, not having come down, Di Lucente went to rouse him. Several shots rang out. Di Lucente called for help and his wife started to his aid. As she was about to ascend the stairs, relatives say, Donatella shot her in the legs. He then returned to the second floor.

Donatella told police that he worked at night and that the Di Lucentes would not let him sleep. Members of the family denied that he worked at night.

DEATH TOLL 2 IN MINE BLAST

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 30.—With the discovery of the body of Stanley Smith, 24, of Throop, under a mine car where it had been blown in a gas explosion at the Eddy Creek mine of the Hudson Coal Company at Olyphant, the death toll in the blast reached two today.

Six others were burned, two probably fatally, in the explosion. The other man killed was John Smith, 32, of Dickson City, a cousin of Stanley Smith. The injured were Louis Stepenski, Llewellyn Pottriell, William Bray, Paul Iscovitz, John Galvinski and Frank Bryne.

The explosion was caused by a short circuit in a mine motor.

SEIZES CHILD; BEATS HER

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—Police are seeking a woman who snatched little Betty Jane Wagner from her mother's grasp while on a busy downtown street, carried the child into a vacant office suite, beat her with a ruler and tore off her clothes. The child was badly bruised. Police could advance no motive for the attack.

Ghost of Lovers' Lane Put Back in "Grave"

CHARLEROI, Pa., Sept. 30.—Charleroi's flaming youth had a ghost hunting party Thursday night and now Twilight Hollow, Fallowfield township, the local lovers' lane, is itself again. For weeks those who were wont to park in the dimly-lit hollow were frightened away by groans, squeaks and spectral appearances of fluttering white. The investigation Thursday by a party of the dauntless young bloods disclosed that someone had rigged up a contraption across the hollow whereby a sheet suspended from a pulley could be moved along a wire.

HIKING CLUB ARRANGES TWO SUNDAY TRAMPS

Two hikes have been scheduled for Sunday for the Pittsburgh Hiking Club. There will be an all-day hike from Duthill to Sewickley, about 15 miles. Those interested in this trip will take the Harmony car to Duthill, leaving Penn avenue and Stanwix street at 8:05 a. m. Those who prefer a shorter afternoon hike will walk from Sewickley to Dixmont, a disgance of about six miles.

FALL RALLY AT "Y" DOWNTOWN TONIGHT

More than 1,000 members of the Young Men's Division, Downtown Y. M. C. A., will open a big program of winter activities with a dinner and rally tonight at the Wood street center.

The Rev. Dr. T. D. Edgar, Wilkinsburg, will make an address and there will be musical and comedy entertainment by well known artists.

YOUTH HELD FOR MURDER OF ONE-ARMED BROTHER

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 30.—Robert Kunkle, 24, was held for court Thursday on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury probing the killing of his brother, James D. Kunkle, in Robert's home early Thursday morning. Robert confessed the killing, declaring he shot in self-defense after a battle with his one-armed brother in connection with their alleged moonshining activities.

COURT ORDERS ELMORE ESTATE CLAIMS PAID

An order was made yesterday by Orphans Court directing the Washington Trust Company to pay to the creditors of the estate of the late John Elmore such claims as were allowed by the audit and to which no exceptions had been filed, and to which they are entitled under the decree of distribution. Attorney John F. Kane, who presented the petition.

Squirrel Wrong; Harry Was Not a Chestnut

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 30.—They go wild, simply wild in this man's town.

While inspecting his peach crop on the Kuehler property here, W. Harry Haering reports he was attacked by a squirrel which leaped on him from a tree, tore his coat, and escaped.

Jack Must Beat 'Em All

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(U.P.)—Jack Dempsey must prove his right to another match with Gene Tunney. "There will be no return bout between Dempsey and Tunney unless Jack cleans up every man of note among the contenders," Tex Rickard said today.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HARVEY BOYLE

WHEN the Yankees thrust Herb Pennock into the box to stop the great hitting array flashed by the Pirates you will be struck with the suggestion Pennock offers. He is not an exact replica, physically, of Wilbur Cooper, that consummate southpaw when he was here in his heyday, but the relation between Pennock and Cooper is not to be missed.

HARVEY BOYLE.

Pennock, like Cooper, is what might be called an unorthodox southpaw, in that he escapes that unsteadiness which often blights the boys who throw with the left arm. His delivery is easy, his ball deceitful. At all times he is master of himself.

Pennock on the mound is almost like a right-hander. He strikes you as one who is as apt to fool a right-handed hitter as he fools a left-handed hitter. It seems here that Cooper had that quality, too.

LEFT-HANDERS this season have proved ineffectual against the Pirates. The loyal fans, of course, trust Pennock will be no exception, yet they must respect this southpaw because he is not an ordinary southpaw.

Now Ruether, a strong force on the Yanks this year, is the type of southpaw that the Pirates should find fairly easy. Ruether is like his brethren left-handers in that his delivery is far more bothersome to left-handed hitters than it is to the right-handed hitters. Of the two southpaws, Ruether and Pennock, it appears from this distance, that Pennock will prove to be the superior against the Pirates. Anyone who saw Pennock against the Cardinals in the last world series is bound to hold great respect for him. Good control, an easy motion, cool nerve, he seems to be more like Cooper than any other man in baseball. It seems here he is a southpaw with the quality of ball owned by a right hander—just as difficult for right handers to hit as a right hander pitcher, no harder for southpaws to hit than a right handed hurler. Watch out for Pennock.

NO one likes to admit it, but nearly everyone has a pet superstition. Ball players have a traditional superstition shared by every boy in the game, recruit or grizzled veteran. For instance, Mr. Benjamin, photographer, for this paper, will tell you that he would be taking his life in his hand by asking for a group picture of the Pirates before they cinched the pennant. Even just the request would be almost enough to put the boys in a frenzy. Apparently, a long time ago a team with a pennant almost in its grasp, posed for a group picture and then lost out. Ever since then chills run up and down the players' backs if anyone even mentions a group picture before the pennant is won.

MR. BENJAMIN will tell you further that a good way for him to get in wrong with Carmen Hill, high shouldered Pirate pitcher, is to take a picture of Carmen as he warms up for a game. Hill protests so loudly that Mr. Benjamin wisely keeps away. Mr. Benjamin, making many pictures of the diamond athletes, mingling with them, likes to see them win almost as much as they like to win, so he has learned to keep away from Hill while Carmen warms up. Now on a day when Hill is not to work, no one could be more attentive to the whims of a photographer—and photographers do have many curious whims. Hill will stand on his ear for a photograph or pretend to be chasing butterflies with a large net, or do any of those many other things that photographers in strange moments ask subjects to perform, but Hill will do these things only on an off-day. On his pitching day he views all photographers as very bad men and what he calls the poor little camera is—but something should always be left to the imagination.

WISELY, the celebration for the Pirates by the Chamber of Commerce was slated for a day on which the pennant issue will be definitely established. Ball players have a superstition, too, about celebrations. Once when the Pirates of 1921 seemed to be galloping to a pennant the Chamber of Commerce tendered a very excellent luncheon; fine speeches were made, and were responded to by the Pirates, but alas, alack, the Pirates lost out that year.

Unlike Dempsey the Pirates never said a word about the food because they knew that the food at the Chamber of Commerce is always excellent.

NO ONE blames the Pirates or ball players in general for these superstitions. Rationally, of course, luncheons, dinners, pictures can have no effect on a ball game, but old poker players will tell you that the fellow who admits to a penny how much he is ahead, nearly always loses out, while the boys who always say they are just even—all through the game—somehow turn up with the gravy at the end.

Fortunately, I have no superstitions but before I reformed, in those days when I played a little stud I always felt very certain that when a man beside me—after he was out of the play—peeped at my hole card the hole card would always turn out to be a deuce.

THE practice got so bad and hurt my fortune so much that I used to arm myself with a large butcher knife and as soon as my friend on the right or left moved to peep at my hole card, turning it up on one corner, I whipped out my knife and cut his hand off. The practice had to be stopped as other players complained that the cutting held up the game too long. However, they were mostly in sympathy with my idea.

N. Y. Pitchers Best, He Says

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Entering his still, small voice into the general hilarity, like a prayer at a bar rail, the writer desires to state today that he thinks the New York Yankees should win the world series of 1927. He is throwing out comparative hitting, fielding, base running and kindred appurtenances of those who like to arrive at a given point by way of the servants' entrance.

The respective infields are about a stand-off, anyhow. So are the outfields and the catching staffs. The Yanks have more power on attack, the Pirates greater versatility and speed. These departments will go along pretty much as is, without much of a break either way and, if there is one, it probably will come from a quarter least expected. No one figured that George Uhle was going to get a lot of base hits in 1926 nor that Fred Snodgrass would drop the only fly ball really worth catching in 1912.

However, you usually can put your finger on pitching and keep it there. This, the abiding factor in along series, a short series and, in fact, all series, nearly always is consistent with the form sheets, particularly in a world series. The average performance, in fact, is better for the series than it is through the regular season.

YANK PITCHERS BEST

The writer may be wrong, which, in truth, would be no great novelty, but he likes the Yankees in this most important of all departments. Therefore, everything else being equal, or nearly so, the Yanks should win.

Conditions, rather than the men themselves, would seem to give the Yankees the advantage here. Purely as pitchers, it is doubtful whether Hoyt, Pennock, Moore, Ruether and Shocker have much, if anything, on Hill, Kremer, Meadows, Aldridge and Miljus. But these are not men who are to engage in a mere throwing contest for accuracy, speed and the break on a curve ball. They must pitch only to a certain group of men whose hitting eccentricities either will favor or oppose the success of their deliveries.

For example, the three big men in the Yankee attack are Earl Combs, who gets a lot of hits and is on the bases many times and off; and Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, the arch-sluggers. All are left-hand hitters and the Pirates haven't a first-class left-hand pitcher in the outfit. Yde and Cvengros will get into the series only in a desperate emergency.

Of course, Ruth and Gehrig hit both kinds of pitching, but they prefer right-handers and they will get them in Hill, Kremer, Meadows, Miljus and Aldridge. On the other hand, a slow ball left-hander can cause the entire Yankee array much embarrassment, as Bill Sherdel amply proved in the 1926 series.

BUCS FAR FROM WEAK

Now, to reverse the field, suppose we look at the other side of the debate. The Pirates, with right-hand hitters like Wright, Traynor, Harris, Barnhart and Cuyler ready to go, are not exactly a club for which one would save a left-hander. Yet, much of the club's punch is focused around Paul and Lloyd Waner. Both are lefthand hitters and it will remain to be proved whether real good southpaws like Pennock and Ruether can cut into the efficiency of this run-producing combination. Grantham, the other Pirate regular, is almost inept against lefthanders.

Therefore, a switch of pitchers in a pinch might get Grantham out of the lineup entirely, to the detriment of the team's efficiency.

No, the more one looks at it, the more one is convinced that, in versatility and for purposes of strategy, the Yankees have the better pitching. Alexander stopped them with a screw-ball last year. Hill also throws this delivery, but otherwise the Pirate staff seems to be pretty much straight away pitching. The Yanks, by comparison, have two good left-handers, a curve ball expert in Hoyt; a man with a great "sinker" in Moore and a survivor of that dying race, the spitballer, in Shocker.

They should win and, that being the case, they probably won't.

GENEVA GRIDDERS LEAVE FOR BUCKNELL BATTLE

BEAVER FALLS, Sept. 30.—The Geneva College football squad entrained here last night for Lewisburg, where they will clash with Carl Snavely's Bucknell Bison's tomorrow afternoon. The Covenantors are due in Lewisburg this morning and will work out there this afternoon. This will afford the squad the opportunity for a good night's rest prior to what is expected will be one of the hardest games of the entire schedule.

When Coach McMillen left here he expected to start the same team tomorrow that started against Davis-Elkins with the exception of Booth, who will get the call at left end instead of Davis. The squad is in fine shape and should be able to give the Bisons a battle they will remember.

Although not disappointed with the showing of his team against Davis-Elkins, Colonel Bo McMillen has been far from optimistic the past week. He was not nearly so enthused over the victory as most of the fans were and the past week has been drilling the squad long and hard to polish off some radically rough spots that cropped out in the joust with the Scarlet Hurricane.

CHILLY SAUCE
By CHILLY DOYLE

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 30.—The spirit of the play between the Reds and Cardinals was best exemplified in the ninth inning when Catcher Val Picinich risked injury in an effort to catch Lester Bell's foul. Two were out and a single would have tied up the contest when Bell hoisted a foul back to the screen. Picinich rans as fast as he could travel in the mud. In front of the screen was a patch of real soft loam. As he hit this spot with his head up in the air, both feet went out from under him and he slid into the wire fence on his back. He was a sight when he arose.

Twenty-five Pirates were pulling for Chuck Dressen to win a race with Ray Blades, which brought the game to a close. Just after Picinich's attempt to haul in the foul, Bell hammered a ball down the third-base line, Blades came charging over from second, but when he saw Dressen grab up the ball he retraced his steps. Dressen ran him to a point within ten feet of the bag before he overtook him to make the final put-out.

PITTSBURGH folks did not have any realization of the extent of Rabbit Maranville's recent injury. Just after the Cards left Pittsburgh Maranville and Outfielder Orsatti crashed in Chicago. The Rabbit was severely cut in the chin and one of his teeth was broken. The hurt that took him out of the contest, however, was an injury to the leg which still bothers him.

Only three balls have been hit over the left field wall at Redland Field this summer. Frisch's clout today followed soon after a homer driven over the same wall by Chick Hafey of the Cardinals. Early in the season, George Kelly slammed a homer out of the park by way of this fence. The distance is somewhat similar to the left field fence at Forbes Field, except that the wall here stands on a ridge and is higher than the fence of th Oakland orchard.

FRED FRANKHOUSE, who lost a terrific slab duel to Jakey May in yesterday's clash, held the Reds to five hits, four of which were made in the fourth inning. Frankhouse won five games in a row before he ran into a setback. He is the same little star of the mound who blanked the Pirates at Houston last spring. The Cardinals own the Houston team and in their need for reserves they brought in Frankhouse and Outfielder Orsatti, who also is a star.

Wally Pipp opened the offensive on Frankhouse that played such a big part in the defeat of the Cardinals. Pipp doubled to right. Frankhouse was the victim of a misfortune when he threw away Bressler's bunt. Two singles and a sacrifice fly followed to make the inning produce three runs, or just enough to win.

THE crowd totalled three hundred and forty patrons. Needless to say, the Pirates did not pay to get in, but they certainly received more thrills than any of the onlookers.

JOHNNY FARRELL GIVES EXHIBITION OF SHOTS

Johnny Farrell, holder of nine golf championships and one of the best professional golfers in the country, showed the boys a few tricks about handling the clubs today in an exhibition in a local department store, where he worked out from 10 o'clock this morning until 5 o'clock this evening.

Johnny was greeted by many of the friends he made while playing in the National open at Oakmont early this summer.

"You certainly struck a sore spot at Oakmont, missing the open and winning one big little before and eight right afterward," he was told.

"Well, the only thing I can blame for that was my putting; I couldn't sink a one-footer," said Johnny, with his most captivating of smiles.

He leaves tonight for Washington where he will play in an exhibition match with Gene Sarazen, Mac Smith and Tommy Armour, the latter National open champ.

JEFFRIES ALMOST NAMED REFEREE OF BIG BOUT

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(INS.)—James J. Jeffries would have been chosen as referee for the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago if he had resided in Illinois during the past year, according to a "post-mortem" statement by Promoter Tex Rickard. The promoter said Jeffries was considered seriously for the job, but was disqualified because of the provision of the Illinois boxing law which specifies that referees' licenses shall be issued only to those qualified men who have resided in the state a year.

"The presence in the ring of the famous retired former champion, the defending titleholder and the former champion fighting for the return of his lost laurels, would have provided a wonderful setting," Rickard said regretfully.

W. Va. Fans Get "Choice" Seats For Pitt Game

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 30.—When the University of Pittsburgh announced this past summer that season tickets, calling for preferred locations at the Pitt Stadium for all games this fall would be sold to the general public, scores of inquiries were made at West Virginia University athletic offices relative to the disposition of the Mountaineer cheering section. The matter was taken up with the Pitt authorities and assurance was given then that the West Virginia

COMMISSION SUED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(INS.)—The Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission was made defendant in mandamus proceedings begun in Court of Common Pleas, No. 4, today by Dr. Leon Felderman of this city to compel the commission to show on what grounds he was dismissed as a physician licensed by the commission to examine boxers and wrestlers. Judge Joseph F. McCullen granted a writ, making the same returnable in court on October 7.

SOCCER
by TOM BIRNS

The West Penn secretary again requests that all of the managers in the district send in their entries and fees for the West Penn senior and junior cup competitions. Owing to the fact that the governing body has put back the playing of both tourneys this season, managers have added time to send in these entries, but as usual they are late.

With the cup ties scheduled on Sunday, there will be a slightly abbreviated list of games tomorrow, when the District and Scottish clan league get into action, with the Thistle-Celtic battle heading the afternoon's card.

Fans in the district who have looked over the Celtics, feel that Edwards' combination is sadly in need of a center forward of the dash type, that can finish off the work of the other forwards. There is plenty of skill in that front line, but the final dash is what gets goals.

Two games will be staged in the Scottish clan league. McPhersans with the best club in its history, will make the trip to Ambridge to meet the Gordons. Followers of the club will get a better opportunity to see how strong the North Siders are in that battle with Tommy Martin's boys from the Bridge grounds.

Grant will probably make it two straight at the expense of the Camerons. The Curtiss club did not look so good against McPherson, so it is hard to see them returning from up the Monongahela river with any points garnered at the expense of the champions.

The Monongahela League will swing into action on Sunday, thus giving the up-river soccerites something to enthuse over Sunday. With Gallatin and Dunlevy in the loop there should not be any death of competition in the race, for these clubs are old rivals.

The West Penn Football Association again stresses the point that it is absolutely necessary for all players coming or returning from another jurisdiction to report their presence to the local secretary, for permission to play. This must be done, or suspension might follow.

It might be worth while Sunday to take a run out the Allegheny river road to Harmarville and watch the first round of the national open cup with Mustard Hollow providing the opposition. The boys with the best name are classed as the logical contenders for the final club to represent this district in the inter-state eliminations. But there will be plenty of competition at Harmarville before the Hollow boys advance any further.

EAST LIBERTY "Y" ATHLETES MEET TONIGHT

A meeting for members interested in volley ball is scheduled at 8:15 o'clock tonight in the auditorium of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., Whitfield street, when a club will be organized. The plan is to conduct the leagues and competition on a separate schedule from the regular classes, and to make the club an independent and self-governing body. Arrangements will be made for teaching members who desire instruction in this fast-coming sport. Schedules will be drafted and started as soon as the East Liberty "Y" secures enough members to arrange the necessary details.

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

FIGURATIVELY, like a voice from the baseball grave, or an echo from the almost forgotten diamond past, a letter bobbed up in the mail of President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club yesterday to link the bygone with the present in the national pastime.

The letter was postmarked Wheeling, W. Va., and a perusal of the contents disclosed that it was from none other than old Jack Glasscock, "Pebbly Jack," as they called him more than three decades ago, when he was one of the greatest shortstops in the country, still a resident of the Nail City, but so long a time has elapsed since he has been heard from in Pittsburgh in a baseball way that President Dreyfuss had to rub his eyes and take a second look at the signature to make certain that he was not dreaming.

BUT is was from Glasscock, all well enough, and it bore a request for a chance to see the prospective world series between the Pirates and Yankees. "I played for you 'way back in 1895, when you had the Louisville club in the National League," wrote Jack, "and I surely would like to see your present team in action against the Yankees in the world series. I have not seen a world series since 1887, and I would dearly like to see just one more before I pass out of this world."

The Pirate owner was pleased at getting a letter from one of the earliest players he ever employed, and said he would be glad, in event of the Pirates retaining first place until the finish, to make such arrangements as would render it possible for the old-timer to witness the big series.

GLASSCOCK'S playing history also had a Pittsburgh connection which will be recalled to veteran local fans by the presence of the veteran at the title games. He played shortstop for the Pirates during parts of the seasons of 1893 and 1894.

In June, 1893, the same year in which Frank Killen, left-hand pitcher, now in business on the North Side, was obtained from the Washington National League club in exchange for Duke Farrell and led the National League hurlers with a percentage of .772 for 44 games pitched, Manager Al Buckenberger of the Buccaneers traded Shortstop Frank Shugart to the St. Louis Nationals for Glasscock. The latter, then reckoned one of the best in the game, became the regular shorstop of the Pirates and played here until August 20, 1894, when he was released, going to Louisville during the following season.

DURING the two years that Glasscock played here Pittsburgh's pitchers were Mark Baldwin, now a local surgeon; Frank Killen, "Red" Ehret, Bill Terry, the late Ad Gumbert, Henry Gastright, Tom Colcolough, George Nicol, Phil Knell, Jock Menefee, now of Monessen; Harry Jordan and John Easton. The catchers were Connie Mack, Billy Earle, "Doggy" Miller, Joe Sugden, Bill Merritt and Buck Weaver. The infielders, in addition to Glasscock, were Jake Beckley, Louie Bierbauer, Denny Lyons, Jimmy Gray, Sam Gillen, Fred Scheibeck, Jim Ritz, Fred Hartman, now of McKeesport; Eugene Demontreville, Monte Cross and Fred Steene. The outfielders were Pat Donovan, Jake Stenzel, Elmer Smith and George Van Haltren.

THERE are many names in the above list that will carry veteran Pittsburgh fans back in memory to the days of more than three decades ago.

Glasscock played for six National League teams during his career. He was with Indianapolis in the National League in 1887, 188 and 1889, with New York in 1890 and 1891, with St. Louis in 1892 and part of 1893, with Pittsburgh in parts of 1893 and 1894, with Louisville in 1895 and also was on the Cincinnati roster for a short time.

LLOYD WANER'S chance to equal or surpass the all-time major league record for one-base hits made by a player in a season is decidedly slim as the Pirates enter their final series of the National League schedule at Cincinnati.

On September 21 Waner made his one hundred and eightieth single of the season, breaking the modern record, which had been 179, set by Johnny Tobin of the St. Louis Americans in 1921. Local fans then began to pull for the little fellow to go further and smash the all-time mark, which is 199, hung up by the late Willie Keeler when he played for Baltimore in the National League, the immortal Orioles, in 1897.

There seems to be little hope, however. Since the day on which he broke Tobin's modern record, the younger Waner had made only eight singles, which boosted his total to 188. Consequently, he needs 11 singles more to equal Keeler's record and 12 more to beat it. With only three games left to play, there appears to be hardly any chance. It is possible, of course, but very improbable.

THE highest tribute yet paid to the younger of the Waners, by the way, comes from "Deacon" Phillippe, former star pitcher. During a discussion of the Waners and what they were likely to do in the world series, Phillippe remarked: "Lloyd Waner is the closest approach to Willie Keeler that I have ever seen. He is a wonder in the field, hits the ball hard where Keeler used to bloop it, and I believe he is also faster than Keeler was. He can do more things on a ball field than any kid I ever saw."

And in a baseball career dating back to 1897, when he made his professional debut with Minneapolis, the "Deacon," as pitcher and scout, has seen hundreds of them come and go.

PECULIAR, PETTY AND FALSE ARE CHARGES

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(UP.)—Ban Johnson, president of the American League, today issued a statement severely criticizing Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, and the management of the Chicago American League club.

The statement referred to the "childish tactics of the Chicago Club" in its fight against Johnson, and said they "had only been outdone by the petty tactics of the office of the commissioner of baseball."

The commissioner's office, Johnson said, "has failed to function as was provided in the agreement (under which it was established) in so far as the conduct of mutual relations is concerned."

The office's tactics, the statement said, would be "amazing were it not what might be expected from one of the peculiar quirks of the commissioner himself."

NOTES of the BOXERS

Pete Zivic has been rematched with Joe Scalfaro at the Queensboro Club, New York, next Tuesday night.

Tom Heeney and Jim Maloney top a card in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight.

Tommy Hughes of Cleveland and Harry Goldstein of Boston meet in the flyweight elimination tournament at Hollywood, Cal., tonight. Willie Davies and Dave Adelman already have been eliminated.

Tommy Crowley, South Side lightweight, meets Frank Gordini of Hazelwood and Cincinnati in a six-round bout at Cleveland October 12.

The Motor Square Club is working on a bout between Cuddy DeMarco and Billy Wallace of Cleveland for a week from Monday night. Cuddy hopes to obtain revenge for a knockout defeat by Wallace at Cleveland.

Bricky Ryan, Ellsworth featherweight, boxes Johnny Harko of New England in the windup of 10 rounds at the Cambria Club, Philadelphia, tonight. Andy Tomosky of Wilmerding boxes Matty White in the semi-final.

Joey Novak boxes Joe Scinta of Buffalo in a return six-round bout at Erie tonight.

PENN STATE READY FOR GETTYSBURG GAME

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 30.—The Penn State and Gettysburg elevens will run through a light signal drill and workout this afternoon and will then be ready for their game tomorrow afternoon on the New Beaver field, the second on the schedule for both teams. The Lions downed Lebanon Valley last week, 27 to 0, and the Bullets defeated American University, Washington, D. C., winning 31 to 0. The visitors arrived in State College this morning.

Officials for tomorrow's game will be J. T. Clinton, Yale, referee; E. M. Bennis, Pennsylvania, umpire, and H. J. Blum and C. L. Bolster of Pittsburgh, head linesman and field judge, respectively.

Bisons Are Crippled For Geneva Battle

LEWISBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—Hopes of winning the Geneva game here tomorrow dwindled today when the Bucknell student body learned of three injuries on the varsity squad in scrimmage. Walter Diehl, triple-threat fullback and captain, will play with a broken nose and a special headguard; Tom Jones of Pittsville, lineman, may not play at all with a badly wrenched ankle, and Halicki, veteran halfback, will sit on the bench with a sprained wrist and forearm. A student mass meeting is planned for this afternoon in the stadium to watch and cheer the team in its last practice before the game.

"Rookie" Replaces Mehler at Colgate

HAMILTON, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Although followers of the Colgate eleven are disappointed in the relatively poor showing against Hamilton Saturday, they are in no way gloomy over the season's prospects. There is little doubt that individually this year's team represents as much football talent as that of last season. Furthermore Coach Hauser has almost two complete reserve teams capable of filling varsity positions. In the latter respect the 1926 squad was noticably deficient. The inexperience of the new men in line for the positions left vacant by the five veterans who were graduated, seems to be the Maroon's principal weakness.

CORSAIRS' STELLAR INFIELD

The Yankee sluggers will have to face a rugged inner defense in their world's series battles with the Pirates here and in New York next week. With the Pirate pitching staff going well, many grounders and liners will be knocked to the quartet pictured above and the players may be depended on to handle them as well as they have in the closing games of the National League flag race.

Looking 'Em Over

By HARRY KECK, Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor

THE Worst Bucs Can Get—headline. Have you had a look at Carl Shatto's snappy cravat? It's the worst he could get.

Hilario Martinez, the Spanish boxer who handed Sid Terris a drubbing in New York last night, is the same young fellah who dished out a thumping to Johnny Dundee in Havana some time back and also defeated Jack Zivic. He's an up-and-coming youngster.

Yes, we are picking the Pirates against the Yankees. That ought to start an argument.

* * *

Jack Dempsey, in court in Teddy Hayes' suit, admits he doesn't write his own stuff. No wonder it is readable.

Yale Okun, New York heavyweight, who boxes Bob Lawson in the windup at Motor Square Garden Monday night, believes in playing with fire. He already has beaten the Alabama Bear twice, once over the six-round route and the other time in 10 frames, and will continue the series until he loses. Lawson is an accomplished performer himself. He holds a decision over our own Sandy Seifert, scored in Madison Square Garden, New York, and one of the few verdicts the blonde North Sider has dropped. Bob also has whipped Kid Norfolk, Jack Johnson and others of note.

Now is the time for Coaches Jock Sutherland, of Pitt, and Wally Steffen and Bob Waddell, of Carnegie Tech, to begin fearing Grove City and Thiel in the battles scheduled tomorrow. Next week they'll have to fear somebody else.

Chalky Williamson, former Pitt star and coach, is keeping a keen eye on the collegiate situation although he is not playing such an active part this fall. Remarking yesterday on the campus goings-on, Chalky orated as follows: "Virtually every team in this section has at least one outstanding back this year. Pitt has Welch, W. & J., Bill Amos; Carnegie Tech, Harpster; Penn State, Roepke, and others all have one player who will stand out in their games. And the best of them all is Gibby Welch. Give Welch the interference and line that some other Pitt backfield stars before him have had and he would outshine all of them."

MELLOW LOSES TO LA GREY

Joey La Grey, Johnstown's lightweight puncher, swatted his way to a victory over Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, in the 10-round main bout of the ring show at McKeesport last night. La Grey's hard wallop won him the decision over the clever boxing Mellow, who lacked the aggressive tactics that please the judges.

Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, won the decision in the eight-round semifinal over Harry Taylor, of Pittsburgh. This bout was fast and furious from the start, with Welch outslugging Taylor, who fought back from bell to bell in each round.

Joe Katkish won a close decision over Jackie Rodgers, of Pittsburgh, in the second bout of six rounds. Dick Gibbons, of Connellsville, knocked out Pete Land, of McKeesport, in the second round of a scheduled four-round opening bout. The men are heavyweights.

Martin Deitz refereed all the bouts. The judges were Jock Simco and Johnny Graff.

PITT, TECH TO STAGE DRILLS

By JESS CARVER

IF YOU are pretty good at emulating One-Eyed Connelly, you can get a peek at Richard Harlow's Western Maryland football team at the Pitt Stadium, where the Southerners will finish up their training for the game with W. & J. at Washington Saturday.

You'll have to pull a "One-Eye," for the practice will likely be secret, but if you get high enough on the hills surrounding the Stadium, up there on Gobbler's Knob, you'll be able to glimpse some of those tough, six-foot linemen that Harlow is supposed to have in tow.

Coach Sutherland of Pitt kindly consented to the Western Marylanders using the Stadium today, and will put the finishing touches on his Golden Panthers preparatory to the game with Grove City Saturday on the practice field on the hill.

Over across Panther Hollow, Carnegie Tech will hop around in the alleged Bowl, midsts pieces of planking and sawdust and work into shape for the contest with Thiel Saturday. The game is to be played on Tech's gridiron because of the fact that Forbes Field is being saved for the World's Series—if any. Workmen have been strengthening the old stands surrounding the Bowl and erecting new ones.

DUKES TO OPEN

Duquesne, hoping to get off on the right foot in the first home game of the season, will stage a short workout today and will then turn the Duke field over to the Broaddus College eleven, the Dubious Dukes' opponents tomorrow. Coach Layden will not give out his probable starting lineup until this evening, and Coach Cheneweth of Broaddus isn't certain that the one he sent in advance will stand up until game time.

Broaddus is scheduled to pull in by auto about 3 o'clock this afternoon, coming direct from Philippi, W. Va.

Geneva's varsity eleven leave tonight for Lewisburg, where it will face Bucknell in the Bison Stadium on the morrow. This game looms as a highly important one for both teams. If the Covenanters can get by with a win, they will be set for the remainder of the year, with only one more tough opponent standing between them and an undefeated record, that opponent being Boston College. The Genevians far outclass the other Tri-State district opponents of its schedule, and unless the McMillin machine goes to pieces should slip through the year unblemished by any local scratching.

If Bucknell is able to wallop Geneva (and a 14-0 score will be considered a walloping one), Coach Snavley will feel more sure of his green team. The green line has been whipped into pretty fair shape by Line Coach Hangartner, and should Bucknell hand Geneva a shellaching, give old Hank due credit.

Other games that will be watched with interest hereabouts tomorrow will be the West Virginia-Washington & Lee contest at Charleston; the Westminster-Buffalo affair at Buffalo and Allegheny's fray with St. Bonaventure.

Waynesburg, the remaining Tri-State eleven, has an off day. Davis-Elkins will test the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

THEY DOCTOR PITT'S GRID MACHINE

AND THEY'RE ALL PITT GRADUATES

We've all heard of all-America football teams, but here's an all-doctor coaching staff, and it belongs to the University of Pittsburgh. All are former Panther gridiron performers, too. Left to right in the group are Dr. Zeke Wissinger, Dr. Harold Carlson, Head Coach Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, Dr. Buck Templeton and Dr. Skip Gougler.

310 Extra Fine Fur Trimmed COATS

Garments That Would Sell Regularly at $65, $70, $75 and $80

THE hot weather during the early part of September caused general unrest among the coat manufacturers.

THEIR business practically stopped and a great unloading of coats took place. Their loss was our gain and we bought coats at prices we didn't believe possible.

THREE hundred and ten beauties are ready for this sale and we are going to let our customers have them at just about the same reduction that we secured. Now is undoubtedly the time to buy your winter coat!

Note These Lovely Materials!

Broadtail cloth, Venise, Veloria, Duvbloom, Broadcloth, Kitten's Ear, Antelope and other soft, rich fabrics that are usually seen only in expensive coats. Every garment is lined with silk crepe, and the tailoring can not be improved upon, so nearly perfect is it.

Here's GOOD MORNING that means Good All Day

A sparkling drink that tastes so good and sets you right

For the acid stomach that disturbs digestion as well as temper we recommend this effervescent pleasant drink from Italy. Its appetizing, pure white crystals spring into instant life when poured into a half glass of cold water. You'll like its really delightful taste and you'll marvel at the quickness with which it neutralizes the excess acid in your system.

Known since 1880 by Italians here and in Italy.

BRIOSCHI
is now available for everyone.

Gently laxative, when taken before breakfast Brioschi will start your day right. A glass of Brioschi before retiring gives you not only a pleasant tasty "night cap" but also corrects the acidity that is largely responsible for the early morning ill tasting mouth. Try Brioschi tonight and see how much better you'll feel tomorrow.

75 cents the large can of 24 drinks at all Italian stores, your favorite druggist or any May Drug Store.

Peel Off Mask, Reveal Your Beauty

If your skin is covered with freckles, blackheads, liver spots or blotches, don't try to conceal these defects. Instead peel them off! Beneath that sallow, freckled, faded, aged or wrinkled skin, there is a new skin as soft and smooth as a girl's. Buy an ounce of pure mercolized wax at any drug store and use as directed. In just a few days freckles, pimples, blackheads, and large pores will disappear like magic. Your complexion will be delicately tinted as a rosebud, and the entire face will look years younger and lovelier. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines, use this face lotion: 1 ounce powdered saxolite and ½ half pint witch hazel.

This week ... get Rinso

and save work next washday

Neighbors will envy your whiter wash~

no scrubbing ~ no boiling ~ so clothes last longer

YES, just that—soaked clean! Soaked whiter and brighter than you could get them the old scrub-and-rub way!

Forget about the washboard — you don't need it. Never mind boiling, either. Rinso whitens without boiling —sterilizes, too!

Watch dirt float off

This amazing granulated soap is all you need on washday. It makes even the hardest water soft and soapy all through. The creamy suds loosen dirt and stains so they float off by themselves. The wash is left spotless and sparkling—whitest you ever saw!

No other laundry soap rinses out so quickly, so completely as Rinso. Best of all, it takes the dirt with it as it rinses. That's why it's called Rinso!

Saves hands—clothes, too

Washday hands—red and coarsened—are the result of endless washboard rubbing. But this soak-and-rinse way saves your hands.

Saves the clothes, too! No need to rub things thin against a board. The most soiled parts come clean with a gentle rub or two between the fingers.

And Rinso is so safe. Contains no acids or bleaches of any description. Economical, too—it's not fluffy chips but closely packed granulated soap.

Try soaking clothes clean this very week. Follow easy directions on package for economy and best results.

Guaranteed by the makers of Lux—Lever Bros. Co.

Ideal in washers
The makers of 30 leading machines recommend Rinso because it's so wonderful in washers. Try it just once and see!

The Granulated Soap that Soaks Clothes Whiter

SECOND WARD BUILDING SOLD

SUE RAILWAYS FOR $35,000

Sarah Haley and her husband, Edward J. Haley, ask joint damages of $35,000 from the Pittsburgh Railways Company for personal injuries suffered by Mrs. Haley when she was thrown to the street while alighting from a street car last July 4 at Penn and Shady avenues. At the time of the accident, Mrs. Haley had her infant child in her arms.

For personal injuries suffered in the store of the S. S. Kresge Company, 322 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, last June 24, May Wellman brings suit against the company for $20,000 damages. The plaintiff alleges that while descending a pair of steps leading from the first floor to the basement of the store she fell and received injuries.

CONVICT MINERS OF GUN-TOTING

A. B. Crawford, Roy Dick and Joseph Schrock, strikebreakers employed by the Consumers Coal Company at Harmarville, were convicted yesterday in Criminal Court of carrying concealed weapons on charges preferred by Smoile Chatak, president of the Harmarville local miners union. The defendants were accused of carrying weapons and threatening bystanders when they were moving household goods into a company house July 21. Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff received a motion for a new trial after the verdict was found.

WEST END, UNION TWP. BACK NEW BRIDGE TUBES

The first of a series of indorsements of the proposed new highway and tunnel connecting the West End and Crafton, requested by county commissioners, were obtained by sponsors of the project from the West End Board of Trade and residents of Union township last night. Sponsors hope to have a bond issue for the project voted upon at the November election.

Non-Train Rider Fights Move to Close Station

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—(AP.)—J. F. Richard, of Kipps Run, who hasn't used a train since 1925, was the sole objector to the application of the Pennsylvania Railroad to abandon its non-agency station at Kipps Run, in Northumberland county at a hearing before the Public Service Commission here.

The railroad offered evidence that no passengers had used the station in the last six months and that no freight had been shipped from there during the last year.

Are you aware of the nitfalls of today that your child must beware of? Do you know what hazards American youth must overcome? The third article of a series will tell you in the Magazine Section, Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Oils and Coppers Selling Below Prices a Year Ago.

By B. C. FORBES

ALL classes of shares have not risen dizzily.

Take two important groups, oils and coppers. Comparison of quotations now and a year ago make a very different showing from that made in our recent comparisons of general industrial, railway and utility prices. The industrials, our compilation revealed, were $66 higher, the rails cited $21 and the utility $17 higher than a year ago.

From the accompanying tables you will see that of a list of 30 oils, no fewer than 16 are now selling below a year ago.

Of 17 copper stocks, only six are higher than at this time last year.

What course, do you think, the largest investors—men of the George F. Baker type, for example—follow? Do you imagine for a moment that they load up with stocks after the market has reached the highest peak ever touched?

No. The most successful investing in stocks is done by accumulating heavily when almost everybody else is bearish and prices are very low. Very recently the New York Stock Exchange "average", quotations rose to heights never before approached and, as a matter of fact, are still not far from the top.

ONE of America's leading bankers while talking on another subject, incidentally mentioned an oil company and added, "it's stock is down now, but, of course, it will come back." My guess is that if our Bakers and Morgans and Mellons and Baruches are purchasing any stocks these days, they are not climbing for issues which are selling at unprecedentedly high prices, but are, rather, picking up meritorious oil, copper, rubber, utility and other stocks which have been either sold to a standstill or largely neglected. I cannot conceive of their loading up with Baldwin Locomotive or Houston Oil or even railway issues which have been marked up $50 to $150 a share.

"BUY when everybody wants to sell, is a tested and tried Wall Street maxim. Well, few people have been displaying any tremendous eagerness to scramble for oil shares or for copper shares.

Of course, it is true that the oil industry has been and still is in deplorable condition. And it is also true that the copper industry has been struggling against low prices for a long time. Were this not so, it would not be possible to pick up the shares of trustworthy companies at the quotations now ruling.

Do you recall the wheeze about the old farmer who refused to become panicky when all his neighbors were terribly excited over a long continued rain? He explained that, in all his 80 years of life, there was only one rain which didn't stop. Then he added, "that's this one—and I'm quite sure it will stop too."

NOW, in nearly a quarter of a century's experience in Wall Street I have seen practically every industry encounter spells of hard times—the railroad, the steel, the traction, the copper, the utility, the oil, the motor, etc., industries have all had their bad turns. But the sound, well-managed companies always came back.

Just so will the stormy weather which has afflicted the oil and the copper industries clear up one day.

THIS table compares oil stock quotations a year ago and now:

STOCKS BOUND UP AS ORDERS POUR IN

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—The stock market, freed from the restraint imposed by fears of a gigantic increase in brokers' loans which proved to be unfounded, bounded upward today as buying orders poured in for a wide variety of stocks. Early gains ran from 1 to 8 points.

With about half a billion dollars to be distributed in the form of interest and dividend payments next month, a good demand developed for the seasoned dividend paying issues. Weekly mercantile reviews continued to report irregularity in the business situation, with the South making the best showing. Call money remained firm at 4 per cent due to the heavy month-end demands for currency. Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans.

Houston Oil was the individual feature, soaring 7½ points before profit taking sales checked the advance. International Silver, DuPont, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Commercial Solvents, Case Threshing, Canadian Pacific and General Motors (old stock) all sold for 5 or more points above yesterday's final quotations. Scores of others, including General Asphalt, A. M. Byers, General Motors (new), United Drug, General Railway Signal and International Cement advanced 2 points or more.

There were only a few soft spots. Baldwin and Abitibi Power, which recorded sensational advances of about 10 points each yesterday, fell back about 3 points on realizing.

The closing was strong. Spectacular bullish demonstrations in particular shares caused big buying waves to sweep over the market in the late afternoon. High-priced shares like Du Pont and General Motors increased their previous advances materially and earlier laggards, including Delaware and Hudson, Timken Roller Bearing, Russia Insurance and Gillette Safety Razor, were marked up 4 to 5 points, with little difficulty.

Total sales approximated 2,300,000 shares.

Erie Gets New Engines.

Delivery is being made to the Erie Railroad of 30 new Freight locomotives, described as the largest in the world. The gigantic engines are 97½ feet long and weigh, fully loaded, about 750,000 pounds, including 24 tons of coal and 8,000 gallons of water. Equipped with 69-inch drive wheel, they will pull the average freight train 50 to 60 miles an hour, speeding up freight movement 10 to 20 per cent and reducing locomotive maintenance cost from 20 to 25 cents a mile. About $9,500,000 in shopping of rolling stock is being record by the Erie, through the purchase of new locomotives, dining, passenger and freight cars.

Rivet Price Goes Up October 10.

In order to benefit by the 2.75 cent price for rivets, Pittsburgh dispatches say that users are given only until October 20 to send in their signed contracts, otherwise they will be required to pay the open market quotations of 3 cents, equivalent to an advance of $5 a ton.

Seeding Machine Net Lower.

American Seeding Machine Company reports net loss of $434,709 for the year ended June 30, in contrast to net profit of $179,943 the year before, which was equal to 59 cents a share on the common stock, after preferred dividends. Current assets were $509,000 against $1,488,184 at the close of the previous fiscal year.

Dividends to Touch Peak.

Dividend and interest payments to investors next month will aggregate a record total of $480,725,000, from 525 railroads, steel, railway, industrial and public utility companies and the United States government, an increase of $42,225,000 over the corresponding period last year, it is shown in a compilation by the Journal of Commerce. Stockholders will receive $119,925,000 and interest payments will amount to $360,850,000.

Lumber Mills Report.

Reports from 251 softwood lumber mills for the week ended September 24 to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association show new business almost the same as a year ago, with larger shipments and production. Compared with the week before, production was the same, shipments slightly larger and new business about 8 per cent less. Hardwood operations showed increases in all three factors over the previous week. Unfilled orders of 224 Southern pine and West Coast mills were 694,282,558 feet, against 667,851,855 feet the week before, with 375,211,738 feet for West Coast mills.

Coal Production Gains.

Production of bituminous coal continues to gain and preliminary estimates show the total for the week now up to 9,600,000 tons, the highest tonnage since the suspension in the union fields on April 1, Coal Age News reports.

Building Pace Good.

Public projects, apartment houses, hotels and educational buildings occupied an important place in the money value of proposed work announced in the United States for the week, The total involved in large projects, all classes of operations, was $23,200,000, an exceedingly favorable showing considering the time of year, the McGraw-Hill Construction Daily reports.

Await C. & O. Meeting.

Wall street is showing interest in the November dividend rate of Chesapeake & Ohio directors, when an increase to the regular annual dividend rate to $12 from $10 is expected to be considered. A division of opinion on the advisability of doing so is understood to have marked the August meeting. Should the C. & O. dividend rate go up, the street thinks the Hocking Valley rate also will be increased from $10 to $12, and the Chesapeake Corporation, which declared an initial quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, would be put on a $24 annual basis. The C. & O. is expected to earn around $25 a share this year.

Chile Copper Net Higher.

Chile Copper Company, including Chile Exploration Company, had net profit of $3,500,114 for the first half of 1927, equal to $1.25 a share, against $6,100,857 in the first half of 1926, or $1.49 a share.

Wabash Surplus Drops.

Surplus of the Wabash Railway for the eight months this year fell to $1,973,181 from $3,740,442 a year ago.

STANDARD SANITARY FIRM IN QUIET LOCAL MARKET

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Bond prices eased off slightly today after two days of active buying at rising prices. Several high grade issues, which opened around their previous peaks, sagged in subsequent dealings, but losses were limited to small fractions.

Mortgages which have been in the forefront of the recent advance were most prominent in the selling, which was attributable largely to profit-taking. Chesapeake Corporation 5s, Chicago and Northwestern 4½s, Illinois Central 4½s and Missouri Pacific 5s all sagged a little below yesterday's close. Public utility and industrial liens were dull.

Polish 8s again displayed heaviness, probably under the influence of uncertainty surrounding the new loan to Poland. Colombian Republic 6s duplicated their previous low for the year.

United States government bonds attracted little attention.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, unit omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Dealings for practically all lines of fruit and vegetables were fairly active today at the local wholesale produce district. The prices of vegetables remained about the same. The fruit market was fairly active. Little change was made in the prices of fruit.

The demand for poultry was fairly good and the supplies were moderate. The market was firm at the quotations listed.

The butter, egg and cheese markets continued to be firm. No change was made in the quotations.

Carlot supplies were fairly liberal, a total of 60 cars being on track. Included in the arrivals were 2 cars of apples, 7 cabbage, 5 cantaloupes, 2 celery, 2 grapefruit, 11 grapes, 1 lemons, 2 lettuce, 4 onions, 3 oranges, 3 peaches, 7 pears, 3 peppers, 23 potatoes, 1 prunes and 14 sweet potatoes.

The hay market was steady and the receipts were light. Grain was light in receipts and the market fairly steady.

HEAR BREEDEN DIVORCE CASE

Divorce proceedings brought by Waldo P. Breeden, attorney, of 1025 Peermont avenue, Dormont, with offices in the Jones Law Building, against Wilhemina Jane Breeden, of 239 South Pacific avenue, were heard by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen in Common Pleas Court today.

The plaintiff charges desertion, claiming that his wife left him on numerous occasions beginning May 28, 1919, and that she failed to return after leaving October 5, 1920. Custody of the two children, Juanita and Waldo P. Breeden, Jr., was awarded the father at habeas corpus proceedings Tuesday.

The couple was married September 30, 1912. Mrs. Breeden did not contest the action.

VETERAN BURIED BY LEGION

A military funeral was held this morning for William G. Interthal, 30, of 42 Mathilda street, Milvale, World War veteran, who died in the Presbyterian Hospital on Tuesday. Members of Millvale Post No. 118, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and of the American Legion participated.

Services were held in St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church, of which he was a member and interment was in St. Anthony's Cemetery. Interthal was born in Millvale and at the time of his death was employed by the Ed Vero Company, Millvale.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP.)—Conditions on the curb exchange changed from unsettlement to confidence and strength overnight as a direct result of the brokers' loans item in the Federal Reserve Bank statement showing an increase of less than $22,000,000, compared with estimates late Thursday of an increase of over $100,000,000. These predictions, which had most effect in trading on the stock exchange had caused a good deal of selling for both long and short account on the curb market during the past few days, and when the uneasiness over the loan situation proved unfounded there was a general disposition to buy back stocks that had been thrown over in the preceding part of the week.

Record-breaking movements were again in order today and there was renewed demand for high-priced specialties, causing advances of 5 points or more in many of those stocks. Many of these gains were made in the early trading and were followed later by reactions, but the market tone held strong during the greater part of the day.

There was persistent buying again of many of the public utilities, several of those stocks making new high records.

Railroad stocks also were among the strong features. New York Central new stock for the first time sold about equal to the price of the present shares, a condition resulting from the fact that the present stock was ex-dividend of 2 per cent, which was not carried on the when-issued contracts. New Haven preferred made a further gain and was established at a new maximum level.

Ford Motor of Canada dropped 12 points to 503 in the first hour's trading and then jumped 22 points. Tubize Artificial Silk rose over 7 points, entering new high ground, and Royal Baking Powder advanced 5 points. Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining reached a new peak at above 155.

Oil stocks were inactive, dealings in those issues being in small volume.

Industrials Steady On Local Board

Prices were steady on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but business was in small volume, and there was no further evidence of the mild pressure noted in one or two issues during the previous session. Bids for National Fireproofing preferred were fractionally above last night's close, but no stock came out in the early dealings.

The issue sold ex-dividend ½ of a point today. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, which sold down to 52 and recovered to 54 yesterday, was steady around 54. Standard Sanitary was also steady around the level prevailing on the close Thursday.

Lone Star Gas was the only active fuel issue in the early market, but there was no change in price and the transactions in the issue probably represented week-end evening-up to some extent. Oklahoma Gas certificates were unchanged at 2½. Union Steel Castings common was handled at 35, unchanged from the previous sale, with the stock ex-dividend 50 cents a share.

Standard Sanitary common maintained a firm tone throughout the session, with the price holding practically stationary. Opening sales were at 95, followed by subsequent transactions at 94¾. The 95 level seemed to attract enough stock to put the brakes on any forward movement, but it was apparent that any recession from that figure had the effect of bringing in buying orders, the situation as a whole being pretty much of a standoff for the day.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Wet weather in Canada, likely to delay threshing, tended to make wheat prices average higher early today. Month end deliveries of large amount on September corn contracts were followed by rapid fluctuations in the corn market. Starting at ½c decline to ⅝c advance, wheat later scored gains for all deferred deliveries. Corn opened unchanged to 2¼c down but subsequently tilted upward. Oats were firm. Provisions likewise hardened.

At noon wheat was at ½c decline to ⅛c advance, and corn ⅝c off to ⅝c up.

In connection with today's advices of wet weather in Canada, reports at hand said that throughout the prairie provinces practically all wheat has now been cut. Consequently good weather is at present especially required for threshing, that in Saskatchewan there will be more lower grades than usual, and that the crop in Manitoba is poor.

With today the last day for adjustment of September contracts, deliveries of 1,870,000 bushels of corn this morning had a bearish influence at first. Later, however, the fact became apparent that all of this corn had passed into strong hands. Under such circumstances the market moved higher at times, helped by assertions that as a result of good feeding value on farms new corn will not be moved to market in quantity at present prices.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 3 to 7 points. Undercutting appeared to be based on easier Liverpool cables and a favorable view of the early weather map. Prices stiffened up a few points after the opening on the forecast for showery and cooler weather in the Southwest, but the bulge met increased offerings and the market weakened again, active months showing net losses of about 15 to 20 points by the end of the first hour. December sold off from 21.30c to 21.13c and March from 21.70c to 21.47c.

A private report placing the condition of the crop at 55.2 per cent and the indicated yield at 12,806,000 bales, may have been a factor on the decline. Another report published before the opening, put the condition at 53 per cent, compared with 56.1 per cent a month ago, and said the figures pointed to a further reduction in the estimated yield.

Another private report appeared later in the morning placing the condition at 53.2 per cent and the indicated yield at 12,657,000 bales. These figures being under those published earlier in the day, seemed to promote some covering. There was also some buying on apprehensions of a renewal of unsettled weather in the South.

Early losses were recovered with December selling up to 21.43c or 13 points net higher, but this bulge met a renewal of realizing or liquidation, and was not fully maintained. The market at midday was quieter, with December selling around 21.23c or about 4 to 10 points net lower.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today and in absence of business prices were unchanged at 4.74c for Cuban duty paid.

An estimate by a prominent European authority, placing the beet sugar crop in Europe at 8,101,000 metric tons, as against last year's outturn of 6,980,000, was slightly in excess of general expectations. With the easier opening of the London market it prompted increased selling pressure at the opening of raw sugar futures.

First prices were unchanged to one point lower. The near months showed the only decline. There was enough covering and outside buying to absorb the offerings from trade and Cuban interests and the market continued at these levels throughout the remainder of the forenoon.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.80c to 6.10c for fine granulated with business still of small proportions.

significant encounter. It was physically impossible for the athletes to show any speed, but their unsteady footing had nothing in common with the spirit of the battle.

The Redbirds had a furious mien on them, but the home boys matched blow for blow and at the end were fighting in a manner that indicated that the Reds, too, were fighting for the flag.

The behavior of the Rhinelanders as they performed against the St. Louis foe was a sharp reminder of the actions of the Cubs as they battled the Pirates in Chicago. All of this, of course, is a fine thing for the game.

FRISCH HITS HOMER

Fordham Frank Frisch, always a tough gent in a pinch, slammed a homer over the left wall in the sixth frame to scare the Pirates and others who may have held Pittsburgh sympathies. Luckily, there was nobody on the sacks at the time. In the previous round, Rabbit Maranville injected a clean single to right which sent the first Cardinal run from first to third. Maranville remained in the fight with a bad leg in an effort to land another success for the O'Farrell clan.

The Cardinals had the tieing run on second in the ninth with one out, but Jake May, who held the Cardinals in check in most of the rounds, made Frank Snyder lift a fly to Ethan Allen. Lester Bell then went up to hit for Maranville and grounded to Chuck Dressen, who ran down Ray Blades for the final putout.

Manager Bush this morning stated that he probably would use Victor Aldridge in the opening game of the last series of the season. The Reds were expected to send Red Lucas to the mound.

The Freebooters are in excellent shape for the impending series. Although the squad had to take two successive off days in the midst of the important fight, there was a feeling that the lay-off would do no especial harm.

Quite a few of the Pittsburgh players caught heavy colds in the wet series in Chicago, but it will take more than a severe cold to make any one of them wish to get out of action at this time. John Miljus and Paul Waner visited a doctor this afternoon in the hope of getting some relief. Paul has a cold, while Miljus has a touch of something akin to pleurisy.

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

CARRICK High School's gridiron stalwarts will be given their first test as a member of the City League on their home field against Allegheny, former titleholder; the championship Schenley eleven advances upon South's weak forces, and Langley descends upon Oliver High School's grounds in the inaugural battles of two sections in the City League this afternoon. Other local contests will find Dormont battling at Bellevue, Peabody struggling with Steubenville, Aspinwall at Ben Avon, Coraopolis at Avalon, Millvale at Etna, Munhall at Rankin and Clairton at Homestead.

One change in dates may be noted. Westinghouse was scheduled to clash at Swissvale tomorrow, but arrangements have been made to play the contest on the Westinghouse field this afternoon.

Virtually all of the games will begin at 4 o'clock.

Tomorrow will see a number of good games also. The battle between Freeport and Ne-Ken-Hi at New Kensington should be a bitter affair; Ambridge tackles Beaver in another fight; Braddock and Jeannette's conflict should be a severe test for both teams; Wilkinsburg goes to Kittanning for a workout.

Greensburg has high hopes of winning its hardest early-season tilt from Youngwood.

Fifth Avenue High School probably will face a strong eleven in Latrobe at Latrobe tomorrow. Coach Briggs has worked hard with his green material, and will be given his first chance to see if he has obtained any results. Another interesting fray finds Monessen at Canonsburg.

MOOSE CLUB READY

ROSCOE, Sept. 30.—The Moose Club of Roscoe has organized a football team to participate in independent grid games. Several players formerly prominent on scholastic and independent grid outfits in the California-Roscoe section are enrolled in the team's roster of players. The team has several open dates and managers desiring to arrange for games are requested to write Manager P. J. Murphy, Roscoe, Pa., or call 163-W California.

GAME CALLED OFF

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Sept. 30.—Due to two cancellations by high school teams of other towns because of the fear of infantile paralysis, there will not be a game here tomorrow. New Philadelphia was to have played Warren. After Warren canceled, Alliance was engaged, but parents of Alliance players objected and plans for that game were dropped.

'TRADITION' SHATTERED BY BABE

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Babe Ruth picked up one of his big home run bats at the Yankee Stadium yesterday and nonchalantly shattered sportdom's prized tradition.

"They don't come back," is the eternal dirge chanted by the sports jinx.

It was the death march to the hopes of the master, Tilden. It sounded in the ears of the beaten and battered Dempsey at Soldiers' Field.

But the Mightier Ruth would be served!

With two of those wind-splitting swings which represent all that is most spectacular in baseball, Babe lifted two more home runs into history and equaled his own world's record of 59, established in 1921.

It was typical of baseball's star showman that he should choose a Frank Merriwell setting for the tieing home run. His fifty-eighth of the year had come off the pitching of young Horace Lisenbee of the Washington Senators in the first inning with none on, and was as drab as a home run by Babe Ruth can be.

A stage director could not have prepared a better setting for the fifty-ninth big blow. There were three men on bases. Young Paul Hopkins, former college star, on the mound for the Senators, set his teeth and with youthful determination strove to gain fame with a strike-out over baseball's greatest hitter.

The count was three balls and two strikes.

Zam—and Babe Ruth was back!

FLOOR LOOPS ARE BUSY

Contrary to all reports, the Allegheny County, P. & O., Catholic Lyceum, Commercial and Industrial and the former Gazette Times Junior Basketball League will be reorganized for the coming season and plans already are under way to that end. These leagues, the outstanding ones of the Tri-State district last season, functioned according to schedule and all but one wound up as they started.

In the County circuit will be found the leaders of last year's league, while several new applications for berths are on file.

The Commercial and Industrial League, the first of its kind ever organized here, promises to be on a par with the leading industrial loops in the country. Practically all of last year's members again will enroll, while several additions will be made.

The P. & O. League, which stood out last year as second only to the County League in the semi-pro ranks, already has enough applicants for a circuit larger than last season. The leading teams from last year have signified their intention of again being members, while several of the other good teams of last season are seeking admission.

Those interested in affiliating with first-class leagues of all ages and classes are requested to communicate with J. J. Freund, Jr., 225 Charles street, Mt. Oliver Postoffice, or call Lafayette 4297.

GRAYS IN EAST FOR GAMES

The Homestead Grays left yesterday on an eastern trip, during which they will play four games, three with the Lincoln Giants and one with the American League All-Stars.

This afternoon in Philadelphia the Grays clash with the Lincoln club and on Sunday afternoon the Grays and Lincolns will play a twin bill at Protectory Oval in New York. On Tuesday afternoon the Grays will be back in Philadelphia, where they will play against Earl Mack's American League aggregation. After this game the Grays and big leaguers will head for this district, where the Grays will go on tour with the stars, staging games in Johnstown, Uniontown and Fairmont, W. Va., before appearing at Forbes Field next Saturday afternoon, October 8. The Grays play the Stars at Youngstown, O., October 9, and will swing back to Forbes Field for their two final games of the local end of the series, which will probably be staged on October 12 (Columbus Day) and October 13. Sunday, October 16, the big leaguers and the Grays will wind up their barnstorming at Columbus, O., the game to be played at the home of the American Association club in that city.

RAIN AGAIN HALTS LITTLE WORLD SERIES

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 30.—Rain again prevented the opening of the junior world's baseball series here this afternoon between the Buffalo Bisons, International League champions, and the Toledo Mudhens, American Association winners. The first game will be played here Friday. In case of rain both teams will leave for Buffalo, where games will be played Saturday and Sunday.

IZAAK WALTONS TO HOLD TOURNEY DAY TOMORROW

The annual tournament day of the Allegheny county chapters of the Izaak Walton League will be held tomorrow at Saunders' Triangle, on the William Penn highway, one mile beyond Burke's Glen. The program is to include traps, rifle and revolver shooting, bait and fly casting and novelty events and entertainment.

Yanks, Bucs Due Here Monday

The foe will arrive in Pittsburgh at 8:35 Monday morning at the Pennsylvania station.

In these days of the great baseball fever epidemic, the foe, of course, consists of the Yankees—and, insofar as the Yanks are concerned, the Giants and the Cardinals no longer are in the National League flag race.

The views of the American League champs on the current baseball question was made known today when they made reservations for transportation to Pittsburgh.

The Yanks are to leave New York at 10:30 o'clock Sunday night. They are to establish headquarters at the Roosevelt Hotel on their arrival here and will work out at Forbes Field Monday afternoon.

The Pirates, playing their last league game in Cincinnati Sunday afternoon, will arrive in Pittsburgh at practically the same hour.

ASHLAND SET TO GIVE WOOSTER STIFF BATTLE

WOOSTER, O., Sept. 30.—When Wooster and Ashland meet in Severance Stadium here tomorrow to open the 1927 football season, it will be the sixth straight time these two teams have met here. To date, Wooster holds the edge by having won all five of the games.

In 1922, Wooster won, 7 to 6, when a touchdown was made in the last minute of play. The next year the score was the same. In 1924 and 1925 Wooster won by the same margin, 17 to 6. Last season Wooster took a 13-to-0 victory.

Ashland expects a different story this season. The team started a winning streak after the game here last season which had not been broken. They have piled up seven straight victories. Last week, Coach Schmuck used his entire squad in an easy 12-to-6 win over Cedarville.

Pennant Possibilities

IF THE PIRATES defeat the Reds the race in the National League will be over, with the Pirates crowned champions. If the Giants also win, the standing in the National League will be:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Pittsburgh	94	58	.618
St. Louis	91	61	.599
New York	91	61	.599

SHOULD the Pirates and Giants each lose, the McGrawmen will be eliminated from further consideration in the pennant race. In this event the Cards will retain second place. The standings tonight would be:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Pittsburgh	93	59	.612
St. Louis	91	61	.599
New York	90	62	.592

FRIDAY NIGHT ONLY
MONEY FOR YOU AMBITIOUS MEN.

Here's An Amazing Opportunity. Here Is the Key to a Good Position, An Extra Pay Check Every Week, Whether Employed or Unemployed. Read Carefully and Investigate. You Can't Afford to Pass Up the Greatest Opportunity in Pittsburgh Today. So Make Up Your Mind to Answer This Ad
BUT THIS OPPORTUNITY WILL NOT LAST LONG.

$35 TO $75 WEEKLY

Don't "grope in the dark," dreaming of extra money. You don't have to "pound the pavements" or go off on a "wild goose chase." Every ambitious person in the City of Pittsburgh would be amazed and glad to avail himself of this opportunity if he only knew the facts. YOU DON'T NEED EXPERIENCE AND YOU WON'T BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING. Briefly, the city's new administrative and expansion has made it necessary for us to open an entirely new department and has created an opportunity unparalleled for people desiring EXTRA WEEKLY INCOME. Work WILL NOT CONFLICT WITH PRESENT EMPLOYMENT. No Selling. No Schooling. No Red Tape.

These positions can be filled during the spare hours (during day or evening) of mechanics, tradesmen, clerks, professional men and business men. Full time positions can be arranged for those desiring permanent work. ABSOLUTELY NO EXPERIENCE REQUIRED; FINANCIAL CO-OPERATION GIVEN from the start. You should earn NOT LESS than $44.10 PER WEEK from the moment your name is placed upon the company's roll. Of the scores of happy workers recently employed, very few earn less than $50 per week and are working but one hour per day. Positions (part time or permanent) are EXTREMELY SIMPLE in pleasant surroundings and most congenial atmosphere.

Do not confuse this ad with another of similar wording, for YOU WILL NOT BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING AND YOU CAN EARN FROM THE MOMENT YOU START.

This is REAL. This is GENUINE. Here is an opportunity to earn a REAL BANK ACCOUNT during your spare time. The work is extremely simple and can be done by anyone of ordinary intelligence and we will make you understand and know you can do the work before we ask you to start.

You must understand this is an unusual opportunity. Come and get the facts. We require white applicants over 25 years of age AND EVERYONE will be given utmost consideration.

This ad will appear until FRIDAY EVENING and none will be considered after 8:30 O'CLOCK Friday evening. Make up your mind NOW to answer on time. NO APPLICANTS RECEIVED AT ANY OTHER HOUR.

Last Call. Apply Paymaster.

APPLY FRIDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 30TH at 8:30 O'CLOCK, SUITE 601, CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BUILDING, SEVENTH AVENUE AND SMITHFIELD STREET.

Notice! Remember this is an entirely new department and here is your opportunity to get a position in it. Scores of new applicants have been given employment during the evenings or after business hours and even the office boy earns $35 per week. Many of our employes who are unemployed otherwise during the daytime have bought new cars and have opened new bank accounts as a result of this wonderful extra income opportunity. You can answer other ads every day of the week, but—remember you can only answer this ad Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

YOU SIMPLY CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS IT. Knowing how and why means EXTRA MONEY. Now if you really desire to open a REAL BANK ACCOUNT, DON'T MISS THIS. Do not answer this ad unless you are really sincere and anxious to earn an extra income. We will receive no applicants after 8:30 o'clock Friday evening, so make up your mind to answer on time. REGARDLESS OF PRESENT EMPLOYMENT, EVERYONE WILL BE GIVEN FULLEST CONSIDERATION AT ABOVE TIME, AND REMEMBER THE PLACE.

APPLY FRIDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 30TH at 8:30 O'CLOCK, SUITE 601, CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BUILDING, SEVENTH AVENUE and SMITHFIELD STREET.

WANTED—LADIES
WORK DURING EVENING OR SPARE HOURS, YOU CAN EARN A BONUS FOR YOUR SUMMER WORK, YOU CAN EARN AT LEAST $40 IN YOUR SPARE TIME EVERY WEEK.

Whether employed or unemployed, read carefully and investigate. You cannot afford to pass up the greatest opportunity in Pittsburgh today. Read these facts carefully. Remember you can earn at least $40 for your spare time work during the evenings, and we will show you how to do this EXTREMELY SIMPLE work and make you understand thoroughly before you start. WORK WILL NOT CONFLICT WITH PRESENT EMPLOYMENT. NO SELLING. NO SCHOOLING. NO INSTRUCTION COURSES. These positions can be filled during spare hours (during the evening) of housewives, teachers, nurses, business ladies and office workers. ABSOLUTELY NO EXPERIENCE REQUIRED. Full time positions can be arranged for those unemployed and those desiring permanent work. FINANCIAL CO-OPERATION GIVEN. This is not "just another ad," but a responsible, well-known Pittsburgh firm offering real, dignified employment. Positions (part time or permanent) are extremely simple, in pleasant surroundings and most congenial atmosphere. Do not confuse this ad with others of similar wording for YOU WILL NOT BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING. This is genuine. Every ambitious person in the city of Pittsburgh would be anxious to procure this employment if she only knew the facts. YOU WILL EARN THE MOMENT YOU START work and we will make you understand and know you can do the work before we ask you to start. Don't be misled and don't waste your time on "wild goose chases." This is an unusual opportunity. Come and get the facts. Applicants must be white and over 25 years of age. Every one will be given utmost consideration. This is not a chance, but A REAL OPPORTUNITY. This ad will appear until Friday evening only, and none will be considered after Friday evening.

Apply Friday evening, September 30th, at 8:30 o'clock, ROOM 601, CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BLDG., Seventh ave. and Smithfield st.

NOTICE—Our business is becoming so heavy that we have decided to open a new department. Scores of new applicants have been given employment during the evening, after business hours. Many of our employes, who are employed otherwise during the daytime, have bought new cars and have opened new bank accounts as a result of this wonderful extra income opportunity. United Engineering and Foundry Company.
Notice to Stockholders.
Annual Meeting. Special Matters.
Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the stockholders of United Engineering and Foundry Company will be held at the principal office of the company, 2314 Farmers Bank Building, corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on October 25, 1927, at 10 o'clock a. m. (Eastern Standard time), at which time, in addition to the election of directors and the transaction of regular business, the following, pursuant to resolutions of the Board of Directors, duly passed at their meeting held July 26, 1927, will be submitted to the stockholders for their approval or disapproval:
First—The reduction of the authorized common capital par stock of the company from 75,000 shares to 69,353 shares and from a total par value of $7,500,000.00 to a total par value of $6,935,300.00.
Second—The conversion of the 69,353 shares of the common capital par stock into 416,118 shares of common capital stock without nominal or par value and the exchange of six shares of no par value stock for each share of the present 69,353 shares of the common capital par stock issued and outstanding.
Third—The fixing of the stated capital of the company applicable to the no par value common capital stock at $5,409,514.00.
Fourth—Authorizing the $1,525,786.00 of the capital of the company heretofore credited against the common capital par stock to be credited to surplus so that the same may be declared out in dividends from time to time at the discretion of the directors.
Fifth—The reduction of the authorized preferred capital stock of the company from 18,000 shares to 15,749 shares and from a total par value of $1,800,000.00 to a total par value of $1,574,900.00. Said 15,749 shares represent the now outstanding and issued preferred capital stock.
Sixth—Amending Article VIII, Section 2, of the By-Laws, to make the certificates for the common stock read "without nominal or par value," instead of a par value.
Seventh—Various other amendments to the By-Laws, a copy of the proposed amendments having been mailed in accordance with the By-Laws, to each stockholder.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Emb. Mom. Dept., P. M. Bldg. Sir—

I am a refined young woman who gave up a career to marry a nice elderly gentleman. Just a week ago I met a handsome young fellow, wealthy, and oh! so understanding. That night while polishing my pearl - handled pistol (a wedding gift) my husband came home and as I was telling him about this attractive young millionaire I playfully pointed the pistol at my dear husband. Imagine my embarrassment when, upon snapping the trigger, I discovered the pistol was loaded!

Adam Scoffaw's Journal

This evening supped with Milords William and Miguel Hogg, and sip their spinach wine, which flatter the palate mightily, and rid my dame of rheum so that she on coming home, turn cartwheels on the lawn, while the dogges howl to the moon. And at Mister Hogg's meet with Lord and Lady McIntyre and Mister Menjou, the mime, and Lady Carver, and we mighty merrie at chin-musique past one of the clock.

READ THIS—YOU GIN GARGLING FLAPPERS!

Maurine paced the decks with feverish impatience.

It's getting late and there are eighteen pages of "Maurine" still uncut.

Urged to hurry home and take Helen's baby, unselfish Maurine "turned back on glory, art and Rome" and took the first fast "boat for home." Her only fear, she says, was that Helen might shed "a needless tear."

The author says Maurine paced the deck, saying to herself—

"Oh, ship, sail on! and bear me o'er the tide,
To her for whom my woman's heart once died.
Sail, sail, O, ship! for she hath need of me,
And I would know what her last wish may be!
I have been true, so true, through all the past.
Sail, sail, O, ship! I would not fail at last."

And so she mumbled, o'er and ever o'er, until the lagging ship reached shore. Maurine, you are a sweet and noble soul. You certainly shame the modern girl, who only uses a baby carriage to tote gin.

(This is a review of the too long neglected "Maurine," 1901.)

BUGS BAER Says

LOOKING backward over the list of important candidates we discover that no man has been President before he was nominated.

And no nominee has been elected presidentee before presidential year.

But this doesn't stop the pathfinders from jumping on the treadmill and hanging up new political records for stationary marathons.

If you have a friend who would make a good President, don't boom him too soon. You cannot check up the votes until the ballots are hatched.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

Many a good race horse has been hamstrung by too many workouts.

The candidate who starts candidating two years before the gong rings is shadow boxing with his own silhouette. If he wins, he defeats himself.

Politics is full of morning glories who bloom in the elimination tournament until some old timer comes along and steps on 'em.

The morning glory may greet the sun. But it's the old geranium that finishes the day.

We have watched many political contests in the last 20 years and the front runners who get honorable mention in April are still honorable in August, but they ain't mentioned in November.

The big boy who climbs up on that platform to nominate the man who is going to carry the banner to a glorious victory recount that the government of the people shall not perish from the star chamber, is as full of superlatives as China is of tea leaves.

He is facing two hundred morning glories, each one of whom is sure he is the target for the finger of pride.

But when the nominator gets down to the last sentence where he names the man, his index finger is a rusted trigger. He points at nobody. Instead, he reached under the platform and pulls out an old mossbacked politician who has been sleeping there all the time.

This old buzzard is known as the compromise candidate. He has been told 10 years ago that he is to get the nomination, but he is too smart to let them paint his name on the door before he is seated in the office.

Then, all the morning glories fold up or bolt the convention. They have beaten the firemen to the blaze only to discover that it was a false alarm.

This system never changes. The beautiful flowers of springtime cannot compete with November corn and wheat.

So, if you have a friend who looks like a capable President don't spring him before the old boys are there with a yardstick to measure his jumps.

Decent Opinion Fully Backs This Drive on Fight Films

Wholesome opinion is squarely behind the Department of Justice in its enforcement of the law forbidding interstate shipments of prize fight films.

The purpose of that law is not to open an aimless debate on the technical bounds between Federal and State authority, but to strike at a vicious and debasing peril, more menacing now than ever before.

We face open floodgates to a high tide of bestialism which threatens infinitely more harm to the American people than was ever threatened by angry waters.

When the levees of the Mississippi were swept away, no technicalities in law prevented the swift exercise of Federal power to meet the crisis as best it could.

The government should meet this greater menace in the same determined spirit. In doing so it can count on the full support of civilized and enlightened sentiment.

It is obviously insufficient to arrest only managers, ticket sellers and even underlings of theaters exploiting brutality upon the screen. That was done in the test case in San Francisco. The dragnet should go further and higher.

It should reach the president and board of directors of the theater, who determine its policy and without whose assent the debasing exhibit would not be hazarded.

Moreover, if the present law does not permit the closing of theaters trafficking in contamination, it should promptly be strengthened.

They should be padlocked just like law-breaking booze joints.

The law-breaking booze joint poisons the bodies of its patrons. The fight-exploiting film theater poisons human minds and spreads an infection of demoralization throughout society, from young to old.

Surely, then, if the padlock is appropriate in the one instance it is doubly so in the other.

But the theaters exhibiting this fight film are only retail outlets of an organized defiance of law and morals which has as wholesale profiteers the principals, Tunney and Dempsey, and the promoter, Rickard.

It is they who get the big money. The government does well, therefore, to measure the extent of their accountability under the law.

Here, again, if existing law does not reach them it should be reinforced.

The time has come when our country, in justice to its repute and its future, must put an end to the growing debauching of its ideals.

Need of Wise Spending For City Work Is Shown

The refusal of City Controller John H. Henderson to countersign certain contracts for projected improvements again called the attention of Council to the necessity of economy and wisdom in the expenditure of funds it has at its disposal. Controller Henderson withheld his signature until estimated costs could be brought within the legal debt limit.

Pittsburgh's improvement plans have been so extensive that spending has bordered on the legal limit for some time. Council's problem has been to give the people improvements they desire and need and yet keep within its budget. If the income is not sufficient to do all that is desirable a city has to do just as an individual does—curtail. A street has to do with shabby paving just as a man sometimes has to make his overcoat last another winter.

We had been optimistic enough to hope that the budget system of appropriations would render unnecessary the make-shift plans that for long have been the emergency resort of different councils. In a business house it would; but, perhaps, a city isn't a business. Why should it be necessary to give a street hope that it will have a new coat and then at the last minute say it can't be done.

It is because sufficient money is not at hand, of course, but why go to the expense of preparing estimates and passing ordinances for work that adequate survey would show could not be done?

Improvements at Mayview To Increase Mercy Service

Among ordinances introduced in Council is the first measure authorizing contracts for extensive improvements in Mayview. It sets aside $420,000, part of a bond issue, to pay for the work. Important building contemplated under the measure includes a laundry and storehouse, fire towers (enclosed fire escapes) connecting with hospital wards, and the reconstruction of a building, at present devoted to other uses, into a central kitchen to serve the entire plant.

When all improvements planned for Mayview are completed, Pittsburgh will have one of the most efficient municipal hospitals anywhere in existence. All of the additions have long been needed at Mayview. Even at present the institution, developed to a high degree of efficiency under the direction of Mrs. Enoch Rauh, of the Department of Public Welfare, is giving better service than was possible a few years ago. That is a fortunate thing for Pittsburgh's unfortunate.

Another Challenge

Once brilliant physician earning $20,000 a year, now dead leaving a wife and son practically destitute—this, briefly, is the tragedy of Dr. Benjamin Frenkel, drug addict.

Just one instance of many in the long, sad narcotic trail.

Colonel Arthur Woods, on his way to another opium conference at Geneva, tells how most of these tragedies could be stopped.

All the narcotic derivatives in the world are, he says, made in just 50 factories, located in five nations, each professing to be civilized, four professing to be Christian. They are the United States, England, Germany, Switzerland and Japan.

If these five nations would control the production as carefully as the United States controls it, the supply could soon be reduced to meet only medical and scientific needs.

The drugs that do so much mischief in the United States are not prepared here. They are smuggled in.

Geneva has been the scene of a number of unsuccessful challenges of this cruel traffic. It is time that humane world opinion began to score results.

CRIMINAL RECKLESSNESS

Garrett P Serviss Says:

The Whirling Atmosphere

"Reading your article on Lindbergh and the winds, I wish to ask: How far from the earth does this 'gaseous shell which surrounds the earth' move with the earth, and why does it move so? Does it move uniformly, or as it is farther from the earth does it lag? And at the point where it doesn't move with the earth what condition will be found? And if the earth is whirling through space wouldn't the tendency be, regardless of other conditions, for the wind to blow from one direction?—E. C. Henry, Chicago."

THE earth is a solid globe rotating around an axis running through its center. The opposite ends of this axis of rotation are the earth's two poles. Surrounding the solid rotating globe is a shell of gases called the atmosphere. If this shell were fixed in position it is evident that the rotation of the globe inside it would create a wind blowing constantly over the surface of the globe in a direction opposite to that of the globe's rotation. But there is no such wind; consequently we know that the atmospheric shell must, as a whole, rotate with the solid globe on which it rests.

This rotation of the atmosphere must extend upward from the earth as far as the atmosphere goes, say a distance of at least a hundred miles; but beyond twenty miles the atmosphere becomes excessively rare, and it is difficult to say just what the condition may be at greater elevations. If outside the atmosphere there existed some medium fixed in position and capable of producing friction with the outer layers of the atmosphere, then the latter would be to some extent retarded.

The cause of the rotation of the atmosphere is plainly the friction between the gaseous shell and the rotating solid globe with which it is in contact and upon which it presses with its whole weight. If the globe had been formed first and set into rotation before the atmosphere was added to it, then there would have been for a time a violent commotion on the earth's surface where the atmosphere would have been swept into motion. The upper parts of the atmosphere would lag for a while, but at length the motion would be distributed throughout the entire gaseous shell.

The same result has been attained in another way. The atmosphere instead of being suddenly placed upon the rotating earth was probably formed, although we cannot say in precisely what manner, simultaneously with the solid globe, and out of the same pre-existing matter, so that it shared the rotation from the beginning.

But, while the atmosphere, AS A WHOLE, rotates with the solid earth, it is continually subject to internal movements of its own, because its gaseous constitution permits its molecules to move freely among one another. Thus there are everywhere winds and currents of air, moving in various directions independent of the GENERAL motion of the whole mass of air, or atmosphere, which accords with the earth's rotation. Some of these currents, such as the trade winds, are a secondary result of the rotation of the earth.

When Bored

IF LIFE has become a humdrum existence for you, you are not living right.

If you are bored by the old routine, you lack ambition to change.

Often what you think is the easiest way becomes irksome.

Don't think so much about whether things are hard or easy.

You are so afraid of trouble that you don't stir around enough to get new ideas and broader viewpoints.

If your job bores you, you are not sufficiently interested.

If your home does not satisfy you, probably you are failing to do your part in it.

If the world seems all wrong you must be the one who is out of tune, for the greater majority get a lot out of living.

You need the companionship of children with a sense of responsibility for their welfare.

Take up a new subject for study at odd times. Read good books.

Don't die of dry rot.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Song of Longing

OH! for the open road again, with the kiss of the sun and the wind and rain! I have been out on the plains today and the mist of the cities is blown away, the mist of the cities that clouds the sight and blinds the soul to earth's old delight. I would be out on the road again, tuning my song to the wind's refrain, stealing a note from the meadowlark and watching a moth on the breeze embark. I would be clasping a joy untold, a joy that weighs more than cities' gold. Oh, for the open road again, with its changeful beauty that knows no wane. I would be out in the wind and sun, where the fadeless fabric of bliss span!

O. O. McINTYRE

In Tia Juana

TIA JUANA, Sept. 30.—This town, so extravagantly headlined for wickedness, is a mixture of a street carnival in Circleville, O., and a movie closeup of a western cow town. It is a half hour drive from San Diego and passing through customs is as casual as crossing Brooklyn Bridge.

The town sits in a bowl of sage-brushed and cactus-dotted Mexican hills. It has one big main street lined on either side with open fronted saloons and gambling halls. One bar runs the entire length of the block. The blare of honky-tonk jazz bands gives a county fair halo to a state fair crowd, the sort where men carry toy balloons.

The crowds weave in and out the bars, swilling 2-cent beers and grouping now and then with feet on the brass rail to burst full throated into "Sweet Adeline." In cheaper bars are "the percentage girls," pathetic washed out creatures with gold teeth, who buttonhole you for a drink and receive their percentage.

There are a few doubtful ladies in shoddy evening clothes on display, but the oldest profession has become a starvation calling. All visitors must start across the border at five in the afternoon or stay all night among rather dangerous Mexican desperadoes. At dusk Tia Juana is practically deserted.

The town is well policed and if you land in jail you are likely to remain from now on. Tia Juana thumbs a nose at the Mexican government and makes its own law. My dog engaged in a street corner tiff with a Mexican mongrel. It required some persuasion to prevent detention for "disturbing the peace."

Those who expect to see beady-eyed and beetle-browed plug uglies making their last stand as bartenders will be disappointed. The bartenders are types that would look at home in the J. P. Morgan counting room. They are barbered, manicured, silken voiced and courtly.

Eddie Baker, the Tia Juana Beau Brummel and owner of its finest cafe, the San Francisco, is the most picturesque figure I saw there, wearing a chocolate brown suit with daring white stripes, a straw Homberg hat and a vivid orange tie. He says he came to Tia Juana because he has always been in the liquor business and loves it.

* * *

Tia Juana is controlled by a group of Americans who divide gambling spoils. If you like the whoop-dee-doo of a county fair you will enjoy Tia Juana. There are those who hope to make it an American Monte Carlo, but it has a long haul ahead before reaching that opulence. Outside of young girls dancing the Black Bottom together in sand floored honkey tonks, beer guzzling and gambling, I saw no frightful vice. I've seen worse goings-on in Broadway supper clubs. Incidentally Tia Juana Anglicized is "Aunt Jane."

* * *

One touches the small world, etc., theory in far away corners. At luncheon in a Tia Juana cafe a young lady introduced herself. When I last saw her she was in a baby carriage with a rattle in my home town several thousands of miles away and her name was Lucille Henking. And here she was with her stalwart and bronzed rancher husband at the adjoining table in a foreign land.

* * *

In one of the bigger bars a perky-eyed and whisky voiced soprano with an unwholesome bloat sang a tear-jerking home and mother ballad reminiscent of the old Over-the-Rhine concert hall days in Cincinnati. She has gone before the broom of reform from New York to San Francisco to the Barbary Coast. And now past 50 stirs the ashes of almost dead memories of a picturesque American past.

* * *

At 6 o'clock in the evening local Mexicans swarm out to the streets from their adobe houses for air in the manner of prairie dogs after a Kansas cyclone. During the day Mexicans stay in Old Town. Save for uniformed officials or store clerks they are rarely seen.

* * *

An old attendant in New York's Canfield establishment has a cigar stand here. "This is not gambling," he said. "They just play bean bags."

The United States of Europe

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The Madrid Press in Spain recently proposed the United States of Europe, independent of the League of Nations, and pledged to maintain peace by means of an international army.

There is not much danger of this suggestion being adopted because there is nothing in its favor but common sense and intelligence. In international affairs these things do not seem to have much of a look-in. Pride, nationalism, chauvinism and patriotism have the right of way.

The logical thing for Europe to do of course, since the United States will not come in with them to the League of Nations, is to organize a league of their own. If they would do this and abolish their nonsensical tariff barriers and have a Europe as united as the American continent, they would accomplish something, but army and office holders would lose their jobs and a number of great and glorious statesmen would be looking for work.

An international police force enforcing the mandates of the United States of Europe would not appeal much to patriotism. It would be simply business, and the principal inducement offered to young men to go to war would be lacking.

The Madrid Press, however, is evidently of the opinion, which is shared by many, that you are never going to have a practical peace that is not bolstered up by arms. The world is too much torn by jealousies, strifes and vanities to sit still long enough to listen to reason.

We do not have anarchy in our cities, because we have all given up the job of protecting our honor and entrusted that to a police force. There is no war between the states of this Union simply because the army belongs to the United States. So there would automatically come to pass a state of peace if there was no army in Europe except the police force to back up the opinions of the representatives of the United States of Europe.

When the world gets in earnest about abating war, when it ceases to talk and vapor and begins looking about for some practical plan, it must be some such plan as this. Force is not estopped as a means of settling disputes by abandoning force altogether, but by relegating it. As long as nations are unwilling to give up their isolated pride there can be no real union.

Such a plan as that proposed by the Madrid Press would mean billions of dollars to impoverished Europe. But it means something else that is out of the question and that is common sense.

OPPOSES FIGHTS

Editor, THE SUN-TELEGRAPH:

I wish to take this opportunity to express to your paper my hearty approval of your editorial in last Sunday's paper, in which you denounced prize fighting.

I am not opposed to sports and certain kind of boxing is no doubt a good thing, but when it assumes the proportion of a spectacular display such as we have had in the recent past, it is certainly demoralizing and, I believe, it is the duty of good citizens to oppose a thing of this kind; and I might add that a great many people have said to me that your editorial met with their hearty approval.

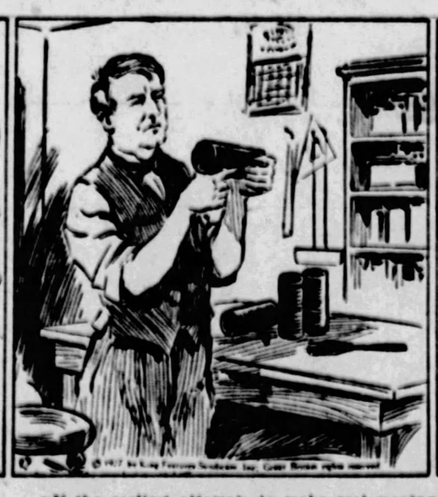
THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

BEFORE Edison began his experiments in the moving picture field several attempts were made to produce "motion" pictures with ordinary cameras. The most serious of these was made by Edward Muybridge, in 1878. He set up several cameras on the rail of a trotting track. These were "snapped" by the horse striking strings.

IN 1887 the idea occurred to Edison that he could make an instrument that would do for the eye what the phonograph did for the ear. In his mind he pictured the possibilities of combining both instruments so that singers and musicians long since dead could be "seen" and heard at the same time all over the world.



IN the earliest attempts to make real moving pictures, using one camera and many negatives instead of one negative to each camera, the photographs were arranged in a spiral on a cylinder. This cylinder was about the size of the wax cylinder phonograph record of that time. Edison is shown here experimenting with one.

WHILE Edison was experimenting with his moving pictures the film negative, with which we are all familiar today, was being developed. Edison saw in this the solution of his problem. It was a very light body of tough material on which thousands of photographs could be made at a rapid rate.
